INTRODUCTORY NOTE TO PROSECUTOR V. MLADIĆ (U.N. INT’L RESIDUAL MECHANISM CRIM. TRIBUNALS APP. CHAMBER)
BY STEVEN ARRIGG KOH*
[June 8, 2021]

Introduction

On June 8, 2021, the UN International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals (Mechanism) Appeals Chamber delivered its appeals judgment in Prosecutor v. Ratko Mladić. The judgment affirmed the 2017 trial judgment of Trial Chamber I of the UN International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY), which convicted Mladić, the Bosnian Serb commander, of genocide, crimes against humanity, and war crimes during the war in Bosnia between 1992 and 1995, as well as affirming his sentence of life imprisonment. This constituted Mladić’s final appeal, opening the door for his assignment to a prison somewhere in Europe.¹

Background

The Mladić case is intimately bound up in the history of the ICTY and contemporary international criminal law. As is well known, the UN Security Council established the ICTY in The Hague in 1993 to prosecute perpetrators of atrocity crimes in the Balkan region. The ICTY constituted the first modern incarnation of an international war crimes tribunal since the post-World War II Nuremberg and Tokyo tribunals. Just a year later, the Security Council established the UN International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda in Arusha, Tanzania. Both tribunals were ad hoc—created with limited jurisdiction and for a limited existence—with a unified appeals chamber in The Hague. After hundreds of prosecutions, the ICTR closed in 2015 and the ICTY closed in 2017; both were succeeded by the lower-cost Mechanism, which performs several essential functions, such as tracking and prosecution of remaining fugitives, retrials, and—most relevantly for the present purposes—appeals proceedings.²

The Mladić case straddles the historical line between the ICTY and the Mechanism. Mladić, the Commander of the Main Staff of the army of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina from 1992 to 1996, was branded the “Butcher of Bosnia” due to his notorious military reputation during the wars following the breakup of Yugoslavia in the early 1990s. In July 1995, the ICTY Prosecutor jointly indicted him and former Bosnian Serb president Radovan Karadžić, although the indictment was amended several times to include, inter alia, the charge of genocide for the humanitarian catastrophe that occurred that same month in Srebrenica. Both men subsequently evaded arrest and remained fugitives for many years. Karadžić was arrested in Serbia in 2008 and, given that Mladić was still at large, the trial proceeded on the indictment without Mladić; he was convicted in 2016. Mladić was arrested in 2011 and was convicted in 2017. The Mechanism heard the subsequent appeal.

The Appeals Chamber’s Decision

The Mladić appeals judgment both affirms the Trial Chamber’s judgment and echoes the findings of Prosecutor v. Radovan Karadžić, the aforementioned ICTY “sister case” against the former Bosnian Serb president. The key to understanding the Mladić opinion—and most ICTY legacy cases—is to think primarily through joint criminal enterprise (JCE), a mode of group criminal liability established early in the ICTY’s history. JCE resembles the American criminal law concept of conspiracy; however, the actus reus (or criminal act requirement) differs: American conspiracy, an inchoate offense, typically requires a slight “overt act,” whereas JCE requires that a group member actually perpetrate a criminal act.³ In the Mladić indictment, prosecutors alleged (1) an “overarching JCE” in which the Bosnian Serbs between 1992 and 1995 tried to remove Croats/Muslims permanently from Bosnia, plus (2–4) three “smaller” JCEs (spreading terror in Sarajevo, elimination of the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica, and taking UN personnel hostage).

*Steven Arrigg Koh is the Marianne D. Short and Ray Skowyrza Sesquicentennial Assistant Professor of Law at Boston College Law School. Previously, he served as Trial Attorney in the Criminal Division of the U.S. Department of Justice, as Associate Legal Officer in Trial Chamber III at the U.N. International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (Prosecutor v. Radovan Karadžić trial), and as a Visiting Professional in the Presidency of the International Criminal Court (ICC).

The Mechanism affirmed the ICTY Trial Chamber's 2017 finding that Mladić, as commander of the Main Staff of the Bosnian Serb army between 1992 and 1995, was part of all JCEs and thus criminally responsible for genocide, war crimes, and crimes against humanity. Much of this was expected: as an evidentiary matter, Mladić was a more straightforward case than Karadžić, given that more video and other evidence existed of Mladić "on the ground" than of President Karadžić. The notable exception was Count 1: the Mechanism affirmed the Trial Chamber's acquittal on that count, which had alleged that he perpetrated genocide in Bosnian municipalities outside of Srebrenica. In other words, the Appeals Chamber affirmed the Trial Chamber's finding that the prosecution failed to prove the specific genocidal intent to destroy a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim population. The prosecution appealed on this ground (again) and lost (again)—just as it did in Karadžić. The Appeals Chamber also affirmed the Trial Chamber's sentence of life imprisonment, the maximum sentence available under the ICTY statute.

Conclusion

The Mladić appeals judgment brings to a close the last major case that the ICTY initiated. On the one hand, Mladić powerfully exemplifies the ICTY's positive, transformative legacy. First, the ICTY plainly brought to justice the infamous "Butcher of Bosnia": the central goal of international criminal law is to achieve justice for victims,⁴ and this case certainly did that—including for the families living on in the wake of the Srebrenica massacre. Second, the conviction reaffirms the Tribunal's improbable success: the ICTY slowly built institutional legitimacy and international authority to the point where Mladić's arrest evolved into a geopolitical and moral imperative, even removing an obstacle to Serbia's push for European Union membership.⁵ And third, most broadly, the ICTY stands as a catalyzing "first mover" tribunal in a modern era of international criminal accountability that aspires to end impunity for "the most serious crimes of concern to the international community."⁶

But Mladić reminds us—almost thirty years after the ICTY's establishment—both of the limits of the "Hague tribunal" model of international criminal prosecution and the proliferation of diverse modes of international criminal accountability today. Mladić is one of the last judgments of the "Hague tribunal" institutional model, wherein the ICTY and ICTR were established and fully funded by the UN Security Council and international community. But ongoing challenges with this institutional arrangement—including the high cost and flagging perceptions of legitimacy in the Balkan region—led to the successive wave of "hybrid" tribunals. Such tribunals featured a mix of domestic and international judges in or near the location of the atrocity crimes, as in the case of the Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia, founded in 2003. A third model is the permanent International Criminal Court (ICC), created by a multilateral treaty but facing the central challenges of state party ratification and enforcement. Other tribunals, such as the Special Tribunal for Lebanon (established 2009) or the Kosovo Specialist Chambers & Specialist Prosecutor's Office (established 2017), represent variations on such models.⁷

Such international enforcement models complement and contrast with another major front in contemporary criminal law enforcement: the ongoing empowerment of domestic jurisdictions to investigate and prosecute international and transnational crime. As is well known, the ICC functions on a foundation of deferential complementarity, wherein it will only prosecute if a country is unwilling or unable to prosecute.⁸ Contemporary international investigative mechanisms share in this deference, building an evidentiary record for atrocity crimes in Myanmar and Syria, leaving formal prosecution to future national, regional, or international actors.⁹ Meanwhile, national jurisdictions such as the United States are continuing to reach abroad, asserting jurisdiction over not only atrocity crimes but also for a variety of extraterritorial offenses under the "long arm" of foreign affairs prosecutions, which may implicate both defendant rights and foreign relations more broadly.¹⁰

In sum, Mladić achieves the central, noble aim of international criminal law: ending impunity for those who have perpetrated the most serious global crimes. And—owing to both the ICTY's successes and its challenges—the case exemplifies the Hague tribunals as modern catalysts in the dynamic context of international and transnational criminal law enforcement.

I. INTRODUCTION

A. BACKGROUND

2. Mladić was born on 12 March 1942 in Božanovići, Kalinovik Municipality.¹ From 27 September 1965 until 10 May 1992, he was a member of the Yugoslav People's Army ("JNA") and held various positions in military posts throughout the former Yugoslavia.² On 12 May 1992, the Bosnian Serb Assembly appointed Mladić as Commander of the Main Staff of the Army of Republika Srpska ("VRS").³ He remained in command of the VRS Main Staff until at least 8 November 1996.⁴

3. Mladić was indicted on 24 July and 16 November 1995 and, following several amendments, the operative indictment against him was filed on 16 December 2011.⁵ The Prosecution charged Mladić with individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Articles 7(1) and 7(3) of the Statute of the ICTY ("ICTY Statute") on 11 counts of genocide, crimes against humanity, and violations of the laws or customs of war under Articles 3, 4, and 5 of the ICTY Statute.⁶ The crimes covered by the Indictment were allegedly committed between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995 on the territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina.⁷

4. The Trial Chamber acquitted Mladić of genocide under Count 1 of the Indictment⁸ and convicted him pursuant to Article 7(1) of the ICTY Statute of genocide, crimes against humanity (persecution, extermination, murder, deportation, and inhumane acts), and violations of the laws or customs of war (murder, terror, unlawful attacks on civilians, and taking of hostages).⁹ The Trial Chamber found him responsible for committing these crimes through a "leading and grave role" in four joint criminal enterprises.¹⁰

5. The Trial Chamber found that, from 12 May 1992 until 30 November 1995, Mladić participated in a joint criminal enterprise with the objective of permanently removing Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb-claimed territory in Bosnia and Herzegovina through persecution, extermination, murder, inhumane acts (forcible transfer), and deportation ("Overarching JCE"),¹¹ and convicted him of these crimes.¹²

6. The Trial Chamber further found that, between 12 May 1992 and November 1995, Mladić participated in a joint criminal enterprise with the objective of spreading terror among the civilian population of Sarajevo through a campaign of sniping and shelling ("Sarajevo JCE"),¹³ and convicted him of the crimes of terror, unlawful attacks on civilians, and murder.¹⁴

7. The Trial Chamber also found that, from the days immediately preceding 11 July 1995 to at least October 1995, Mladić participated in a joint criminal enterprise with the objective of eliminating the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by killing the men and boys and forcibly removing the women, young children, and some elderly men ("Srebrenica JCE"),¹⁵ and convicted him of the crimes of genocide, as well as persecution, inhumane acts (forcible transfer), murder, and extermination.¹⁶

8. Further, the Trial Chamber found that, from approximately 25 May 1995 to approximately 24 June 1995, Mladić participated in a joint criminal enterprise with the objective of capturing United Nations ("UN") personnel deployed in Bosnia and Herzegovina and detaining them in strategic military locations to prevent the North Atlantic Treaty Organization ("NATO") from launching further military air strikes on Bosnian Serb military targets ("Hostage-Taking JCE"),¹⁷ and convicted him of the crime of taking of hostages as a violation of the laws or customs of war.¹⁸

9. The Trial Chamber sentenced Mladić to life imprisonment.¹⁹

A. THE APPEALS

10. Mladić presents nine grounds of appeal challenging his convictions and sentence.²⁰ Mladić requests that the Appeals Chamber reverse all erroneous findings of the Trial Chamber, quash his convictions, and acquit him.²¹ In the alternative, Mladić seeks a retrial,²² or a reduction in his sentence.²³ The Prosecution responds that Mladić's appeal should be dismissed in its entirety.²⁴

11. The Prosecution presents two grounds of appeal challenging certain findings or conclusions of the Trial Chamber pertaining to the Overarching JCE and its acquittal of genocide under Count 1 of the Indictment.²⁵ The

Prosecution requests that the Appeals Chamber correct the Trial Chamber's errors²⁶ and convict Mladić of genocide under Count 1 of the Indictment pursuant to the first category of joint criminal enterprise, or alternatively, the third category of joint criminal enterprise, or as a superior under Article 7(3) of the ICTY Statute.²⁷ Mladić responds that the Prosecution's appeal should be dismissed in its entirety.²⁸

12. The Appeals Chamber heard oral submissions regarding these appeals on 25 and 26 August 2020.²⁹

III. THE APPEAL OF RATKO MLADIĆ

...

B. ALLEGED ERRORS RELATED TO THE OVERARCHING JCE (GROUND 3)

120. The Trial Chamber found that, between 1991 and 30 November 1995, the Overarching JCE existed with the objective of permanently removing Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb-claimed territory in Bosnia and Herzegovina through the crimes of persecution, extermination, murder, inhumane acts (forcible transfer), and deportation.³⁷⁶ It concluded that members of the Overarching JCE included Radovan Karadžić, Momčilo Krajišnik, Biljana Plavšić, Nikola Koljević, Bogdan Subotić, Momčilo Mandić, Mićo Stanišić, and Mladić.³⁷⁷ The Trial Chamber found that members of the Overarching JCE used units from the VRS and the Ministry of Interior of Republika Srpska ("MUP"), as well as paramilitary formations, regional and municipal authorities, and territorial defence units subordinated to or working closely with the VRS and the MUP, as "tools to commit the crimes in the Municipalities" in furtherance of the joint criminal enterprise.³⁷⁸

121. The Trial Chamber further found that Mladić, as Commander of the VRS Main Staff from 12 May 1992 until at least 8 November 1996,³⁷⁹ significantly contributed to the Overarching JCE through his acts and omissions.³⁸⁰ The Trial Chamber also found that Mladić knew crimes were committed against non-Serbs in the Municipalities, and that, through his statements and conduct, by 12 May 1992 at the latest, he shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Overarching JCE.³⁸¹

122. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in finding: (i) the existence of and his membership in the Overarching JCE; and (ii) that he significantly contributed to and shared the intent to further the Overarching JCE.³⁸² The Appeals Chamber will address these contentions in turn.

1. Alleged Errors Regarding the Overarching JCE and Mladić's Membership (Ground 3.A)

123. As recalled above, the Trial Chamber concluded that between 1991 and 30 November 1995, the Overarching JCE existed with the common objective to permanently remove Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb-claimed territory³⁸³ and that, by 12 May 1992, Mladić significantly contributed to and shared the intent of the joint criminal enterprise.³⁸⁴

124. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in finding the existence of and his membership in the Overarching JCE by: (i) improperly relying on adjudicated facts to establish the underlying crime base;³⁸⁵ (ii) accord- ing insufficient weight to exculpatory evidence in relation to his participation;³⁸⁶ and (iii) expanding the scope of the joint criminal enterprise as well as making inconsistent or erroneous findings with respect to his relationship with the Bosnian Serb leadership and his role in the VRS.³⁸⁷ He contends that, as a consequence of the Trial Chamber's errors, the Appeals Chamber should overturn his convictions in relation to the Overarching JCE, or, in the alternative, reverse findings to the extent of any errors.³⁸⁸ The Appeals Chamber will consider these arguments in turn.

(a) Reliance on Adjudicated Facts to Establish the Underlying Crimes of the Overarching JCE

125. Mladić submits that, in finding that the Overarching JCE existed, the Trial Chamber erred in its method of using adjudicated facts by: (i) relying solely on adjudicated facts that went to the acts and conduct of his proximate subordinates; and (ii) relying on adjudicated facts that were only corroborated by evidence admitted pursuant to

Rule 92 bis of the ICTY Rules (“Rule 92 bis evidence”).³⁸⁹ He argues that these errors led to a “defective evidentiary approach” in making findings on the crime base for the Overarching JCE.³⁹⁰ To illustrate the Trial Chamber’s erroneous approach, Mladić refers specifically to Scheduled Incidents B.10.2 and B.16.2,³⁹¹ and generally to 13 other scheduled incidents of the Indictment and five chapters of the Trial Judgement.³⁹² Mladić submits that, as a result of the Trial Chamber’s errors, findings in the Trial Judgement with respect to the existence of the Overarching JCE are invalidated.³⁹³

126. The Appeals Chamber will address Mladić’s contentions of error in turn. Before doing so, the Appeals Chamber recalls that adjudicated facts, within the meaning of Rule 94(B) of the ICTY Rules, are presumptions which, as such, do not require corroboration.³⁹⁴ Adjudicated facts may relate to the existence of a joint criminal enterprise, the conduct of its members other than the accused, and facts related to the conduct of physical perpetrators of crimes for which an accused is alleged to be responsible.³⁹⁵ In this context, trial chambers, after having reviewed the record as a whole, may rely on adjudicated facts to establish the underlying crime base when making findings in support of convictions.³⁹⁶

(i) Scheduled Incident B.16.2

127. With respect to Scheduled Incident B.16.2, the Trial Chamber found that:

[O]n the evening of 30 September 1992, Serb MUP officers from the [Public Security Station (“SJB”)] Vlasenica arrived at Sušica camp and, on the order of Mane Đurić [(“Đurić”)], removed 140 [to] 150 non-Serb detainees in four trips. Serbs wearing military uniforms were also present when the last group of detainees was removed by the MUP officers. The MUP officers killed all the detainees. Considering that Sušica camp comprised only Bosnian-Muslim detainees, the Trial Chamber finds that those killed were Bosnian Muslims.³⁹⁷

In making its findings on this event, the Trial Chamber considered Adjudicated Facts 1266 to 1268 as well as the evidence of Witnesses RM-066 and Ewa Tabeau.³⁹⁸ It further determined that this incident constituted murder as charged under Counts 5 and 6 of the Indictment.³⁹⁹

128. Mladić notes that to reach its findings on Scheduled Incident B.16.2, the Trial Chamber relied on Adjudicated Facts 1266 to 1268 and Prosecution evidence.⁴⁰⁰ He argues that the Prosecution evidence was insufficient on its own to establish that MUP officers caused the deaths in Scheduled Incident B.16.2.⁴⁰¹ Mladić further contends that he was unable to challenge Adjudicated Facts 1266 to 1268 through cross-examination because the Prosecution’s evidence did not corroborate the facts that proved the elements of the crime.⁴⁰² Accordingly, Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred by relying exclusively on “unchallengeable” adjudicated facts to make its findings with respect to Scheduled Incident B.16.2.⁴⁰³ Mladić also refers to his submissions in Ground 2 of his appeal that the standard imposed to rebut adjudicated facts is impermissibly high.⁴⁰⁴

129. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber properly considered the adjudicated facts to establish the crime base of the Overarching JCE and that Mladić demonstrates no error in relation to Scheduled Incident B.16.2.⁴⁰⁵ It argues that nothing prevented Mladić from bringing countervailing evidence against the adjudicated facts, and [REDACTED].⁴⁰⁶

130. The Appeals Chamber notes that, in reaching its findings on Scheduled Incident B.16.2, the Trial Chamber considered that: (i) according to Adjudicated Fact 1266, on 30 September 1992, a public burial of more than 20 Serb soldiers killed in an ambush by the ABiH was held in Vlasenica town;⁴⁰⁷ (ii) according to Adjudicated Fact 1267, during the night, three MUP officers arrived at the Sušica camp with a bus and the MUP officers removed all 140 to 150 inmates in four loads and killed them;⁴⁰⁸ and (iii) according to Adjudicated Fact 1268, the massacre was reported to the Vlasenica Crisis Staff members, who took no action except to order the dismantling of the camp and the concealment of its traces.⁴⁰⁹

131. Pursuant to the evidence of primarily Witness RM-066, the Trial Chamber further noted, inter alia, that: (i) after concerns about the safety of detainees of Sušica camp were raised with Đurić following the funeral in Vlasenica on 30 September 1992 and it was recommended to him that the detainees be transferred elsewhere until “things calmed down”, Đurić “promised to send vehicles to have the detainees transferred”,⁴¹⁰ (ii) the same evening, MUP officers from the SJB Vlasenica – including a man nicknamed “Chetnik”, a man called Garić, and Pedrag Bastah – came to Sušica camp with an order from Đurić to remove the detainees as soon as possible;⁴¹¹ (iii) the last group of detainees, consisting mostly of local Muslims from Vlasenica, was loaded onto a small bus that also carried a number of Serbs wearing military and police uniforms, and the bus was escorted by a police car carrying Chetnik, Bastah, and Garić;⁴¹² (iv) after the police officers removed the last group of detainees, a group of soldiers arrived at Sušica camp demanding to know where the Muslims were;⁴¹³ and (v) the massacre was reported to the Vlasenica Crisis Staff members, who took no action except to order the dismantling of the camp and the concealment of its traces.⁴¹⁴

132. Recalling the statement of the law above,⁴¹⁵ the Appeals Chamber considers that it was within the Trial Chamber’s discretion to rely on Adjudicated Facts 1267 and 1268 to make findings concerning the removal and killing of Bosnian Muslim detainees by MUP officers and Mladić fails to show any error in this respect. In addition to the adjudicated facts, the Trial Chamber admitted a statement and heard testimony from Witness RM-066, who stated that [REDACTED].⁴¹⁶ The Appeals Chamber further observes that the Trial Chamber considered Witness Tabeau’s evidence as well as documentary and forensic evidence regarding missing persons from Vlasenica Municipality.⁴¹⁷ On this basis, Mladić’s submission – that the Prosecution evidence the Trial Chamber relied on is insufficient to create a link between the deaths of 140 to 150 detainees and the perpetrators of the killings – is without merit.

133. The Appeals Chamber also rejects Mladić’s argument that, since the Prosecution evidence did not corroborate the adjudicated facts, he was prevented from challenging them through cross-examination.⁴¹⁸ In this respect, the Appeals Chamber notes that [REDACTED].⁴¹⁹

134. The Appeals Chamber has rejected Mladić’s submission that the burden imposed to rebut adjudicated facts is impermissibly high or that the Trial Chamber shifted the burden of proof by taking judicial notice of adjudicated facts relating to the conduct of his proximate subordinates.⁴²⁰ The Appeals Chamber recalls that taking judicial notice of an adjudicated fact serves only to relieve the Prosecution of its initial burden to produce evidence on the point, and the defence may then put the point into question by introducing reliable and credible evidence to the contrary.⁴²¹ Nothing prevented Mladić from bringing evidence to refute Adjudicated Facts 1266 to 1268. Moreover, at trial, Mladić did not appear to dispute the facts pertaining to Scheduled Incident B.16.2 or Witness RM-066’s evidence in this regard. Rather, relying on Witness RM-066’s evidence, Mladić argued that the killing of 140 to 150 detainees was perpetrated by Serb police, who were not under the effective control of the VRS or under his authority, and could not be attributed to him given the lack of actus reus or mens rea.⁴²²

135. In light of the foregoing, Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred by relying exclusively on “unchallengeable” adjudicated facts to make findings on Scheduled Incident B.16.2.

(ii) Scheduled Incident B.10.2

136. In relation to Scheduled Incident B.10.2, the Trial Chamber found that:

[O]n 14 June 1992, at least 52 detainees from the oil cisterns near the Rajlovac barracks were forced onto a bus, driven by a Serb named Žuti, who was Jovan Tintor’s driver. There were two persons stationed on the bus as guards, and the Trial Chamber understands from Elvir Jahić’s evidence, describing them as members of the “Serb army-police forces”, that they were members of the VRS military police. The bus was escorted by four vehicles. Žuti stopped the bus near the village of Sokolina, near Srednje, and he and the two military policemen exited the bus. Immediately after, they attacked the bus with automatic weapons, hand grenades, and “zoljas”, and the detainees who tried to escape were shot and killed. After the shooting, some detainees were still alive. A few minutes later, one of the vehicles that had escorted the bus, approached. The driver stepped out, entered the bus, and started firing at the bodies and survivors with an automatic rifle. He threw two hand grenades and left. In all, at least 47 of the detainees were killed, 38 of whom were found in a mass grave. Of them, 26 were found in civilian clothes. Based on the evidence of Witness RM-145 [. . .], the Trial Chamber finds that all 52 detainees were Bosnian Muslims.⁴²³

In making this finding, the Trial Chamber considered Adjudicated Fact 1229, as well as the evidence of Witnesses Elvir Jahić, RM-145, and Tabeau.⁴²⁴ It further determined that this incident constituted murder as charged under Counts 5 and 6 of the Indictment.⁴²⁵

137. Mladić notes that to reach the finding in respect of Scheduled Incident B.10.2, that at least 47 of the 52 detainees were killed by members of the VRS, the Trial Chamber relied on Adjudicated Fact 1229 which “established part of the elemental requirements”.⁴²⁶ Mladić submits that, in respect of this scheduled incident, the Trial Chamber also received the evidence of Witnesses Jahić and RM-145, which he could not challenge because it was admitted pursuant to Rule 92 bis of the ICTY Rules.⁴²⁷ He also reiterates that the burden to rebut adjudicated facts is “impermissibly high”.⁴²⁸ Accordingly, Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred by relying on “unchallengeable” adjudicated facts to establish the elements of the crime.⁴²⁹

138. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber properly considered the adjudicated facts and Rule 92 bis evidence to establish the crime base of the Overarching JCE and that Mladić demonstrates no error in relation to Scheduled Incident B.10.2.⁴³⁰ The Prosecution submits that it was within the Trial Chamber’s discretion to take judicial notice of adjudicated facts that relate to the acts and conduct of an accused’s subordinates, proximate or otherwise, and to rely on adjudicated facts alone or in combination with Rule 92 bis evidence in making crime-based incident findings.⁴³¹ The Prosecution further argues that, in any event, Mladić falsely asserts that he could not challenge or cross-examine evidence supporting Adjudicated Fact 1229, as he cross-examined Witness RM-145, whose evidence was entered through Rule 92 ter of the ICTY Rules, on events pertinent to the relevant adjudicated fact.⁴³²

139. With respect to Mladić’s submission that Adjudicated Fact 1229 was “unchallengeable” as he was not able to cross-examine the Rule 92 bis evidence led in support of it, the Appeals Chamber, recalling the law on the use of adjudicated facts, considers that it was within the Trial Chamber’s discretion to rely on Adjudicated Fact 1229 to find that at least 47 detainees from oil cisterns near Rajlovac barracks in Sokolina were killed by members of the VRS police and Mladić fails to show any error in this respect. The Appeals Chamber further considers that Mladić’s argument fails to recognize that adjudicated facts admitted under Rule 94(B) of the ICTY Rules are not the equivalent of untested evidence admitted pursuant to Rule 92 bis of the ICTY Rules.⁴³³ Furthermore, the Appeals Chamber presumes that this argument is in reference to the evidence of Witness Jahić, whose statement was admitted pursuant to Rule 92 bis of the ICTY Rules.⁴³⁴ However, this submission ignores the fact that Mladić cross-examined Witness RM-145, who also gave supporting evidence about the attack on 14 June 1992 and whose evidence the Trial Chamber considered when making its findings.⁴³⁵ Additionally, a review of the Mladić Final Trial Brief reflects that Mladić did not dispute the occurrence of the events of 14 June 1992 or the credibility of Witness RM-145’s evidence.⁴³⁶ Rather, Mladić simply argued at trial that the physical perpetrators of this event were not under the VRS’s or his command and control.⁴³⁷

140. Furthermore, the Appeals Chamber recalls that it has rejected Mladić’s submissions that the burden imposed to rebut adjudicated facts is impermissibly high and that the Trial Chamber shifted the burden of proof by taking judicial notice of adjudicated facts relating to the conduct of his proximate subordinates.⁴³⁸ The Appeals Chamber reiterates that taking judicial notice of an adjudicated fact serves only to relieve the Prosecution of its initial burden of production, and the defence may introduce reliable and credible evidence to the contrary.⁴³⁹ As with Scheduled Incident B.16.2, nothing prevented Mladić from bringing evidence to refute Adjudicated Fact 1229 with respect to Scheduled Incident B.10.2. There is no indication that he presented such evidence.

141. Given the foregoing, Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred by relying on an “unchallengeable” adjudicated fact in making findings on Scheduled Incident B.10.2.

(iii) Other Scheduled Incidents

142. Mladić submits that, similar to Scheduled Incidents B.10.2 and B.16.2, the Trial Chamber also took a “defective evidentiary approach” in relation to 13 other scheduled incidents and five chapters of the Trial Judgment.⁴⁴⁰ According to Mladić, these comprise Scheduled Incidents A.4.4, A.6.4, A.6.6, A.6.7, A.7.2, A.7.4, A.7.5, B.1.1, B.1.2, B.10.1, B.13.3, B.13.4, and C.6.1, as well as Chapters 4.2.4, 4.3.6, 4.5.5, 4.5.6, and 4.8.7 of the Trial Judgement.⁴⁴¹ He contends that this approach occurred systematically in establishing the crime base for the Overarching JCE.⁴⁴²

143. The Prosecution responds that Mladić's challenge to these 13 other incidents, amounting to a single sentence in his appellant's brief, fails to identify any error and should be summarily dismissed.⁴⁴³

144. The Appeals Chamber observes that, in this respect, Mladić merely enumerates scheduled incidents of the Indictment and chapters of the Trial Judgement without making any attempt to substantiate his allegation of a "defective evidentiary approach".⁴⁴⁴ Consequently, Mladić fails to satisfy his burden on appeal⁴⁴⁵ and his submissions in this regard are dismissed.

(iv) Conclusion

145. In light of the foregoing considerations, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić has failed to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber committed any error in its method of relying on adjudicated facts when making findings on the underlying crimes of the Overarching JCE.

(b) Assessment of Exculpatory Evidence of Mladić's Membership in the Overarching JCE

146. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in finding that he was a member of the Overarching JCE by disregarding or giving insufficient weight to direct and exculpatory evidence that he acted in opposition to the common criminal objective of the joint criminal enterprise.⁴⁴⁶ He points to evidence of his "positive attitude and behaviour" towards Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilians,⁴⁴⁷ including: (i) evidence of his care for non-Serb civilians during the conflict,⁴⁴⁸ as well as evidence that they remained in their municipalities during the conflict⁴⁴⁹ and were given a choice to leave or remain in their villages;⁴⁵⁰ (ii) evidence that he reported concerns to Karadžić and the Minister of the Interior about the commission of crimes by "MUP forces" against non-Serbs, and that he called for affirmative action to be taken;⁴⁵¹ and (iii) excerpts from his military notebooks containing direct evidence of constraints he experienced in the Municipalities and the protection he intended to provide to non-Serbs.⁴⁵² The Appeals Chamber will consider these arguments in turn.

(i) Evidence of Care for Non-Serb Civilians

147. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient or any weight to evidence of his positive attitude and behaviour toward Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilians through his "concerted efforts to take care of civilians" and the measures employed to provide security for Bosnian Muslim villagers during the conflict.⁴⁵³ In support, he points to minutes of a Pale Municipal Assembly meeting,⁴⁵⁴ as well as the evidence of Witnesses Branko Basara,⁴⁵⁵ Safet Gagula,⁴⁵⁶ RM-802,⁴⁵⁷ and Sveto Veselinović.⁴⁵⁸

148. Mladić further submits that the Trial Chamber did not include in its reasoning the evidence of Witnesses Slavko Mijanović,⁴⁵⁹ Mile Ujić,⁴⁶⁰ and Elvedin Pašić⁴⁶¹ – stating that non-Serbs remained in their municipalities during the conflict.⁴⁶² He also contends that the Trial Chamber erroneously found Witness Vinko Nikolić's evidence, that over 8,000 Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats continued to live in Sanski Most Municipality, unreliable and did not give sufficient weight to the witness's clarification during cross-examination that over 4,400 Bosnian Muslims remained.⁴⁶³ Mladić argues that the Trial Chamber also failed to provide analysis of the probative value of evidence from Witness RM-009 that Bosnian Muslims "left their villages freely",⁴⁶⁴ and from Witness Dragiša Masal that Mladić made concerted efforts to give civilians the choice of remaining or leaving municipalities, and to allow unarmed individuals to farm the land and receive humanitarian aid.⁴⁶⁵ According to Mladić, the Trial Chamber did not take this evidence into account when making its findings.⁴⁶⁶

149. The Prosecution responds that Mladić did not act to protect non-Serbs, that he repeats arguments that failed at trial without showing any error, and that the Trial Chamber expressly considered the evidence that he points to in his appellant's brief.⁴⁶⁷ Regarding the alleged voluntary departure of non-Serbs, the Prosecution responds that Mladić ignores the Trial Chamber's express rejection of this argument at trial, and that those who requested to leave never returned out of fear or because their homes were torched.⁴⁶⁸ The Prosecution further submits that the Trial Chamber reasonably concluded that Witness Vinko Nikolić's evidence was not sufficiently reliable to rebut

the adjudicated fact that almost all Bosnian Muslims had left Sanski Most by the end of 1992 because the witness admitted that his estimates were without basis.⁴⁶⁹ According to the Prosecution, Mladić's mere assertions that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to pieces of supposedly "exculpatory evidence" warrant summary dismissal.⁴⁷⁰

150. Mladić replies that the Prosecution does not directly engage with his submissions and fails to undermine his arguments that the Trial Chamber failed to afford certain evidence sufficient weight.⁴⁷¹

151. Regarding Mladić's claim that he made concerted efforts to take care of non-Serb civilians,⁴⁷² the Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber expressly considered evidence to which Mladić refers on appeal. In particular, the Trial Chamber noted: (i) the relevant Pale Municipal Assembly meeting minutes that the Pale SJB were to guarantee the safety of non-Serb civilians;⁴⁷³ (ii) Witness Basara's evidence that members of his brigade in the VRS protected civilians in Muslim villages in Sanski Most Municipality;⁴⁷⁴ (iii) Witness Gagula's statement that, while Serb representatives in Knežina, Sokolac Municipality indicated that they would protect Muslim civilians, many Muslims left the village in the second half of May 1992 and significantly toward the end of June 1992;⁴⁷⁵ (iv) Witness RM-802's evidence that Bosnian Serb political authorities made preparations to take care of the Muslim civilian population by lining up buses to transport the women, children, and the elderly out of Večići, Kotor Varoš Municipality;⁴⁷⁶ and (v) Witness Veselinović's evidence regarding the treatment of refugees and Bosnian Muslims in Rogatica Municipality.⁴⁷⁷

152. The Trial Chamber nevertheless found that regarding: (i) Pale Municipality, between late June and early July 1992, over 2,000 Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croats involuntarily left in convoys escorted by the Pale SJB;⁴⁷⁸ (ii) Sanski Most Municipality, Witness Basara's evidence was not credible and unpersuasive in light of a "large amount of reliable evidence" showing that the VRS was involved in transfers and evacuations, and that it carried out attacks and shelling campaigns to "mop up" predominantly Muslim villages and hamlets;⁴⁷⁹ (iii) Sokolac Municipality, Bosnian Muslims in, inter alia, Knežina fled their homes from 12 May 1992 onwards due to perceived threats of violence and the lack of protection from municipal authorities;⁴⁸⁰ (iv) Kotor Varoš Municipality, between June and November 1992, large parts of the non-Serb population were involuntarily moved out, including in Večići, in convoys by, inter alia, members of the VRS, MUP, and Kotor Varoš Crisis Staff;⁴⁸¹ and (v) Rogatica Municipality, thousands of Muslims involuntarily left starting in May 1992 as a result of fear generated by threats and violence, and that the perpetrators of these displacements were members of the VRS.⁴⁸²

153. The Appeals Chamber further observes that the excerpt of Witness Veselinović's evidence, to which Mladić points, concerned efforts taken by Serb municipal authorities to protect exclusively Serb refugees,⁴⁸³ rather than non-Serbs. Having reviewed the foregoing evidence cited by Mladić, the Appeals Chamber notes that none relates to his personal actions or demonstrates his efforts to provide care or security for Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilians. The Appeals Chamber therefore finds that Mladić's cursory submissions fail to substantiate his claim that the Trial Chamber erred by giving insufficient weight to evidence of his care for non-Serb civilians.

154. The Appeals Chamber now turns to Mladić's arguments that the Trial Chamber did not include in its reasoning evidence that non-Serbs remained in their municipalities during the conflict and that he made concerted efforts to give civilians the choice to remain or leave.⁴⁸⁴ Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber failed to include Exhibit D799, Witness Mijanović's statement, in its analysis on findings related to Ilidža Municipality.⁴⁸⁵ A review of the Trial Judgement indicates that the Trial Chamber expressly referred to Exhibit D799 and summarized Witness Mijanović's evidence that, inter alia, the Serb authorities in Ilidža Municipality did not expel non-Serbs.⁴⁸⁶ The Trial Chamber found that, aside from one specific incident,⁴⁸⁷ it did not receive any evidence "indicating that residents [in Ilidža] were forcibly displaced".⁴⁸⁸ In view of this finding, the Appeals Chamber considers that there was no need for the Trial Chamber to discuss Exhibit D799 further and Mladić does not show any error in this respect.

155. Regarding the Trial Chamber's alleged failure to discuss in its reasoning Exhibit D691, Witness Ujić's statement that non-Serbs remained in Rogatica Municipality during the conflict,⁴⁸⁹ the Appeals Chamber observes that the paragraphs of the Trial Judgement that Mladić challenges in this respect do not concern Rogatica, but other municipalities, namely Ilidža and Kotor Varoš.⁴⁹⁰ Mladić identifies no reason why the Trial Chamber should have considered this evidence when addressing crimes in other municipalities and fails to demonstrate any error in this respect. The Appeals Chamber notes that, in any event, the Trial Chamber expressly referred to Witness Ujić's evidence, including Exhibit D691, in relation to events in Rogatica Municipality.⁴⁹¹

156. The Appeals Chamber is also not convinced by Mladić's submission that the Trial Chamber erred by not including in its analysis Witness Pašić's testimony that non-Serbs remained in the Kotor Varoš Municipality during the conflict.⁴⁹² The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber explicitly considered relevant portions of Witness Pašić's testimony regarding the flight of 50 to 70 Bosnian Muslims from the village of Hrvaćani in mid-1992 and the fate of those who remained.⁴⁹³ The Trial Chamber found, based on the totality of evidence, that between June and November 1992, large parts of the non-Serb population in Kotor Varoš Municipality were forcibly displaced by, inter alios, members of the VRS, MUP, and Kotor Varoš Crisis Staff.⁴⁹⁴ In doing so, the Trial Chamber explicitly recalled Witness Pašić's testimony that a "group of 50 to 70 Muslims" encountered Serb soldiers, who told the group "there was nothing left for them in Hrvaćani and that they should go to Turkey".⁴⁹⁵ Mladić simply isolates portions of Witness Pašić's testimony that support his position and ignores the rest of the witness's evidence and the Trial Chamber's findings regarding events in Kotor Varoš Municipality. His arguments therefore fail to establish any error in the Trial Chamber's assessment of Witness Pašić's evidence or in its finding that non-Serbs involuntarily left the municipality.

157. As to Mladić's contention regarding Witness Vinko Nikolić, the Appeals Chamber is not convinced that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to the witness's "clarification" made during cross-examination.⁴⁹⁶ In summarizing the evidence concerning Sanski Most Municipality, the Trial Chamber stated that Witness Vinko Nikolić estimated that more than 8,000 Muslims and Croats continued to live in the municipality during the war.⁴⁹⁷ During the witness's cross-examination, this number was challenged by the Prosecution, who stated that by February 1995, the Banja Luka State Security Service estimated around 4,400 non-Serbs remaining in Sanski Most.⁴⁹⁸ When asked to clarify his estimate of 8,000, Witness Vinko Nikolić stated that the number included "Muslims and Croats", that it was a "[f]ree estimate", and that he "spontaneously came up with that number".⁴⁹⁹ The Appeals Chamber notes that, contrary to Mladić's submission,⁵⁰⁰ at no point during the cross-examination did the witness "clarify" his estimate. The Trial Chamber explicitly considered that the witness's estimate of 8,000 had no basis, and that the witness could not justify this figure in light of evidence indicating a "significantly lower" number.⁵⁰¹ It therefore considered the witness's evidence insufficiently reliable.⁵⁰² In the view of the Appeals Chamber, Mladić fails to show any error in the Trial Chamber's assessment of Witness Vinko Nikolić's evidence.

158. Turning to Mladić's contention that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to evidence that Bosnian Muslims left their villages freely and submitted requests to return, the Appeals Chamber notes that he relies on Exhibit P843, a statement from Witness RM-009, and Exhibit P854, a December 1992 report from the Kotor Varoš Light Brigade.⁵⁰³ In Exhibit P843, Witness RM-009 stated that in mid-1992 at least 50 buses full of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats left Kotor Varoš Municipality.⁵⁰⁴ The witness specified that "[t]hey were leaving freely, in the sense that they were not forced in the buses, but the main reason for this was because they were afraid of what would happen to them if they stayed. The non-Serb population was under pressure and I would say that they were persecuted."⁵⁰⁵ The witness also noted that thousands of non-Serbs left "[b]ecause of the crimes that were committed against them by either the special unit or the military personnel".⁵⁰⁶ The Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber duly considered this evidence,⁵⁰⁷ as well as Exhibit P854, indicating that many Bosnian Muslims were submitting requests to return to their villages.⁵⁰⁸ The Trial Chamber considered, however, that according to Witness RM-009's testimony, such requests would have been submitted to and approved by the local war presidency, "but these people never returned".⁵⁰⁹ The Appeals Chamber further observes that, in relation to Kotor Varoš specifically, the Trial Chamber rejected the Defence arguments that people voluntarily made the decision to leave.⁵¹⁰ Recalling its findings that Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in Kotor Varoš faced, inter alia, restrictions on their freedom of movement, limited access to medical care, dismissals from employment, killings, unlawful detention, as well as cruel and inhumane treatment, the Trial Chamber found that non-Serb civilians who left the municipality "did not have a genuine choice but to leave".⁵¹¹ The Appeals Chamber considers that Mladić relies on an isolated excerpt of Witness RM-009's evidence and ignores the entirety of the evidence, demonstrating that non-Serbs left Kotor Varoš Municipality involuntarily.⁵¹² Mladić therefore does not demonstrate any error in the Trial Chamber's assessment of evidence in this regard.

159. The Appeals Chamber finally turns to Mladić's submission that the Trial Chamber disregarded Exhibit D942, Witness Masal's evidence that Mladić made concerted efforts to give civilians the choice to leave or remain and that he allowed unarmed individuals to farm the land and receive humanitarian aid.⁵¹³ The Appeals Chamber observes that the paragraphs of the Trial Judgement Mladić challenges in this respect relate to Kotor Varoš and Sanski Most Municipalities, neither of which is mentioned in the excerpt of Exhibit D942 on which Mladić relies.⁵¹⁴ Mladić makes no argument as to why the Trial Chamber should have considered the evidence he points to when assessing crimes in Kotor Varoš and Sanski Most Municipalities. Mladić therefore fails to identify any error in this respect.

160. Given that Mladić does not demonstrate an error with respect to any of the pieces of evidence to which he points on appeal, the Appeals Chamber dismisses his contention that the Trial Chamber, in assessing his membership in the Overarching JCE, erred in failing to address or give sufficient weight to evidence of his efforts to provide care to non-Serbs or evidence that they remained or voluntarily left their villages during the conflict.

(ii) Evidence that Mladić Reported Concerns to Karadžić and the Minister of the Interior

161. In alleging that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to his actions protecting the non-Serb population who remained in the Municipalities, Mladić refers to Exhibits D1503 and P3095 to demonstrate that he reported concerns to Karadžić, the President of Republika Srpska, and the Minister of the Interior about the commission of crimes by MUP forces against the non-Serb population and that he called for "affirmative action" to be taken.⁵¹⁵

162. The Prosecution responds that Mladić exaggerates the exculpatory value of his reports to Karadžić and the Minister of the Interior about crimes committed against non-Serbs.⁵¹⁶ The Prosecution submits that Mladić's reports were about Željko Ražnatović ("Arkan") and his paramilitary unit, which were not found to be part of the Overarching JCE.⁵¹⁷ Additionally, the Prosecution contends that these reports requested action to be taken against Arkan's paramilitary unit only towards the end of the conflict and that they reveal Mladić being "predominantly concerned about [the] abuse of VRS members and looting of army materiel".⁵¹⁸

163. Mladić replies that the Prosecution does not directly engage with his submissions and fails to undermine his arguments that the Trial Chamber failed to afford certain evidence sufficient weight.⁵¹⁹

164. The Appeals Chamber notes that Exhibit D1503 is a letter from Mladić to Karadžić, dated 20 October 1995, reporting on the activities of Arkan's paramilitary unit.⁵²⁰ The Appeals Chamber observes that Mladić's reference to "MUP forces" in relation to Arkan or his paramilitary unit is a misinterpretation of the Trial Judgement. While Mladić argued at trial that Arkan's paramilitary unit was subordinated to the MUP, the Trial Chamber did not make any finding on this matter in light of its findings that there was insufficient evidence to show that Arkan participated in the realization of the Overarching JCE.⁵²¹ In the letter, Mladić stated that the "general behaviour and individual acts" of Arkan's paramilitary unit have complicated the situation in the field and "spread fear among the population".⁵²² He further presented 12 "verified reports" of "extremely inhumane, unscrupulous and ruthless conduct" of Arkan's paramilitary unit towards "the population and VRS members",⁵²³ such as: (i) threatening, arresting, physically abusing, maltreating, beating, using firearms to inflict wounds, and humiliating officers and privates;⁵²⁴ (ii) seizing military equipment, weapons, documents of VRS officers, and expensive cars from the VRS without authorization;⁵²⁵ (iii) looting and wantonly destroying abandoned houses;⁵²⁶ and (iv) murdering 11 non-Serbs in Sanski Most and one member of the VRS near Novi Grad.⁵²⁷ In the letter, Mladić stated that he had issued orders to remove paramilitary formations that had refused to submit to the VRS, and that he expected Karadžić to prohibit such conduct.⁵²⁸

165. The Appeals Chamber observes that, referring to Exhibit D1503, the Trial Chamber discussed the evidence that Mladić had informed Karadžić about crimes committed by Arkan's paramilitary unit, including the murder of 11 non-Serbs in Sanski Most, and that Mladić had expected Karadžić to prohibit the continued presence of this group.⁵²⁹ While the Trial Chamber did not expressly refer to Exhibit P3095 in the Trial Judgement, such an omission is not erroneous. In this regard, Exhibit P3095 is a letter, dated 24 September 1995, from Mladić to the President and the Minister of the Interior of Republika Srpska, complaining that Arkan's paramilitary unit was not under VRS command, was abusing VRS officers and looting VRS material, was causing armed clashes, and was upsetting the population at large by "liquidat[ing] a certain number of loyal Muslim citizens, including family members of some VRS servicemen".⁵³⁰ In this letter, Mladić also requested that, inter alia, Karadžić revoke power given to Arkan and that the MUP take measures against Arkan.⁵³¹ Exhibits P3095 and D1503 are therefore similar in nature – both are from autumn 1995, reveal Mladić's strong disapproval of criminal acts committed by Arkan's paramilitary unit, and address Karadžić, stating that action should be taken to prohibit the paramilitary group's operation.⁵³²

166. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber concludes that the Trial Chamber did consider evidence that Mladić reported concerns to Karadžić and the Minister of the Interior about the commission of crimes against the non-Serb population, and that he called for action to be taken. In assessing his contribution to the Overarching JCE, the Trial Chamber also considered evidence that Mladić noted crimes committed by paramilitary groups and that he ordered their disarmament.⁵³³ Mladić therefore fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber disregarded evidence or gave insufficient weight to his actions protecting the non-Serb population who remained in the Municipalities when determining his participation in the Overarching JCE.

(iii) Evidence from Mladić's Notebook Entries of Constraints During the War and Assistance Provided to Non-Serbs

167. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred by not giving sufficient weight to his military notebook entries that contain direct evidence of the constraints he faced during the war⁵³⁴ as well as the protection he intended to provide Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.⁵³⁵ He states that the Trial Chamber relied on his notebooks "only four times" in its analysis of crimes that occurred in the Municipalities.⁵³⁶

168. The Prosecution responds that Mladić fails to demonstrate any error in the Trial Chamber's analysis of his notebook entries or substantiate how his purported intention to protect non-Serbs could impact the findings in the Trial Judgement regarding his contributions to the Overarching JCE.⁵³⁷

169. Regarding the alleged constraints he faced, Mladić points to his notebook entries (Exhibits P353 and P356),⁵³⁸ indicating, inter alia, that the VRS had issues with morale and discipline in the army as well as control over paramilitary formations,⁵³⁹ with the lack of cooperation between civilian and military structures,⁵⁴⁰ and with the provision of ammunition and military equipment.⁵⁴¹ The Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber considered Exhibits P353 and P356 with respect to issues regarding the declining morale in the army,⁵⁴² discipline in paramilitary formations,⁵⁴³ the shortage of ammunition,⁵⁴⁴ as well as the provision and financing of soldiers to the VRS.⁵⁴⁵ Beyond these specific exhibits, the Trial Chamber considered other evidence concerning the lack of discipline in the VRS,⁵⁴⁶ the "imperfect functioning of [the] military and civilian justice branches",⁵⁴⁷ as well as plundering and "war profiteering" by members of the VRS as well as paramilitary units.⁵⁴⁸ Mladić ignores the Trial Chamber's rejection of Defence arguments regarding the lack of loyalty and obedience to the VRS command. The Trial Chamber found that "occasional indiscipline in the VRS did not undermine Mladić's overall ability to exercise command and control over his subordinates".⁵⁴⁹ The Appeals Chamber therefore concludes that the Trial Chamber did consider evidence of the constraints Mladić faced during the war and further finds that, given its broad discretion in evidence assessment,⁵⁵⁰ Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to such evidence.

170. With respect to the "protection he intended" to provide to non-Serbs, Mladić refers to his notebook entries (Exhibits P353 and P356) as well as two orders he issued in 1992 and 1994, respectively (Exhibits D1514 and D187).⁵⁵¹ A review of the excerpt of Exhibit P353 to which Mladić points indicates that, in a conversation between Mladić and Colonel Petar Salapura in mid-July 1992, it was raised that the "people of Podžeplje (Muslims) [we]re asking to be given flour supplies".⁵⁵² The following text appears immediately after: "Decision: → provide the basic foodstuffs, flour and oil".⁵⁵³ While the Trial Chamber did not explicitly refer to this aspect of Exhibit P353, the Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber considered extensive evidence about the delivery and restriction of humanitarian aid in the territory of Republika Srpska between 1992 and 1995.⁵⁵⁴ This includes evidence that Mladić allowed the provision of aid to civilian populations of the "opposing side".⁵⁵⁵ Based on evidence in the record, the Trial Chamber found that, while Mladić initially showed willingness to allow the passage of humanitarian aid through Republika Srpska in 1992 and 1993, his orders and conduct became “increasingly obstructive” in 1994 and 1995.⁵⁵⁶ It subsequently considered his restrictions on humanitarian aid from 10 April 1994 onwards to be a factor in determining that he significantly contributed to the Overarching JCE.⁵⁵⁷ Mladić fails to demonstrate any error in the Trial Chamber’s assessment of the evidence in this regard.

171. The Appeals Chamber now turns to allegations of error with respect to Exhibits D1514 and D187. The Appeals Chamber observes that Exhibit D1514 is an order issued by Mladić on 28 November 1992 to the Commander of the VRS Drina Corps, Rogatica Brigade.⁵⁵⁸ According to this exhibit, “unknown persons [had] disturbed [the] Muslim population in S. Burati and Vrhbarje” and Mladić ordered the Commander of the Rogatica Brigade to, inter alia: (i) immediately take measures to protect the Muslim population in these villages from possible violence, because they expressed loyalty to Republika Srpska; and (ii) explain to soldiers and units that “any violence against the people of these villages will be politically harmful for Republika Srpska, its army and the Serbian people in general”.⁵⁵⁹ The Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber discussed this exhibit at paragraph 4524 of the Trial Judgement.⁵⁶⁰ Mladić’s submission that the Trial Chamber failed to consider this evidence is therefore without merit.

172. Exhibit D187 is an order that Mladić issued on 16 April 1994 regarding the treatment of civilians and prisoners of war in Goražde.⁵⁶¹ This exhibit reflects Mladić’s statement that:

[v]ia global media the Muslim propaganda keeps launching disinformation that the members of the VRS started a total annihilation of [the] Muslim population in order to compromise [Republika Srpska] and force the UN Security Council to make resolutions which are unfavourable to the Serbs.⁵⁶²

On this basis, Mladić ordered, inter alia, that: (i) “cruel treatments are severely forbidden, as well as abuse and physical destruction of civil[ian] population, prisoners of war and members of the international organizations”; (ii) all members of the VRS are duty-bound to protect the civilian population in Goražde by transferring them to more adequate locations; (iii) all prisoners of war “are to be treated in compliance with the international law of war”; and (iv) all members of international organizations are to be sheltered on the territory of Republika Srpska.⁵⁶³ While this exhibit is not explicitly referenced in the Trial Judgement, the Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber considered evidence of a similar nature, namely evidence concerning the protection of civilians and prisoners of war as well as courteous treatment of foreigners.⁵⁶⁴ Given that the Trial Chamber is presumed to have considered all evidence and is not obligated to refer to every piece of evidence on the record,⁵⁶⁵ and observing that the Trial Chamber considered evidence of a similar nature, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to such evidence.

173. The Appeals Chamber observes that, in assessing his significant contribution to the Overarching JCE, the Trial Chamber considered arguments and evidence that Mladić disseminated orders and instructions to subordinates to, inter alia: (i) follow the laws and regulations of the VRS, Republika Srpska, international humanitarian law, customary laws of war, and other international laws; and (ii) protect the civilian population.⁵⁶⁶ The Trial Chamber concluded, however, that despite such orders, the Bosnian Serb military and civilian justice system failed to investigate crimes and arrest or punish perpetrators – members of the VRS or Serb forces – who committed crimes against non-Serbs.⁵⁶⁷ Regarding the treatment of prisoners of war, the Trial Chamber considered evidence that Mladić deliberately misled the international community on the conditions in camps, and “attempted to conceal the crimes committed therein by portraying the camp[] conditions in a more favourable light”.⁵⁶⁸ Given the Trial Chamber’s findings and assessment of evidence on the record, Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred by not considering or giving sufficient weight to evidence concerning the “protection he intended” to provide to non-Serbs when determining his participation in the Overarching JCE.

(iv) Conclusion

174. In light of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in its assessment of the evidence to which he points and purports to be exculpatory relating to his membership in the Overarching JCE.

(c) Alleged Errors Regarding the Scope of and Mladić's Participation in the Overarching JCE

175. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber expanded the Overarching JCE to include the entirety of 1991 and included the actions and speeches of politicians from a period during which he was absent, undermining the conclusion that he was part of the common plan of the Overarching JCE.⁵⁶⁹ He also contends that the Trial Chamber was “inconsistent” in its interpretation of his interactions with other members of the Overarching JCE – finding that he had “influence” over and “was subject” to the political leadership.⁵⁷⁰ Mladić finally argues that the Trial Chamber gave undue weight to his role in establishing the VRS and that he directed military operations in furtherance of the war effort and in compliance with duties delegated to him by Karadžić.⁵⁷¹

176. The Prosecution responds that Mladić's submissions show no error in the Trial Chamber's analysis of his participation in the Overarching JCE or inconsistency in his influential capacity with respect to the political leadership.⁵⁷² According to the Prosecution, the Trial Chamber reasonably found that Mladić contributed to the Overarching JCE through his command and control of the VRS.⁵⁷³

177. Turning to Mladić's contention that the Trial Chamber expanded the scope of the Overarching JCE to include 1991, which included actions and speeches from a period during which he was absent, the Appeals Chamber recalls that joint criminal enterprise liability requires: (i) a plurality of persons; (ii) the existence of a common purpose which amounts to, or involves, the commission of a crime; and (iii) the participation of the accused in the common purpose.⁵⁷⁴ In this case, prior to its assessment of whether Mladić was part of the Overarching JCE, the Trial Chamber found that the Overarching JCE existed from 1991 until 30 November 1995⁵⁷⁵ and that the plurality of persons included members of the Bosnian Serb leadership.⁵⁷⁶ The Trial Chamber found that Mladić only contributed and shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Overarching JCE by 12 May 1992 at the latest.⁵⁷⁷ The Trial Chamber's assessment of the existence of the Overarching JCE was therefore independent of its assessment of Mladić's participation. Mladić fails to show that, to determine whether the Overarching JCE existed in 1991, the Trial Chamber erroneously expanded the scope of the joint criminal enterprise or erroneously considered the conduct and speeches of the Bosnian Serb leadership prior to Mladić's participation.⁵⁷⁸

178. The Appeals Chamber is also not convinced that the Trial Chamber erred in its interpretation of Mladić's interactions with other members of the Overarching JCE.⁵⁷⁹ Having reviewed the impugned paragraphs in the Trial Judgement, the Appeals Chamber observes that they contain a summary of the evidence and findings on, inter alia, Mladić's control and authority over the VRS⁵⁸⁰ as well as his participation in Bosnian Serb Assembly meetings and relationship with the Bosnian Serb political leadership.⁵⁸¹ In particular, the Trial Chamber recalled evidence and considered arguments that Mladić was not a member of the Supreme Command of the VRS (“Supreme Command”)⁵⁸² and did not have voting rights within the Bosnian Serb Assembly, but that he was invited to attend meetings between 1992 and 1995 to brief the Supreme Command on the military situation.⁵⁸³ The Trial Chamber also found that he actively participated in policy discussions in the Bosnian Serb Assembly,⁵⁸⁴ often suggested to Bosnian Serb politicians what position they should take during peace negotiations,⁵⁸⁵ and addressed policy issues in detail “with the purpose of influencing” the Bosnian Serb political leadership in its decision-making.⁵⁸⁶ The Appeals Chamber considers that, contrary to Mladić's submissions, the Trial Chamber did not make “inconsistent interpretations” of his interactions with the members of the Overarching JCE, but rather clearly found that Mladić actively participated in high-level political discussions with the purpose of influencing political decisions. His contentions in this regard are therefore without merit and fail to identify any error.

179. As to Mladić's submission that the Trial Chamber gave undue weight to his role as Commander of the VRS and that he directed military operations in furtherance of the war effort and in compliance with duties delegated to him by Karadžić, the Appeals Chamber recalls that in order to hold an accused responsible pursuant to joint criminal enterprise liability, it must be established that he or she performed acts that in some way were directed to the furthering of the common plan or purpose of the joint criminal enterprise.⁵⁸⁷ These acts need not be criminal per se but they may take the form of assistance in, or contribution to, the execution of the common objective or purpose.⁵⁸⁸ Moreover, the fact that the participation of the accused amounted to no more than his or her “routine duties” will not exculpate the accused.⁵⁸⁹

180. The Appeals Chamber notes the Trial Chamber’s conclusion that between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995, members of the VRS committed crimes in furtherance of the Overarching JCE in the Municipalities.⁵⁹⁰ In finding that Mladić participated in the Overarching JCE, the Trial Chamber concluded that he, inter alia: (i) was the Commander of the VRS Main Staff; (ii) issued orders regarding the establishment and operations of the VRS; (iii) had knowledge of crimes being committed against non-Serbs in the Municipalities by his subordinates; (iv) deliberately misled the media and international community about crimes committed on the ground; (v) had the authority but did not take appropriate or further steps to investigate or punish perpetrators of crimes; (vi) placed severe restrictions on the delivery of humanitarian aid; and (vii) repeatedly used derogatory terms to refer to Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats as well as introduced and controlled a centralized system of spreading propaganda related to Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.⁵⁹¹ Given the Trial Chamber’s findings on Mladić’s acts and conduct furthering the Overarching JCE and in line with the jurisprudence that performing routine duties will not exculpate the accused,⁵⁹² the Appeals Chamber considers it inconsequential that Mladić, as Commander of the VRS Main Staff, was acting in accordance with his obligations as delegated to him by Karadžić.⁵⁹³ The Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić therefore fails to show that the Trial Chamber committed any error in this regard.

(d) Conclusion

181. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, dismisses Ground 3.A of Mladić’s appeal.

2. Alleged Errors Regarding Significant Contribution and Mens Rea (Ground 3.B)

182. As recalled above, the Trial Chamber found that Mladić significantly contributed to achieving the objective of the Overarching JCE to permanently remove Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb-claimed territory in Bosnia and Herzegovina through the crimes of persecution, extermination, murder, inhumane acts (forcible transfer), and deportation.⁵⁹⁴ The Trial Chamber further found that Mladić shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Overarching JCE through the commission of the above-noted crimes, and that he held this intent by 12 May 1992 at the latest.⁵⁹⁵

183. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in finding that he significantly contributed to and intended to participate in the Overarching JCE.⁵⁹⁶ He requests that the Appeals Chamber reverse his convictions based on the first form of joint criminal enterprise, or that it reverse them to the extent of any error identified.⁵⁹⁷ The Appeals Chamber will address his contentions in turn.

(a) Significant Contribution

184. The Trial Chamber found, in Chapters 9.3.2 through 9.3.12 of the Trial Judgement, that Mladić’s acts and omissions during the existence of the Overarching JCE were so instrumental to the commission of the crimes that without them the crimes would not have been committed as they were, and that, therefore, Mladić significantly contributed to achieving the objective of the Overarching JCE.⁵⁹⁸ This conclusion rested on findings that Mladić: (i) between May 1992 and at least October 1995, issued orders regarding the establishment and organization of VRS organs and corps, including assignments and promotions;⁵⁹⁹ (ii) from May 1992 until 1995, held daily briefings and occasional meetings with VRS Main Staff officers and corps commanders, regularly visited and inspected VRS units, and issued orders and directives to VRS units and other groups;⁶⁰⁰ (iii) tasked brigade commanders of the VRS First Krajina Corps to cooperate with the MUP;⁶⁰¹ (iv) from May 1992 to October 1995, was in direct contact with members of the leadership in Serbia and members of the Yugoslav Army (“VJ”) General Staff to ensure the military needs of the VRS were met;⁶⁰² (v) addressed the Bosnian Serb Assembly during several of its sessions on issues surrounding the development of policies of the Bosnian Serb political leadership, and often suggested to Bosnian

Serb politicians what position they should take during peace negotiations in order to achieve the strategic objectives as initially defined;⁶⁰³ (vi) between September 1992 and at least March 1995, introduced and maintained a controlled and centralized system of spreading propaganda related to Bosnian Croats and Bosnian Muslims;⁶⁰⁴ (vii) made deliberately misleading statements to members of the media and international community in relation to crimes committed on the ground;⁶⁰⁵ (viii) did not take appropriate or further steps to investigate or punish perpetrators of crimes;⁶⁰⁶ and (ix) placed severe restrictions on the delivery of humanitarian aid from 10 April 1994 onwards.⁶⁰⁷

185. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in finding that he significantly contributed to the Overarching JCE.⁶⁰⁸ Specifically, he challenges the Trial Chamber's findings that: (i) he had command and control over members of the MUP;⁶⁰⁹ (ii) he had command and control over VRS forces,⁶¹⁰ and (iii) he failed to adequately investigate and/or punish crimes.⁶¹¹ Mladić submits that, as a consequence of errors in the Trial Judgement, the Trial Chamber's findings on his guilt under the first form of joint criminal enterprise are invalidated as, inter alia, the element of actus reus cannot be considered to have been proven beyond a reasonable doubt.⁶¹²

186. The Appeals Chamber recalls that for an accused to be found criminally liable on the basis of joint criminal enterprise liability, a trial chamber must be satisfied that the accused acted in furtherance of the common purpose of a joint criminal enterprise in the sense that he significantly contributed to the commission of the crimes involved in the common purpose.⁶¹³ An accused's contribution need not be necessary or substantial,⁶¹⁴ it need not involve the commission of a crime,⁶¹⁵ and the law does not foresee specific types of conduct which per se could not be considered a contribution to a joint criminal enterprise.⁶¹⁶

(i) Command and Control Over Members of the MUP

187. The Trial Chamber found that the MUP cooperated closely with the VRS and that, when MUP units were participating in combat operations, from at least 12 May 1992 to 26 September 1995, they were re-subordinated to the command of the VRS while still being under the direct command of MUP officials.⁶¹⁷ It also found that MUP members were involved in a large number of crimes, including murder, unlawful detention, cruel or inhumane treatment, and persecution, committed in 12 municipalities, and that they were either under the operational supervision of the VRS or under the supervision of the MUP.⁶¹⁸ In relation to his significant contribution to the Overarching JCE via control of the MUP, the Trial Chamber considered that Mladić, inter alia, issued orders and directives to VRS units as well as "other groups", and tasked brigade commanders of the VRS First Krajina Corps to cooperate with the MUP.⁶¹⁹

188. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber relied on adjudicated facts to establish that he had command and control over MUP forces, thereby failing to give sufficient weight to evidence that he lacked de jure or de facto control over such forces, and conflating coordinated action with re-subordination.⁶²⁰ In his view, this evidence was sufficient to "enliven the evidentiary debate and rebut the adjudicated facts" relied upon by the Trial Chamber.⁶²¹ According to Mladić, effective command and control of the MUP was a "critical component" to the Trial Chamber's consideration of his contribution.⁶²² He argues that, based on a proper weighing of evidence at trial, no reasonable trier of fact could have concluded that he exercised effective command and control of the MUP to establish a significant contribution to the Overarching JCE.⁶²³

189. The Prosecution responds that Mladić's arguments are grounded in a misreading of the Trial Judgement.⁶²⁴ It submits that, in relation to Mladić's contribution to the Overarching JCE, the Trial Chamber's finding concerning the MUP is expressly limited to the MUP forces under the command of the VRS First Krajina Corps at Manjača camp.⁶²⁵ In addition, the Prosecution submits that Mladić refers to irrelevant evidence, and fails to show any impact of his arguments on the Trial Chamber's conclusion that he significantly contributed to furthering the common purpose.⁶²⁶ The Prosecution further argues that Mladić's submissions have no bearing on his liability for crimes committed by any MUP forces not re-subordinated to the VRS, as crimes of perpetrators who were subordinated to another member of the Overarching JCE are attributable to him.⁶²⁷

190. The Appeals Chamber observes that Mladić challenges the Trial Chamber's reliance on adjudicated facts at paragraph 3794 of the Trial Judgement.⁶²⁸ The Appeals Chamber notes that, in the impugned paragraph, the Trial Chamber relied on: (i) Adjudicated Fact 1354 to state that, in accordance with the law in effect in the Republika

Srpska, MUP units could be re-subordinated to the VRS for various purposes, including reinforcement during combat activities;⁶²⁹ (ii) Adjudicated Fact 1355 to state that, when re-subordinated, MUP forces followed orders from the VRS, and that the VRS and MUP unit commanders coordinated their work in carrying out the tasks assigned by the VRS,⁶³⁰ and (iii) Adjudicated Fact 1356 to state that MUP forces were engaged in combat operations for a specific time to carry out a precisely described task and, during their re-subordination, MUP forces retained their formation and could not be disintegrated or separated.⁶³¹

191. The Appeals Chamber notes that paragraph 3794 of the Trial Judgement does not address Mladić's role or contribution. Rather, this paragraph is contained in Chapter 9.2.7 of the Trial Judgement, which discusses the role of the MUP, and is part of the Trial Chamber's analysis regarding the scope of the Overarching JCE as a whole (Chapter 9.2).⁶³² The Trial Chamber further specified, at the conclusion of Chapter 9.2.7 and Chapter 9.2 generally, that it would only address Mladić's membership in the Overarching JCE and his role with regard to the MUP in Chapter 9.3 of the Trial Judgement.⁶³³

192. As to Mladić's contribution to the Overarching JCE through his command and control of other Serb forces subordinated to the VRS,⁶³⁴ the Trial Chamber addressed the MUP in paragraph 4404 of the Trial Judgement and recalled only findings related to Manjača camp in Banja Luka Municipality.⁶³⁵ According to the Trial Chamber, the VRS First Krajina Corps was in charge of Manjača camp, and the MUP members who committed crimes were operating under the command of the VRS First Krajina Corps.⁶³⁶ Given that Mladić, as Commander of the VRS Main Staff, issued orders to the VRS First Krajina Corps, the Trial Chamber found that Mladić "commanded and controlled the Manjača camp command, including the subordinated MUP units".⁶³⁷ In the same paragraph, the Trial Chamber also recalled its finding that, on 3 August 1992, Mladić issued orders to, inter alios, the Manjača camp command, units of the VRS First Krajina Corps, and the Prijedor Security Services Centre ("CSB"), an organ of the MUP,⁶³⁸ to allow reporters and a team of the International Committee of the Red Cross ("ICRC") to visit various detention camps, including Manjača.⁶³⁹ Finally, when summarizing Mladić's actions relevant to his significant contribution to the Overarching JCE, the Trial Chamber considered, inter alia, that Mladić "controlled VRS units and issued orders to other groups".⁶⁴⁰ The Appeals Chamber therefore considers that, contrary to Mladić's submission, the Trial Chamber did not find that he significantly contributed to the Overarching JCE through a general command and control over the MUP. Rather, in determining Mladić's contribution to the Overarching JCE, the Trial Chamber limited its findings of his command and control of the MUP to Manjača camp and to the orders he issued to the Prijedor CSB.⁶⁴¹ These findings, summarized in paragraph 4404 of the Trial Judgement, are based on extensive evidence – including witness testimonies, exhibits, and adjudicated facts – addressed in other sections of the Trial Judgement.⁶⁴² Mladić does not challenge these findings, nor does he demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred by relying on adjudicated facts to find that he had command and control over the MUP forces at Manjača camp or that he issued orders to the Prijedor CSB.

193. Given that the adjudicated facts Mladić seeks to challenge at paragraph 3794 of the Trial Judgement pertain to the general subordination of the MUP to the VRS and not to his specific conduct or contribution to the Overarching JCE, the Appeals Chamber considers that the evidence he points to on appeal, which he presented at trial to rebut these adjudicated facts, is inapposite.⁶⁴³ Any error in the assessment of this evidence would have no impact on the Trial Chamber's conclusions regarding Mladić's control of Manjača camp or his orders to the Prijedor CSB. At this juncture, the Appeals Chamber further recalls that members of a joint criminal enterprise may be held responsible for crimes carried out by principal perpetrators, provided that the crimes can be imputed to at least one member of the joint criminal enterprise and that the latter – when using the principal perpetrators – acted in accordance with the common objective.⁶⁴⁴ The Appeals Chamber notes the Trial Chamber's findings that MUP units were used as tools to commit the crimes in the Municipalities in furtherance of the common purpose of the Overarching JCE,⁶⁴⁵ that Stanišić, as Minister of the Interior, was a member of the Overarching JCE,⁶⁴⁶ and that Stanišić had overall command and control over MUP forces.⁶⁴⁷ The Appeals Chamber observes that Mladić has not challenged these findings regarding Stanišić and the MUP in relation to the Overarching JCE. Consequently, even if Mladić were to establish that the Trial Chamber erred in regard to his command and control over the MUP, such an error would not impact his liability through his membership in the Overarching JCE.

194. In light of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in relation to his significant contribution to the Overarching JCE via command and control of MUP forces.

(ii) Command and Control over VRS Soldiers

195. In relation to the Overarching JCE, the Trial Chamber considered that many of the principal perpetrators of crimes in the Municipalities were VRS members, who were under the operational command of one of the corps and ultimately of the VRS Main Staff.⁶⁴⁸ It concluded that Mladić significantly contributed to achieving the objective of the Overarching JCE by, inter alia, issuing orders regarding the establishment and organization of the VRS and its organs, being closely involved in VRS activities, as evidenced by regular briefings, meetings, and inspections, and commanding and controlling VRS units.⁶⁴⁹

196. The Trial Chamber found, inter alia, that Mladić: (i) from 12 May 1992 until at least 8 November 1996, was Commander of the VRS Main Staff; (ii) between May 1992 and April 1995, issued orders and directives to the VRS regarding its establishment, organization, military operations, and combat strategies; (iii) from May 1992 until 1995, was personally kept informed of developments on the battlefield through daily reports from corps commanders, and held daily briefings and occasional evening meetings with VRS Main Staff officers and corps commanders; (iv) between May 1992 and May 1995, regularly visited and inspected VRS units or ordered VRS Main Staff officers to conduct such inspections in order to be informed on the units' state of combat readiness and to assist on specific tasks; and (v) from May 1992 to July 1995, issued several orders to various VRS units with detailed instructions regarding combat strategies, military operations, deployment of units, authorization of offensive operations, use of weapons and ammunition, and ceasefire agreements.⁶⁵⁰ The Trial Chamber also found that the VRS had a well-functioning communication system, which allowed Mladić to effectively and quickly communicate with his subordinates.⁶⁵¹ In addition, it concluded that Mladić was respected as a leader by his subordinates and possessed a "very high level of command and control over [them]".⁶⁵² The Trial Chamber explicitly rejected Defence arguments regarding Mladić's limited influence as well as the lack of subordinate loyalty and obedience to the VRS command, and noted that occasional indiscipline in the VRS did not undermine his overall ability to exercise command and control.⁶⁵³

197. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to evidence that the lack of professional or trained subordinates significantly affected his ability to command and control VRS soldiers.⁶⁵⁴ He specifies that the Trial Chamber erred by failing to adequately consider: (i) the wider repercussions of the lack of professional subordinates on his ability to instruct subordinates and to ensure that military combat operations were carried out within VRS rules and procedures;⁶⁵⁵ and (ii) his efforts to deal with the lack of professional subordinates, namely through visits to VRS commands and units by him and other VRS Main Staff personnel⁶⁵⁶ as well as through a meeting with VJ representatives to acquire more trained personnel.⁶⁵⁷ Mladić submits as an example that the Trial Chamber failed to include relevant evidence in its assessment of an 8 July 1993 meeting, such as references in his notebook about problems in the VRS and the MUP.⁶⁵⁸ Mladić argues that no reasonable trier of fact could have concluded that he exercised effective command and control over VRS subordinates to support a finding that he significantly contributed to the Overarching JCE.⁶⁵⁹

198. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber's conclusions were reasonable and grounded in findings as well as detailed analysis of evidence on the functioning VRS command structures and Mladić's exercise of command and control over them.⁶⁶⁰ According to the Prosecution, the Trial Chamber considered evidence of VRS indiscipline and found that occasional lack of discipline did not undermine Mladić's overall ability to exercise command and control over the VRS.⁶⁶¹ In addition, the Prosecution submits that Mladić's generic argument that he lacked professional subordinates does not demonstrate that he lacked effective command and control over VRS subordinates.⁶⁶²

199. With regard to Mladić's contention that the Trial Chamber failed to sufficiently consider how the lack of professional or trained subordinates affected his command and control of the VRS, the Appeals Chamber observes that he makes reference to Exhibits P5241, D566, D686, P338, D559, D939, P356, and P346 as well as the testimonies of Witnesses Kovač and RM-511.⁶⁶³ A review of the Trial Judgement reveals that, in addressing arguments regarding command and control issues in the VRS, the Trial Chamber explicitly considered Exhibits P5241,⁶⁶⁴ D566,⁶⁶⁵ D686,⁶⁶⁶ P338,⁶⁶⁷ and D559.⁶⁶⁸ The Trial Chamber, however, did not explicitly refer to Exhibits D939, P356, P346, nor to Witness RM-511's testimony from 13 November 2012 and Witness Kovač's testimony from 16 November 2015 in relation to issues of command and control of the VRS. Notwithstanding, the Appeals Chamber recalls that a trial chamber is not obliged to refer to every piece of evidence on the trial record,⁶⁶⁹ and it is to be presumed to have evaluated all the evidence presented to it, as long as there is no indication that it completely disregarded any particular piece of evidence.⁶⁷⁰ In this regard, the Appeals Chamber notes that the portions of Exhibits D939, P356, and P346, as well as the testimonies of Witnesses RM-511 and Kovač, to which Mladić refers, discuss the lack of professional soldiers and the poor level of training in various VRS units.⁶⁷¹ This evidence is similar to extensive evidence the Trial Chamber expressly noted and considered in the Trial Judgement that certain VRS units were untrained or unprofessional.⁶⁷² After reviewing such evidence, the Trial Chamber rejected Mladić's claim that VRS units lacked discipline, which included issues such as untrained and unprofessional soldiers.⁶⁷³ For example, with regard to the VRS First Krajina Corps, the Trial Chamber concluded that, even if there were instances of lack of discipline or organization, any such problems did not affect the VRS First Krajina Corps's overall ability to meaningfully control its subordinate units,⁶⁷⁴ and that the chain of command and reporting system "fully functioned between the VRS Main Staff, the VRS First Krajina Corps, and its subordinate units".⁶⁷⁵ With regard to the SRK,⁶⁷⁶ the Trial Chamber addressed evidence that there were many unprofessional men in its brigades, but found that such evidence did not contradict the Trial Chamber's consideration that the SRK was under normal military command, with subordinates being disciplined and following orders.⁶⁷⁷ The Trial Chamber also considered extensive evidence suggesting that the lack of professional commanding officers and staff in various SRK brigades affected the quality of command and control and led to problems with indiscipline, disobedience, and inefficient command and control.⁶⁷⁸ It found, however, that this evidence was limited to specific incidents or moments in time and therefore found that it did not contradict Adjudicated Facts 1808 and 1864, which state that the SRK generally functioned under normal command and control and that subordinates were very disciplined and followed orders.⁶⁷⁹ In light of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber failed to sufficiently consider how the lack of professional or trained subordinates affected his command and control of the VRS.

200. With regard to the argument that the Trial Chamber failed to adequately consider that Mladić and other VRS Main Staff personnel visited commands and units "as a strategy to deal with the lack of professional subordinates", Mladić references Exhibits P3029 and P347 as well as paragraph 662 of the Mladić Final Trial Brief.⁶⁸⁰ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber referenced the paragraph of the Mladić Final Trial Brief to which Mladić points on appeal when summarizing his submissions and recalls that a trial chamber has the discretion to select which legal arguments to address.⁶⁸¹ The Appeals Chamber further notes that the Trial Chamber considered Exhibit P3029 to the effect that Mladić and VRS Main Staff inspection teams regularly visited VRS commands, units, and their combat positions, and that this was essential for Mladić to familiarize himself with the situation on the ground, including the implementation of his orders and the activities of his forces, and to exercise authority over his subordinate forces.⁶⁸² While the Trial Chamber did not expressly refer to Exhibit P347 in relation to Mladić's inspection of VRS units in the Trial Judgement,⁶⁸³ this exhibit is similar to extensive evidence that the Trial Chamber considered in relation to Mladić or other members of the VRS Main Staff visiting units, between 1992 and 1995, for the purposes of inspection.⁶⁸⁴ The Trial Chamber considered that, in many of these inspections, Mladić or members of the VRS Main Staff assessed whether units were combat ready,⁶⁸⁵ which included issues such as the lack of well-trained or professional officers and soldiers.⁶⁸⁶

201. The Appeals Chamber is also not persuaded by Mladić's submission that, with respect to the 8 July 1993 meeting, the Trial Chamber failed to note several weaknesses he referenced in his notebook, Exhibit P358, such as declining discipline within the VRS and the dismantling of the MUP.⁶⁸⁷ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber not only considered this exhibit in the Trial Judgement, but expressly summarized evidence that "Mladić noted that there were several weaknesses, such as that discipline was getting worse within the VRS and that the MUP had been dismantled".⁶⁸⁸

202. In light of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić's submissions reflect mere disagreement with the Trial Chamber's assessment of the evidence with respect to his command and control of the VRS. Mladić does not show any error in the Trial Chamber's findings that he was respected as a leader, possessed a "very high level of command and control over his subordinates", and that occasional indiscipline did not undermine his overall ability to exercise command and control.⁶⁸⁹ Accordingly, his submissions do not demonstrate error in the Trial Chamber's finding that he significantly contributed to the Overarching JCE through his command and control of the VRS.

(iii) Knowledge, Investigation, and Punishment of Crimes

203. The Trial Chamber found that, as the Commander of the VRS Main Staff, Mladić was under a duty to take adequate steps to prevent, investigate, and/or punish crimes by members of the VRS and other Serb forces under his effective control.⁶⁹⁰ It considered that, while he issued orders to comply with the laws and regulations of the Republika Srpska and the VRS, the Geneva Conventions,⁶⁹¹ customary laws of war, and other international laws,⁶⁹² he did not take appropriate or further steps to investigate or punish perpetrators of crimes.⁶⁹³ On the contrary, the Trial Chamber found that Mladić facilitated the commission of crimes by providing misleading information to representatives of the international community, non-governmental organizations, the media, and the public about crimes against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats and about the role that Serb forces had played in those crimes.⁶⁹⁴ The Trial Chamber concluded that Mladić's misleading statements regarding crimes committed on the ground and inadequate steps to investigate and/or prosecute these crimes constituted part of his significant contribution to achieving the objective of the Overarching JCE.⁶⁹⁵

204. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred by failing to give sufficient weight to and adequately consider certain evidence when finding that he significantly contributed to the Overarching JCE by not taking appropriate steps to investigate and/or punish perpetrators of crimes.⁶⁹⁶ Specifically, he argues that the Trial Chamber: (i) erred by not giving sufficient weight to evidence that he could not have known certain crimes had been committed as they were not reported to him;⁶⁹⁷ (ii) failed to give sufficient weight to evidence that he ordered investigations and punishment for crimes committed;⁶⁹⁸ (iii) failed to give a reasoned opinion on exculpatory evidence listed in Chapter 9.3.10 of the Trial Judgement that he ordered investigations to be carried out and directed subordinates to comply with applicable laws;⁶⁹⁹ (iv) erroneously qualified his alleged failure to punish crimes as a significant contribution based on "an absence of evidence";⁷⁰⁰ and (v) gave insufficient weight to institutional issues of the military justice system in a state of crisis⁷⁰¹ and to its independence.⁷⁰²

205. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber properly considered the totality of the evidence, including measures Mladić took to investigate and punish crimes, and reasonably concluded that the measures were inadequate.⁷⁰³ It contends that Mladić's arguments misrepresent the Trial Judgement and the evidence, are irrelevant or consist of mere assertions, and thus should be summarily dismissed.⁷⁰⁴ The Prosecution also submits that it is immaterial that Mladić may not have been informed about certain crimes and that his submissions do not support this claim.⁷⁰⁵ Furthermore, the Prosecution argues that the Trial Chamber properly found that Mladić failed to take appropriate measures to investigate and punish crimes, and that the examples he provides do not concern him personally.⁷⁰⁶ According to the Prosecution, the Trial Chamber provided a reasoned opinion on the "supposed 'exculpatory evidence'" listed in Chapter 9.3.10 of the Trial Judgement⁷⁰⁷ and, contrary to Mladić's submissions, the military justice system was functioning for the duration of the war.⁷⁰⁸ Regarding Mladić's submission about the independence of the military justice system, the Prosecution responds, inter alia, that the Trial Chamber found that, in many instances, decisions to release suspects were made after the VRS exerted pressure to drop cases or release perpetrators of crimes.⁷⁰⁹ The Prosecution argues that, even if the Trial Chamber erred in finding that Mladić's failure to investigate or punish crimes significantly contributed to the Overarching JCE, such an error would have no impact on his convictions as this was only one of numerous contributions in relation to this joint criminal enterprise.⁷¹⁰

206. Mladić replies that the Prosecution has erroneously asserted that evidence of his subordinates ordering prosecutions is irrelevant because this does not involve him personally.⁷¹¹ He argues that the Prosecution also errs in stating that the Trial Chamber did not find that the military justice system suffered from institutional issues that inhibited its functioning.⁷¹² He further submits that the Prosecution incorrectly claims that he ignored relevant findings and that it also incorrectly submits that two isolated incidents of the VRS exerting pressure on military courts to drop cases or release perpetrators are “findings about what actually happened”.⁷¹³

a. Evidence that Mladić Lacked Knowledge of Crimes

207. The Trial Chamber found that Mladić knew that the crimes of persecution, murder, extermination, deportation, and inhumane acts (forcible transfer) were committed against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the Municipalities, including in detention facilities.⁷¹⁴ This finding was based on evidence the Trial Chamber reviewed and its determinations on: (i) Mladić’s position as Commander of the VRS Main Staff; (ii) receipt of detailed reports by the VRS Main Staff; (iii) Mladić’s personal receipt of regular updates; (iv) his involvement in the VRS units’ activities; and (v) the fact that the commission of crimes was widely acknowledged, reported on by international media outlets, and commented on by the UN.⁷¹⁵

208. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to evidence that he could not have known that certain crimes were committed by VRS soldiers against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.⁷¹⁶ To support this argument, Mladić points to four instances—relating to incidents in Manjača camp, murders in Zecovi, the VRS First Krajina Corps’s false reporting on the number of “Green Berets” killed in Kozarac, and the same unit’s false reporting on an incident in Grabovica—where he was misinformed or not informed about certain crimes.⁷¹⁷ In addition, in oral submissions replying to the Prosecution, the Defence raised a new argument that Mladić could not have known about the killings in Keraterm camp (Prijedor Municipality) as the camp was operated by the MUP.⁷¹⁸ The Appeals Chamber considers this argument open for summary dismissal as oral arguments are strictly limited to briefs filed on appeal, unless otherwise authorized.⁷¹⁹ In any event, the Appeals Chamber observes that Mladić’s oral submissions are repetitive of those already considered by the Trial Chamber and that they do not undermine the Trial Chamber’s finding, based on evidence, that the VRS participated in killings at Keraterm camp referenced at paragraph 1121 of the Trial Judgement.⁷²⁰

209. Regarding Manjača camp (Banja Luka Municipality), Mladić submits that a report, dated 8 July 1992, from the operational team of the camp to the VRS First Krajina Corps Command, stated that a prisoner, Husein Delalović, had died of natural causes on 6 July 1992, while Witness RM-709 testified that Delalović had been shot.⁷²¹ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber discussed Delalović’s death and considered that, according to Witness RM-709, six to seven guards took Delalović away and shot him, while the report of 8 July 1992 stated that Delalović died of natural causes.⁷²² The Trial Chamber could not, however, determine Delalović’s ethnicity and ultimately did not include his killing among the crimes for which Mladić was held liable under Scheduled Incident B.1.4.⁷²³ Given that Delalović’s killing does not underpin Mladić’s conviction and that any error would have little or no impact on findings in the Trial Judgement, the Appeals Chamber dismisses Mladić’s arguments in this regard.⁷²⁴

210. As to killings in the village of Zecovi, Prijedor Municipality, Mladić submits that “no one was informed of the crime”, and the incident only became known after the perpetrators were arrested and indicted in 2014.⁷²⁵ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber considered evidence of killings in the Brdo area, comprising the villages of, inter alia, Zecovi and Čarakovo.⁷²⁶ The Trial Chamber found that, although evidence suggested that the number of victims in the Brdo area was much higher, the evidence could establish beyond reasonable doubt only the killing of 21 victims in the village of Čarakovo and on or around Žeger Bridge.⁷²⁷ A review of the Trial Judgement reveals that the deaths in Zecovi thus did not form part of the crime base supporting Mladić’s conviction.⁷²⁸ The Appeals Chamber accordingly dismisses Mladić’s arguments with respect to killings in Zecovi in this regard.

211. With respect to the killing of the “Green Berets”, Mladić points to Witness Osman Selak’s testimony that during a high-level meeting General Momir Talić ordered that a report to the VRS Main Staff be changed to indicate that only 80 to 100 Green Berets had been killed in Kozarac, whereas the real number was 800.⁷²⁹ Mladić relies on this to argue that he was never put on notice of the real number of deaths or their nature.⁷³⁰ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber explicitly discussed Witness Selak’s testimony that a meeting occurred on 27 May 1992, that Dragan Marčetić informed those present of 800 people being killed after an attack on Kozarac, Prijedor

Municipality, and that Talić ordered that, in reporting to the VRS Main Staff, the number of people killed should be 80.⁷³¹ The Trial Chamber further noted that the VRS First Krajina Corps subsequently reported to the VRS Main Staff on 27 May 1992, inter alia, that “80 to 100 ‘Green Berets’ were killed”.⁷³² The Appeals Chamber therefore accepts Mladić’s submission that he was not informed of the real number of deaths arising from this incident. Nevertheless, the Appeals Chamber notes that Mladić acknowledges that the VRS Main Staff was informed that 80 to 100 Green Berets were killed. The Appeals Chamber therefore considers that this example does not support Mladić’s contention that he could not have known that certain crimes were committed.

212. Mladić asserts that, on 4 November 1992, the VRS First Krajina Corps falsely reported killings in Grabovica School in Kotor Varoš Municipality as deaths during combat operations.⁷³³ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber found that the VRS First Krajina Corps tried to conceal the murder of approximately 150 unarmed Bosnian Muslim men at and around Grabovica School from the VRS Main Staff through false reports on 4 and 5 November 1992.⁷³⁴ Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber accepts Mladić’s submission regarding the false reporting on this incident in Grabovica School. However, despite the false reporting, the Appeals Chamber notes that one of the reports from the VRS First Krajina Corps to the VRS Main Staff stated, as the Trial Chamber observed, that “a brutal massacre of the captured members of the Green Berets started because of the wounding of four and the killing of one soldier of the Kotor Varoš Light Infantry Brigade and the burning of wounded soldiers on Gola Planina (Jajce)”.⁷³⁵ As such, the Appeals Chamber considers that the VRS Main Staff was informed of a potential crime, raising the obligation to investigate. The Appeals Chamber therefore finds that this example does not support Mladić’s contention that he could not have known that certain crimes were committed.

213. In view of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber considers that Mladić does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred by failing to give sufficient weight to evidence that he could not have known certain crimes were committed by his subordinates.

b. Evidence that Mladić Took Measures to Investigate and/or Punish Crimes

214. As noted above, the Trial Chamber found, in assessing his significant contribution to the Overarching JCE, that Mladić did not take appropriate or further steps to investigate or punish perpetrators of crimes.⁷³⁶

215. Mladić argues that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to evidence of instances where he learned about crimes committed by VRS subordinates, and where he or his subordinates ordered their investigation and prosecution.⁷³⁷ To support his submission, Mladić refers to evidence that: (i) according to Basara, a brigade commander in the VRS First Krajina Corps, soldiers who executed a group of Bosnian Muslim men in Kenjari were “handed over for further proceedings”;⁷³⁸ (ii) Mladić launched an investigation after learning that the Commander of the Igman Infantry Brigade failed to report crimes to his superiors;⁷³⁹ (iii) Basara prevented killings of detainees by ordering them to be taken to a Sanski Most police station;⁷⁴⁰ (iv) Stanislav Galić ordered the arrest of VRS soldiers who had killed detainees;⁷⁴¹ and (v) Mladić took measures to improve the conditions in Manjača camp, and “took affirmative action” to punish perpetrators of certain killings in Manjača.⁷⁴²

216. Regarding the incident in Kenjari, Sanski Most Municipality, Mladić refers to Basara’s evidence that four soldiers executed 17 Muslim men, and that when Lieutenant Ranko Brajić learned about this crime, the four soldiers were arrested and handed over for proceedings.⁷⁴³ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber explicitly considered this aspect of Basara’s evidence about the killings and that Brajić had the perpetrators arrested and “handed over for further proceedings”.⁷⁴⁴ The Trial Chamber further noted that, according to Basara, he did not know what happened next with the arrested persons.⁷⁴⁵ The Trial Chamber addressed this incident when considering the punishment or non-punishment of crimes, stating that it did not receive evidence allowing it to conclude that the four soldiers were not investigated or prosecuted following their arrest, and thus did not consider this incident further.⁷⁴⁶ In light of the above, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić does not demonstrate an error in the Trial Chamber’s assessment of this evidence.

217. Mladić submits that Velimir Dunjić, Commander of the Igman Infantry Brigade, failed to report crimes of his detachment to his superiors, and when Mladić heard about this misconduct, he immediately initiated an investigation.⁷⁴⁷ According to Mladić, this resulted in Dunjić’s summary dismissal and the arrest and prosecution of anyone suspected to have engaged in criminal activity.⁷⁴⁸ The Trial Chamber did not explicitly address this matter in the Trial Judgement. The Appeals Chamber notes that the evidence raised in the Mladić Final Trial Brief does not support the contention that Mladić launched an investigation or that anyone suspected to have engaged in criminal activity was arrested and prosecuted. Rather, the evidence appears to indicate that Dunjić was dismissed by Marčetić, Galić, and/or on the proposal of Colonel Ljuban Kosovac.⁷⁴⁹ The evidence reveals that Dunjić's dismissal appears to have been related to disagreements with, inter alios, Galić,⁷⁵⁰ and his lack of professional discipline rather than his failure to report crimes to his supervisors.⁷⁵¹ This submission therefore does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to evidence that Mladić took measures to investigate or punish perpetrators of crimes.

218. Regarding Basara's prevention of deaths in Sanski Most, Mladić refers to paragraph 1202 of the Mladić Final Trial Brief, which points to evidence provided by Witness RM-706.⁷⁵² This evidence relates to the killing of at least 28 Bosnian Muslim men on or about 31 May 1992 between the hamlet of Begići and Vrhpolje Bridge in Sanski Most Municipality, and how Basara prevented the killing of 20 others whom he sent to a police station.⁷⁵³ The Appeals Chamber considers that this example does not relate to investigations or prosecutions and, as such, does not support Mladić's contention that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to evidence that he or his subordinates ordered investigation and prosecution of crimes committed by the VRS. Moreover, this example also ignores the Trial Chamber's findings related to crimes committed by members of the VRS under Basara's command.⁷⁵⁴

219. Mladić avers that, on 1 June 1992, Galić ordered the arrest of VRS soldiers who had killed detainees at Velagići School (Ključ Municipality), and refers to paragraph 1273 of the Mladić Final Trial Brief, which cites the evidence of Witness Rajko Kalabić.⁷⁵⁵ The Trial Chamber discussed Witness Kalabić's testimony about this incident and, in particular, Galić's reaction – ordering the arrest of the suspected perpetrators when he heard about the killings.⁷⁵⁶ The Trial Chamber noted evidence that an investigating judge was subsequently sent to the school and several VRS soldiers were arrested in connection with the killings.⁷⁵⁷ However, after being held briefly, these soldiers were released without being tried for their participation in the killings.⁷⁵⁸ In considering whether the perpetrators of killings at Velagići School were punished, the Trial Chamber found that, following “a blackmail operation” by members of the Ključ Brigade, the investigating judge ordered the release of the arrested soldiers with the consent of the President of the Supreme Military Court and officers of the VRS Main Staff.⁷⁵⁹ The Trial Chamber observed that “[n]o further steps were taken to investigate, prosecute, or punish the perpetrators until 1996”.⁷⁶⁰ This submission therefore does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to evidence that Mladić took measures to investigate or punish perpetrators of crimes.

220. Mladić submits that, when advised of killings in Manjača camp, he took “affirmative action” to punish the VRS perpetrators, resulting in their suspension and criminal reports being filed.⁷⁶¹ To support his submissions, he refers to paragraphs 366 and 367 of the Trial Judgement.⁷⁶² These paragraphs of the Trial Judgement make no mention of any actions taken by Mladić and Mladić does not explain how they support his contention that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to evidence that he or his subordinates ordered investigation and prosecution of crimes.⁷⁶³ Additionally, Mladić ignores the Trial Chamber's findings that perpetrators of killings at Manjača camp were not punished or prosecuted until years after the war.⁷⁶⁴

221. In light of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred by giving insufficient weight to evidence of instances where he learned about crimes committed by VRS subordinates and he or his subordinates ordered their investigation or prosecution.

c. Failure to Give Sufficient Weight to Exculpatory Evidence

222. In finding that Mladić failed to take appropriate or further steps to investigate or punish perpetrators, the Trial Chamber considered, inter alia, evidence of his command over the VRS as well as orders he issued to initiate investigations and to comply with domestic and international laws.⁷⁶⁵

223. Mladić notes that the Trial Chamber found in Chapter 9.3.10 of the Trial Judgement that he ordered investigations on several occasions and issued orders directing subordinates to comply with laws and regulations.⁷⁶⁶ He submits that the Trial Chamber nevertheless concluded, based on its findings in Chapter 9.2.12 of the Trial

Judgement, that he significantly contributed to furthering the common criminal objective by failing to take adequate steps to prevent or investigate crimes and/or arrest or punish the perpetrators.⁷⁶⁷ He argues that the Trial Chamber failed to provide a reasoned opinion by omitting to analyze exculpatory evidence set out in Chapter 9.3.10 of the Trial Judgement, thus indicating that it failed to accord sufficient weight to such evidence.⁷⁶⁸

224. In Chapter 9.2.12 of the Trial Judgement, the Trial Chamber considered evidence concerning the response of the Bosnian Serb military and civilian justice system to crimes committed by members of the VRS and other Serb forces.⁷⁶⁹ It found that, between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995, the Bosnian Serb military and civilian justice system failed on many occasions to investigate crimes committed by members of the Serb forces in the Municipalities, file criminal reports, and detain, arrest, or punish perpetrators of these crimes.⁷⁷⁰ In Chapter 9.3.10, the Trial Chamber considered whether Mladić personally failed to take steps to prevent or investigate crimes committed in the Municipalities and arrest or punish the perpetrators.⁷⁷¹ Recalling its findings in Chapter 9.2.12, conclusions on Mladić's command and control of the VRS and certain Serb forces, as well as determinations that he knew that crimes were committed against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the Municipalities, the Trial Chamber ultimately found in Chapter 9.3.10 that Mladić did not take appropriate or further steps to investigate or punish perpetrators of crimes.⁷⁷² In coming to this conclusion, the Trial Chamber, at paragraph 4545 of the Trial Judgement, explicitly considered what Mladić regards as "exculpatory evidence",⁷⁷³ namely that he issued orders to comply with laws and regulations, and initiated investigations.⁷⁷⁴ There is accordingly no merit in Mladić's argument that the Trial Chamber omitted to analyze "exculpatory evidence" set out in Chapter 9.3.10 of the Trial Judgement and erroneously based its findings on his joint criminal enterprise liability solely on evidence in Chapter 9.2.12.⁷⁷⁵ Mladić therefore does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred by failing to give a reasoned opinion or failing to accord sufficient weight to evidence addressed in Chapter 9.3.10.

d. Error in Finding Significant Contribution on the Basis of Lack of Evidence

225. In finding that Mladić did not take appropriate or further steps to investigate or punish perpetrators of crimes, the Trial Chamber stated that it "did not receive evidence" to conclude that he ordered any substantial or meaningful investigations, or whether he followed up on the few investigations he may have ordered.⁷⁷⁶

226. Mladić argues that the Trial Chamber found, "due to an absence of evidence", that he failed to order the investigation and prosecution of crimes committed by Bosnian Serbs against Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats.⁷⁷⁷ According to Mladić, "[t]hese omissions" formed part of the basis for the Trial Chamber's findings that he significantly contributed to furthering the objective of the Overarching JCE.⁷⁷⁸ In his view, proof that crimes occurred and went unpunished is not sufficient to establish the requirements of significant contribution or to sustain a conviction.⁷⁷⁹ Relying on the Kordić and Čerkez Appeal Judgement, Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber's finding is a "grossly unfair outcome" as he was convicted "despite a lack of evidence on an essential element of the crime".⁷⁸⁰ Mladić also references an appeal judgement of the International Criminal Court ("ICC") to argue that "measures taken by a commander cannot be faulted merely because of shortfalls in their execution".⁷⁸¹

227. For the reasons that follow, the Appeals Chamber is not convinced that the Trial Chamber erred by making findings on Mladić's significant contribution to the Overarching JCE based on an "absence of evidence" – namely the lack of evidence that perpetrators were investigated or punished for their crimes.⁷⁸² First, the Trial Chamber's conclusion that Mladić did not take appropriate or further steps to investigate or punish perpetrators of crimes is based on its assessment of extensive evidence and several key considerations.⁷⁸³ In this regard, the Trial Chamber considered that Mladić: (i) as Commander of the VRS Main Staff, exercised effective command and control over the VRS and re-subordinated Serb forces, and thus had a duty to take adequate steps to prevent, investigate, and/or punish crimes by subordinates under his command;⁷⁸⁴ (ii) possessed the authority to order investigations within the military justice system, but did so primarily for breaches of military discipline and crimes committed against the VRS;⁷⁸⁵ (iii) knew crimes were being committed by his subordinates against non-Serbs in the Municipalities;⁷⁸⁶ and (iv) "deliberately misled" the international community and non-governmental organizations about conditions in detention facilities and "attempted to conceal the crimes committed therein" by portraying camp conditions in a more favourable light.⁷⁸⁷ The Trial Chamber further considered that, despite a functioning military justice system, it did not receive evidence that Bosnian Serbs were prosecuted for war crimes between 12 May 1992 and 30 November

1995.⁷⁸⁸ To the contrary, it found, based on a review of extensive evidence in the Municipalities, that: (i) the Bosnian Serb military and civilian justice system failed on many occasions to investigate, arrest, or punish perpetrators who were members of the VRS and other Serb forces; (ii) on multiple occasions where crimes were committed by members of the VRS against non-Serbs, criminal reports were not filed, investigations were not initiated by military prosecutors or investigating judges, suspects were not arrested or detained, and perpetrators were unlawfully released from detention to return to their units; and (iii) in many instances, decisions to release suspects were made after VRS officers exerted pressure on the military courts to drop cases or release perpetrators of crimes and, once released, these individuals were rarely remanded in custody.⁷⁸⁹ Given these extensive considerations, the Appeals Chamber finds that it was reasonable for the Trial Chamber to conclude that Mladić failed to take appropriate or further steps to investigate or punish perpetrators.⁷⁹⁰

228. Second, the Appeals Chamber recalls that for an accused to be found criminally liable on the basis of joint criminal enterprise liability, it is sufficient that he acted in furtherance of the common purpose of a joint criminal enterprise in the sense that he significantly contributed to the commission of the crimes involved in the common purpose.⁷⁹¹ Beyond that, the law does not foresee specific types of conduct which per se could not be considered a contribution to a joint criminal enterprise.⁷⁹² Within these legal confines, the question of whether a failure to act could be taken into account to establish that the accused significantly contributed to a joint criminal enterprise is a question of fact to be determined on a case-by-case basis.⁷⁹³ It is also recalled that the relevant failures to act or acts carried out in furtherance of a joint criminal enterprise need not involve carrying out any part of the actus reus of a crime forming part of the common purpose, or indeed any crime at all.⁷⁹⁴ That is, an accused's contribution to a joint criminal enterprise need not be in and of itself criminal, as long as the accused performs (or fails to perform) acts that in some way contribute significantly to the furtherance of the common purpose.⁷⁹⁵

229. In the present case, the Trial Chamber considered that, as the Commander of the VRS Main Staff, Mladić was under a duty to take adequate steps to prevent, investigate, and/or punish crimes committed by members of the VRS and other Serb forces under his effective control.⁷⁹⁶ On that basis, it considered that his failure to take such steps constituted part of his contribution to the Overarching JCE.⁷⁹⁷ The Appeals Chamber observes that, in the jurisprudence of the ICTY, a failure to take effective and genuine measures to discipline, prevent, and/or punish crimes committed by subordinates, despite having knowledge thereof, has been taken into account in assessing, inter alia, an accused's mens rea and contribution to a joint criminal enterprise where the accused had some power and influence or authority over the perpetrators sufficient to prevent or punish the abuses but failed to exercise such power.⁷⁹⁸ Therefore, the Trial Chamber's consideration of Mladić's failure to take adequate steps was consistent with the applicable jurisprudence.

230. Third, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić's references to the Kordić and Čerkez Appeal Judgement and the Bemba Appeal Judgement⁷⁹⁹ do not support his submissions. The paragraph to which he cites in the Kordić and Čerkez Appeal Judgement recites the law on the standards of appellate review and defines an error causing a miscarriage of justice as "[a] grossly unfair outcome in judicial proceedings, as when a defendant is convicted despite a lack of evidence on an essential element of the crime".⁸⁰⁰ As discussed above, the Appeals Chamber considers that Mladić was not convicted based on an absence of evidence on an essential element of a crime. Rather, the Trial Chamber's conclusion that he failed to order investigations and prosecutions is based on an extensive assessment of evidence of his powers and role as Commander of the VRS Main Staff as well as his conduct.⁸⁰¹

231. With regard to Mladić's reference to the Bemba Appeal Judgement from the ICC, the Appeals Chamber notes that Mladić relies on it to argue that "measures taken by a commander cannot be faulted merely because of shortfalls in their execution".⁸⁰² The Appeals Chamber recalls that it is not bound by the findings of other courts – domestic, international, or hybrid – and that, even though it may consider such jurisprudence, it may nonetheless come to a different conclusion on a matter than that reached by another judicial body.⁸⁰³ Furthermore, the Appeals Chamber considers that the circumstances of that case are distinguishable from those in the present case. The accused in the Bemba case took measures in reaction to allegations of crimes such as establishing investigative commissions and missions, which ultimately had limited impact.⁸⁰⁴ In the present case, the Trial Chamber found that, despite possessing authority to order investigations for war crimes and crimes against humanity, Mladić primarily ordered investigations and punishment for breaches of military discipline and crimes against the VRS.⁸⁰⁵ The

Trial Chamber further stated that it did not receive evidence on whether Mladić followed up on the “few investigations” he may have ordered regarding war crimes and crimes against humanity.⁸⁰⁶

232. In light of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber dismisses Mladić’s submissions that the Trial Chamber erred in finding that he failed to order investigations or prosecutions of crimes committed by his subordinates based on an “absence of evidence”.

e. Limitations on Mladić and an Independent Military Justice System

233. The Trial Chamber found that the military courts in Republika Srpska were fully operational by the early autumn of 1992 and had jurisdiction over the crime of armed rebellion, crimes against the state, crimes against humanity, and violations of the Geneva Conventions.⁸⁰⁷ According to the Trial Chamber, the jurisdiction of these courts also extended to crimes committed by police officers and paramilitaries subordinated to military units.⁸⁰⁸ The Trial Chamber further found that proceedings before the military courts continued throughout the war, despite problems such as shortages of staff and materials, and difficulties locating suspects and witnesses.⁸⁰⁹ The Trial Chamber observed that the military courts focused on crimes committed against the VRS⁸¹⁰ and noted that it did not receive any evidence of Bosnian Serbs being prosecuted for war crimes against non-Serbs during this period.⁸¹¹ The Trial Chamber found that, between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995, the Bosnian Serb military and civilian justice system failed on many occasions to investigate crimes committed by members of the VRS and other Serb forces, and to arrest and/or punish perpetrators.⁸¹²

234. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber “failed to appreciate the limitations” he faced while the military justice system was in a “state of crisis” and the realities that he was unable to submit matters for investigation and prosecution in the conflict situation.⁸¹³ He argues that by failing to consider the “restrictive realities of applying justice in conditions of conflict”, the Trial Chamber imposed a standard upon him that was impossible to meet.⁸¹⁴ Mladić further submits that the Trial Chamber erred by “simply juxtapos[ing him] with the structure of the military justice system” and that it failed to “provide an appropriate nexus” between him and the decisions made by independent prosecutors or judges.⁸¹⁵ In his view, the independence of the military justice system meant that decisions about prosecutions did not involve him.⁸¹⁶

235. In support of his argument that the Trial Chamber failed to “appreciate the limitations” he faced, Mladić refers to, inter alia, his final trial brief,⁸¹⁷ which discusses the difficulties faced by military courts during the conflict.⁸¹⁸ The Appeals Chamber notes that these submissions do not address difficulties he personally faced. The rest of his argument on appeal in this regard also does not identify any evidence that the Trial Chamber ought to have addressed. In any event, the Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber explicitly considered difficulties faced by the military courts during the war and found that they reported problems such as shortages of staff and materials and difficulties locating suspects and witnesses.⁸¹⁹ It nevertheless concluded that proceedings before the military courts continued throughout the war.⁸²⁰ Additionally, Mladić ignores the Trial Chamber’s findings that he possessed the authority to order investigations within the military justice system and that he did so on numerous occasions, but primarily with respect to crimes committed against the VRS or breaches of military discipline.⁸²¹ The Appeals Chamber therefore finds that Mladić does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in failing to appreciate the limitations he faced in raising issues for investigation and prosecution during the war.

236. The Appeals Chamber is also not persuaded by Mladić’s submission that the Trial Chamber erred by “simply juxtapos[ing]” him with the military justice system in finding that he did not take appropriate steps to investigate or punish perpetrators of crimes.⁸²² As previously noted, on the basis of extensive evidence, the Trial Chamber concluded that, in practice, on multiple occasions in which crimes had been committed against non-Serbs by members of the VRS or other Serb forces, criminal reports were not filed, investigations were not initiated by military prosecutors or investigating judges, suspects were not arrested or detained, and perpetrators were unlawfully released.⁸²³ Given these findings as well as conclusions that Mladić possessed the authority to order investigations in the military justice system⁸²⁴ but failed to order any substantial or meaningful investigations into war crimes and crimes against humanity,⁸²⁵ the Trial Chamber’s findings are based on evidence it considered rather than juxtaposing Mladić’s conduct with decisions of an allegedly independent military justice system.

(iv) Conclusion

237. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in finding that he significantly contributed to the common criminal purpose of the Overarching JCE.

(b) Mens Rea

238. In assessing Mladić's mens rea with respect to the Overarching JCE, the Trial Chamber found that he knew that the crimes of persecution, murder, extermination, deportation, and inhumane acts (forcible transfer) were committed against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the Municipalities, including in detention facilities.⁸²⁶ It also found that Mladić's statements and conduct demonstrated his intent for the crimes to be committed on discriminatory grounds.⁸²⁷ In reaching this finding, the Trial Chamber considered Mladić's: (i) repeated use of derogatory terms to refer to Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats;⁸²⁸ (ii) recalling of historical crimes that were allegedly committed against Bosnian Serbs and his references to the threat of "genocide" against the Bosnian Serbs;⁸²⁹ (iii) statements indicating an intention not to respect the laws of war in Croatia in 1991 and later references to repeating the destruction inflicted during that conflict;⁸³⁰ and expressions of commitment to an ethnically homogeneous Republika Srpska, even in territories that previously had a large percentage of non-Serb inhabitants.⁸³¹ The Trial Chamber further considered that Mladić's orders to respect the Geneva Conventions, his statements to personnel of the UN Protection Force ("UNPROFOR"), and his involvement in peace negotiations were not indicative of his true state of mind.⁸³² The Trial Chamber concluded that Mladić shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Overarching JCE through the commission of crimes and that he held this intent by 12 May 1992 at the latest.⁸³³

239. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in determining that he possessed and shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Overarching JCE.⁸³⁴ Specifically, he argues that the Trial Chamber erred by: (i) applying a "defective method" in determining his mens rea;⁸³⁵ (ii) preferring circumstantial evidence and disregarding or failing to give sufficient weight to clearly relevant direct evidence that contradicts findings in the Trial Judgement of his mens rea;⁸³⁶ and (iii) relying on isolated parts of his speeches at two Bosnian Serb Assembly sessions.⁸³⁷ Mladić argues that as a consequence of these errors, the Trial Chamber's findings on his mens rea are invalid and do not support his liability, and requests that the Appeals Chamber reverse his convictions in relation to the Overarching JCE, or, in the alternative, reverse the Trial Chamber's findings to the extent of any errors.⁸³⁸ The Appeals Chamber will address these submissions in turn.

(i) Alleged Error in Conflating Mens Rea and Actus Reus

240. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber employed a "defective method" when determining his mens rea that resulted in its erroneous finding that he shared the intent to further the common objective of the Overarching JCE.⁸³⁹ He contends that the Trial Chamber erred in two respects.⁸⁴⁰ First, Mladić argues that the Trial Chamber erroneously made inferences of his mens rea in its actus reus analysis.⁸⁴¹ To support this argument, he relies on the Milutinović et al. Trial Judgement⁸⁴² and points to parts of the Trial Judgement that address his significant contribution but contain matters that "should have only been considered in the context of [his] mens rea".⁸⁴³ Second, Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in using its finding on his mens rea "to substantiate its actus reus findings".⁸⁴⁴ In this regard, he refers to parts of the Trial Judgement and relies on the Stanišić and Simatović Appeal Judgement to argue that the mens rea can only be considered after the actus reus has been established.⁸⁴⁵ Mladić submits that the "collective consequence of these errors" was that, when the Trial Chamber determined his mens rea, "it had already drawn a relevant inference from the evidence".⁸⁴⁶ In his view, the evidence analyzed in the mens rea section was "indelibly tainted so that it could only lead to the conclusion of guilt".⁸⁴⁷

241. The Prosecution responds that Mladić identifies no error in the Trial Chamber's assessment of his mens rea,⁸⁴⁸ as he does not point to any instance where the Trial Chamber in fact made inferences on his mens rea in its actus reus analysis, or that it used findings on his mens rea to substantiate its actus reus findings.⁸⁴⁹ In addition, the Prosecution submits that Mladić misconstrues the law, misrepresents the Trial Judgement, and disregards relevant findings.⁸⁵⁰

242. In relation to his first contention that the Trial Chamber erred by assessing his mens rea in its significant contribution analysis,⁸⁵¹ Mladić submits that, according to the Milutinović et al. Trial Judgement, where the same evidence is used to determine the actus reus and the mens rea, the “actus reus elements” are “very limited, physical, and two-dimensional contributions of the individual”, whereas the mens rea analysis uses the same evidence as a basis to infer “the three-dimensional aspects” of behaviour, such as the individual’s influence, knowledge, and intent behind his words.⁸⁵²

243. After reviewing the relevant portions of the Milutinović et al. Trial Judgement, the Appeals Chamber observes that the ICTY trial chamber in that case was assessing whether the accused’s participation in a meeting met either the significant contribution or the mens rea element relevant to his participation in a joint criminal enterprise.⁸⁵³ In the Appeals Chamber’s view, contrary to Mladić’s submissions, at no point did the ICTY trial chamber in the Milutinović et al. case establish a distinction between “two-dimensional” actus reus elements and “three-dimensional” mens rea aspects. In any event, the Appeals Chamber recalls that a trial chamber’s determinations are not binding on other trial chambers or on the Appeals Chamber.⁸⁵⁴ Of even greater significance, there is no legal requirement that a trial chamber’s analysis as to an accused’s mens rea and actus reus be done separately and Mladić fails to substantiate that this was required of the Trial Chamber when assessing the mens rea and actus reus elements pertaining to the Overarching JCE. To the contrary, trial chambers are free to organize their judgements as they see fit so long as they fulfil their obligation to provide a reasoned opinion.⁸⁵⁵

244. As illustrations of the first alleged error, Mladić refers to paragraphs 4459, 4460, 4471, 4472, 4473, 4477, and 4478 of the Trial Judgement.⁸⁵⁶ The Appeals Chamber notes that these paragraphs are part of Chapter 9.3.7 of the Trial Judgement where the Trial Chamber addressed Mladić’s participation in the development of Bosnian Serb governmental policies.⁸⁵⁷ The Appeals Chamber further observes that paragraphs 4459, 4460, 4471, 4472, and 4473 of the Trial Judgement contain summaries of evidence rather than analysis of such evidence or inferences drawn from it.⁸⁵⁸ As such, the Appeals Chamber considers that these references do not support Mladić’s contention that the Trial Chamber was making mens rea inferences in its actus reus analysis.⁸⁵⁹ In paragraphs 4477 and 4478 of the Trial Judgement, the Trial Chamber considered Mladić’s arguments that he, inter alia, “did not have a tendency to get involved in political matters” and “did not have voting rights within the Bosnian Serb Assembly”.⁸⁶⁰ It found, however, that he, inter alia: (i) attended and actively participated in policy discussions during Bosnian Serb Assembly sessions and meetings with members of the Bosnian Serb government; (ii) discussed these policies at several meetings with high-level political figures and representatives of the international community, and expressed his commitment to the strategic objectives; and (iii) often suggested to Bosnian Serb politicians what position they should take during peace negotiations in order to achieve the strategic objectives as initially defined.⁸⁶¹ It is clear that the findings reflect that the Trial Chamber was addressing Mladić’s conduct in the context of a significant contribution assessment rather than his intent. Mladić’s contention that the Trial Chamber made inferences on his mens rea in its analysis of his significant contribution is therefore incorrect. The Appeals Chamber further notes that Mladić also appears to challenge paragraphs 4465, 4468, 4486, 4627, 4629, and 4686 of the Trial Judgement in that the Trial Chamber was making inferences on his mens rea in sections related to his significant contribution.⁸⁶² The Appeals Chamber considers that paragraphs 4465, 4468, and 4486 of the Trial Judgement merely contain references to evidence reviewed in Chapter 9.3.13 and brief summaries of that evidence, rather than analysis, while paragraphs 4627 and 4629 contain summaries of evidence, rather than analysis. Therefore, similar to paragraphs 4459, 4460, 4471, 4472, and 4473 of the Trial Judgement discussed above, the Appeals Chamber considers that the Trial Chamber, in summarizing the evidence, was not “making inferences” and thus rejects Mladić’s arguments in this regard. Finally, considering that paragraph 4686 of the Trial Judgement is the conclusion of Chapter 9.3.13 wherein the Trial Chamber analyzed Mladić’s mens rea, the Appeals Chamber considers it appropriate for Mladić’s intent to be assessed at this point in the judgement. His contention that the Trial Chamber made inferences concerning his mens rea in its significant contribution analysis, with respect to paragraphs 4465, 4468, 4486, 4627, 4629, and 4686 of the Trial Judgement, is therefore also dismissed.

245. The Appeals Chamber now turns to Mladić’s second alleged error concerning the Trial Chamber’s reliance on its mens rea findings to substantiate elements of his significant contribution.⁸⁶³ In support, Mladić references the Stanišić and Simatović Appeal Judgement to argue that “the actus reus determination must be established first, before considerations of mens rea are determined”.⁸⁶⁴ The Appeals Chamber observes that the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Stanišić and Simatović case considered whether the trial chamber in that case had erred by concluding that the joint criminal enterprise mens rea of both accused had not been established, prior to making any findings on the existence of a common criminal purpose that was shared by a plurality of persons.⁸⁶⁵ The ICTY Appeals Chamber, by majority, concluded that, in the circumstances of that case, the trial chamber should have determined the existence and scope of a common purpose, and whether the accused’s acts contributed to that purpose, before determining whether the accused shared the intent to further that purpose.⁸⁶⁶

246. The Appeals Chamber considers that the circumstances in the Stanišić and Simatović case – where the trial chamber had failed to make any findings or to analyze any evidence on the existence of a common criminal purpose⁸⁶⁷ – are different from the current case. In the present case, the Trial Chamber established the existence of the Overarching JCE and its membership,⁸⁶⁸ assessed Mladić’s contribution,⁸⁶⁹ and addressed his mens rea.⁸⁷⁰

247. The Appeals Chamber is further of the view that the Trial Chamber did not, as Mladić alleges, use its finding of his mens rea to substantiate its finding of his significant contribution.⁸⁷¹ Having reviewed Mladić’s references to the Trial Judgement, the Appeals Chamber considers that these references show nothing more than the Trial Chamber cross-referencing between different sections in the Trial Judgement. Within its extensive assessment of evidence on Mladić’s significant contribution, the Trial Chamber at times referred to its summary of evidence or findings of fact in the mens rea section.⁸⁷² The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber used this practice of cross-referencing throughout the Trial Judgement instead of re-summarizing its findings of fact or summaries of evidence.⁸⁷³ The Appeals Chamber recalls that trial chambers need not unnecessarily repeat considerations reflected elsewhere in the trial judgement.⁸⁷⁴ Furthermore, nothing prevents a trial chamber from relying on the same evidence when making findings as to an accused’s actus reus and mens rea. Accordingly, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber used its finding of mens rea to substantiate its finding of his significant contribution or committed any error in this respect.

248. On the basis of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić has failed to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred by conflating or otherwise applying a defective method in assessing the mens rea and significant contribution elements in relation to the Overarching JCE.

(ii) Alleged Error in Assessment of Evidence

249. Mladić submits that, in assessing his mens rea, the Trial Chamber erred by disregarding or failing to give sufficient weight to clearly relevant direct evidence and preferring circumstantial evidence.⁸⁷⁵ He submits that the circumstantial evidence the Trial Chamber relied on was “of lower probative value” than other “stronger, more direct, and conflicting evidence”.⁸⁷⁶ To this effect, Mladić challenges the Trial Chamber’s reliance on the following circumstantial evidence to establish his mens rea for the Overarching JCE: (i) statements he made when posted in Knin with the 9th Corps of the JNA which were used to infer that he had the intent to disrespect the laws of war in Croatia; and (ii) his “passive presence” at two meetings in Pale Municipality (“Pale Meetings”).⁸⁷⁷ Mladić further argues that the Trial Chamber disregarded and omitted to provide reasoning in its analysis of the following direct and probative evidence: (i) his “anti-paramilitary” orders and conduct, which Mladić argues directly contradict his intent to further the Overarching JCE; (ii) the “genuine warnings in his orders for VRS soldiers to respect the Geneva Conventions”; and (iii) his “direct orders” to observe ceasefire agreements.⁸⁷⁸ In his view, had appropriate weight been given to direct evidence, no reasonable trier of fact could have concluded that his mens rea in relation to the Overarching JCE was established beyond reasonable doubt.⁸⁷⁹

250. The Prosecution responds that Mladić’s arguments are grounded in misconceptions, and his examples demonstrate no error or disregard of evidence.⁸⁸⁰ Regarding circumstantial evidence, it submits that Mladić’s submissions misrepresent the Trial Judgement and the evidence,⁸⁸¹ and wrongly imply that direct evidence has inherently greater value than circumstantial evidence.⁸⁸² According to the Prosecution, Mladić also repeatedly mislabels evidence as either direct or circumstantial and addresses only a fraction of the vast amount of evidence underlying the Trial Chamber’s mens rea assessment.⁸⁸³ The Prosecution further responds that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber disregarded direct evidence, as he misrepresents the law and the Trial Judgement, inflates the probative value of evidence on which he relies, and ignores relevant findings.⁸⁸⁴

251. Mladić replies that the Prosecution has mischaracterized his submissions, as he does not assert that direct evidence is inherently more probative than circumstantial evidence.⁸⁸⁵ He clarifies that the Trial Chamber relied primarily on circumstantial evidence and did not provide the requisite level of analysis of direct and highly probative evidence in opposition.⁸⁸⁶ According to Mladić, this lack of “due consideration resulted in direct evidence being given insufficient weight in the Trial Chamber’s considerations”.⁸⁸⁷

252. The Appeals Chamber recalls that a trial chamber may rely on direct or circumstantial evidence in reaching its findings.⁸⁸⁸ A trial chamber may draw inferences to establish a fact on which a conviction relies based on circumstantial evidence as long as it is the only reasonable conclusion that could be drawn from the evidence presented.⁸⁸⁹ The Appeals Chamber further recalls that the requisite mens rea for a conviction under the first form of joint criminal enterprise can be inferred from circumstantial evidence, such as a person’s knowledge of the common plan or the crimes it involves, combined with his or her continuous participation in the joint criminal enterprise, if this is the only reasonable inference available on the evidence.⁸⁹⁰

253. The Appeals Chamber first turns to Mladić’s submissions challenging the Trial Chamber’s use of specific circumstantial evidence. Mladić avers that the Trial Chamber relied on statements he made when he was posted in Croatia to infer his intention to disrespect the laws of war in Croatia and “to repeat similar destruction” in the conflict in Bosnia.⁸⁹¹ According to Mladić, statements made prior to his membership in this joint criminal enterprise should not be relied upon to establish his mens rea.⁸⁹² Mladić further surmises that this was the reason why the Trial Chamber expanded the Overarching JCE from “‘at least October 1991’ to ‘1991’”.⁸⁹³ To support his submissions, Mladić refers to paragraph 4686 of the Trial Judgement.⁸⁹⁴

254. The Appeals Chamber observes that, at paragraph 4686 of the Trial Judgement, the Trial Chamber listed, among several other factors, Mladić’s “statements indicating an intention not to respect the laws of war in Croatia in 1991, and his later references to repeating the destruction inflicted during this conflict”, when it found that he possessed discriminatory intent.⁸⁹⁵ The Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber’s reference to statements Mladić made in Croatia appears to be based on evidence set out in paragraphs 4617 to 4619 of the Trial Judgement. In these paragraphs, the Trial Chamber reviewed, inter alia, an audio recording and video transcripts of Mladić himself making threats to the effect that “if his demands were not met, he would cause destruction of a level [. . .] not yet seen before” in Croatian towns.⁸⁹⁶ The Trial Chamber further considered statements of a similar nature from 23 May 1992, during the conflict in Bosnia and Herzegovina, wherein Mladić was recorded to have threatened reprisal attacks if his demands were not met, to have stated that “he would ‘order the shelling of entire Bihać [. . .] and it will burn too’”, and to have warned that “[t]he whole of Bosnia will burn if I start to ‘speak’”.⁸⁹⁷ The Trial Chamber also noted evidence that, in August 1992, Mladić warned UNPROFOR that “he would use heavy artillery weapons if [Croatian and Bosnian] forces did not cease combat activities in Central Bosnia” and that “he would most likely aim the heavy artillery weapons at densely populated areas”.⁸⁹⁸ Given evidence of Mladić’s express threats to destroy Croatian and Bosnian towns and target civilians, Mladić does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in considering “his statements indicating an intention not to respect the laws of war in Croatia in 1991, and his later references to repeating the destruction” among several other factors when assessing his mens rea.⁸⁹⁹ Specifically, while the Trial Chamber found that Mladić held the intent to contribute to the Overarching JCE by “12 May 1992 at the latest”,⁹⁰⁰ it was not unreasonable for the Trial Chamber to consider his conduct from 1991.⁹⁰¹

255. The Appeals Chamber is also not convinced by Mladić’s submission that the Trial Chamber expanded the Overarching JCE from “‘at least October 1991’ to ‘1991’”.⁹⁰² A review of the Trial Judgement reveals no indication that the Trial Chamber relied on his statements in Croatia in 1991 to expand the temporal scope of the Overarching JCE. As set out at the end of Chapter 9.2 of the Trial Judgement, which assessed the existence of the Overarching JCE, the Trial Chamber expressly noted that it had yet to determine Mladić’s membership and participation in the joint criminal enterprise and would only do so in the subsequent chapter of the judgement.⁹⁰³ Mladić’s arguments in this regard are based on a misreading of the Trial Judgement and do not demonstrate an error.

256. As to his “passive presence” at the two Pale Meetings, Mladić argues that the relevant evidence does not indicate his mental state but rather infers “tacit agreement based solely on his physical presence”.⁹⁰⁴ He further states that, “[o]f all evidence available to the Trial Chamber, a third person’s observation was included in [its] factual basis as the most probative”.⁹⁰⁵ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber summarized the evidence of

Witness Miroslav Deronjić regarding a meeting in Pale on 10 or 11 May 1992.⁹⁰⁶ The Trial Chamber noted that, according to Deronjić, Mladić and Karadžić were present at the meeting, and that when Deronjić reported that Glogova had been partially destroyed and that Bosnian Muslims had been evacuated by force, “all present in the room greeted his report with applause”.⁹⁰⁷ The Trial Chamber also summarized the evidence of Witness Abdel-Razek to the effect that, during a Christmas celebration in Pale on 7 January 1993, Karadžić stated that Muslims would be transferred out of Serb territory as the Serbs and Muslims could not live together anymore.⁹⁰⁸ The Trial Chamber further summarized Witness Abdel-Razek’s evidence that “Mladić, General Gvero, Krajišnik, and Plavšić all agreed” and that “Krajišnik said that ethnic cleansing was necessary”.⁹⁰⁹

257. The Appeals Chamber further notes that the Trial Chamber relied upon a vast amount of evidence concerning Mladić’s statements, conduct, and knowledge of crimes to determine his mens rea in relation to the Overarching JCE.⁹¹⁰ It explicitly concluded that Mladić shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Overarching JCE and that this conclusion was based on, inter alia, Mladić’s repeated use of derogatory terms to refer to Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, his recalling of historical crimes allegedly committed against Bosnian Serbs, his expressions of commitment to an ethnically homogeneous Republika Srpska, and his provision of misinformation while knowing about the commission of crimes in the Municipalities.⁹¹¹ In view of this body of evidence, as well as the Trial Chamber’s analysis of such evidence, Mladić provides no support for his claim that the Trial Chamber, outside of summarizing Witnesses Deronjić’s and Abdel-Razek’s evidence, relied on his presence or participation in these two Pale Meetings “as the most probative” to establish his mens rea.⁹¹² Accordingly, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in referring to evidence of his participation in the two Pale Meetings in the context of assessing his mens rea.

258. The Appeals Chamber now turns to Mladić’s allegations that the Trial Chamber erred in disregarding direct and probative evidence demonstrating that he did not share the intent to further the common criminal purpose of the Overarching JCE.⁹¹³ Mladić contends that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to, and excluded from its mens rea analysis, evidence of his orders and conduct demonstrating his “anti-paramilitary position”, which is in contrast to the intent he supposedly shared with other members of the Overarching JCE that the paramilitaries commit crimes to further the joint criminal enterprise.⁹¹⁴ To support his argument, Mladić cites what he asserts is extensive evidence of his orders in relation to paramilitary groups⁹¹⁵ and meetings recorded in his military notebooks in line with his approach.⁹¹⁶ A review of Chapter 9.3.13 of the Trial Judgement reveals that the Trial Chamber did not consider Mladić’s orders to disband, arrest, or eliminate paramilitary formations when addressing his mens rea pertinent to the Overarching JCE.⁹¹⁷ Recalling that the Trial Judgement is to be considered as a whole,⁹¹⁸ the Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber reviewed this evidence when assessing Mladić’s significant contribution and noted that several orders were attempts to bring paramilitary units under the VRS’s unified command.⁹¹⁹ Contrary to his alleged “anti-paramilitary position”, the Trial Chamber found that some units operated under VRS command when crimes were committed in the Municipalities.⁹²⁰ In this regard, the Trial Chamber found that, from at least late June 1992, Mladić commanded and controlled Pero Elez’s paramilitary unit, which committed crimes in Kalinovik and Foča Municipalities.⁹²¹ It also found that from 3 June 1992 onwards, Mladić commanded and controlled the paramilitary unit under “Ljubiša Savić, a.k.a Mauzer”, which committed crimes in Bijeljina Municipality.⁹²² Therefore, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić fails to establish that the Trial Chamber erred in not considering his “anti-paramilitary position” in assessing his mens rea for the Overarching JCE. The Appeals Chamber further notes that, of the evidence he references, only a few items are orders from Mladić, or otherwise stemming from Mladić, to disarm paramilitary formations that did not submit to VRS command.⁹²³

259. Mladić further asserts that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to the “genuine warnings in his orders for VRS soldiers to respect the Geneva Conventions” and omitted to provide any reasoning on why this “direct evidence” of his intent did not form part of an evidentiary basis to arrive at another reasonable inference.⁹²⁴ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber considered extensive evidence of his orders to follow the Geneva Conventions and expressly addressed this evidence in its analysis of his mens rea in relation to the Overarching JCE.⁹²⁵ According to the Trial Chamber, evidence of, inter alia, his orders to respect the Geneva Conventions “[was] not indicative of his true state of mind” as it was contradicted by “what happened on the ground”, his provision of misinformation, and “his other contemporaneous statements”.⁹²⁶ In the Appeals Chamber’s view, the Trial Chamber's reasoned assessment, based on the totality of evidence, demonstrates its careful consideration and ultimate rejection of the "genuine" nature of Mladić's orders. Mladić's appeal submissions merely reflect his disagreement with the Trial Chamber's assessment of his orders to respect the Geneva Conventions without demonstrating any error.

260. In a similar vein, the Appeals Chamber is not convinced by Mladić's contention that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight, if any, to his orders to observe ceasefire agreements.⁹²⁷ He argues that the Trial Chamber only made findings on this evidence in relation to his actus reus and "failed to see its direct evidentiary representation of [his] mens rea".⁹²⁸ The Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber considered evidence of Mladić's orders to observe ceasefire agreements in various parts of the Trial Judgement, including the section discussing his intent to further the common purpose of the Overarching JCE.⁹²⁹ As part of its reasoning on his mens rea for the Overarching JCE, the Trial Chamber considered that Mladić "appeared on various occasions to pursue peaceful solutions to the conflict, and made statements [...] indicating his desire to further the peace process", but that "these actions and statements, sometimes providing misinformation, [were] inconsistent with [his] other conduct and [were] directly contradicted by his other contemporaneous statements".⁹³⁰ Similar to its assessment of his orders to respect the Geneva Conventions, the Trial Chamber found that Mladić's "involvement in peace negotiations [was] not indicative of his true state of mind".⁹³¹ The Appeals Chamber considers that Mladić merely disagrees with the Trial Chamber's findings without demonstrating that the Trial Chamber failed to consider, accord sufficient weight to, or provide a reasoned opinion on his orders to observe ceasefire agreements.

261. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to demonstrate any error in the Trial Chamber's assessment of direct and circumstantial evidence in relation to his intent to achieve the common objective of the Overarching JCE.

(iii) Alleged Error in Selectively Relying on Parts of Assembly Speeches

262. The Trial Chamber found that, on 12 May 1992, at the 16th Session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly ("16th Assembly Session"), Karadžić presented six strategic objectives, which most prominently included the demarcation of a Serbian state separate from any Croatian and Muslim state and involved the separation of people along ethnic lines.⁹³² The Trial Chamber further found that, during the same session, the assembly adopted the six strategic objectives and Mladić, among others present, clarified his understanding of the objectives.⁹³³ Regarding the 24th Session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly ("24th Assembly Session"), held on 8 January 1993, the Trial Chamber considered evidence that the assembly "adopted a unanimous conclusion that Muslims should be taken out of 'Serbism' forever, and that the Muslims, as a nation, were a 'sect' of Turkish provenance; a communist, artificial creation which the Serbs did not accept".⁹³⁴

263. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred by relying on "selective" parts of his speeches at the 16th and 24th Assembly Sessions when it assessed his mens rea pertinent to the Overarching JCE.⁹³⁵ With respect to the 16th Assembly Session, he argues that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to statements he made opposing the common criminal objective of the Overarching JCE, and that it "methodically isolated phrases or passages and ascribed a sinister meaning to them".⁹³⁶ In this regard, Mladić contends that the Trial Chamber referred to his warnings "against genocidal actions" but "confuse[d]" his reference to protecting people with fighting forces in the trenches.⁹³⁷ Mladić contends that the Trial Chamber also failed to provide a reasoned opinion for preferring certain parts of his statement over others.⁹³⁸ In his view, the Trial Chamber failed to "properly assess" whether the inference that he only sought military success, as opposed to permanent removal of civilians, was a reasonable alternative conclusion.⁹³⁹

264. Mladić further submits that the same error is repeated in relation to the 24th Assembly Session, whereby the Trial Chamber gave no weight to his statements calming other members of the assembly and defending UNPROFOR.⁹⁴⁰ He contends that, rather than using his own statements, the Trial Chamber chose to use the statements of others to infer his intent.⁹⁴¹ According to Mladić, another reasonable inference exists,⁹⁴² namely that he "sought only legitimate military success (not permanent removal of civilians)".⁹⁴³ He argues that, had the evidence been viewed in its totality, no reasonable trier of fact could have established that he shared the mens rea to achieve the objective of the Overarching JCE.⁹⁴⁴

265. The Prosecution responds that Mladić's arguments are based on the erroneous premise that a few fragments of isolated evidence may show error in the conclusions of the Trial Chamber that are based on a "holistic assessment of thousands of pieces of evidence".⁹⁴⁵ The Prosecution submits that Mladić makes misleading and unsubstantiated assertions about the evidence without demonstrating any unreasonableness in the Trial Chamber's approach,⁹⁴⁶ and that he makes no attempt to show an impact on findings in the Trial Judgement.⁹⁴⁷ According to the Prosecution, the Trial Chamber considered Mladić's claim that he sought only legitimate military success but reasonably rejected this on the basis of an overwhelming body of contrary evidence.⁹⁴⁸

266. In relation to Mladić's statements at the 16th Assembly Session, the Appeals Chamber is not convinced by the submission that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to "statements made by [Mladić] in opposition of the supposed aim of the common criminal objective of the O[verarching] JCE".⁹⁴⁹ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber considered Mladić's alleged warning "against genocidal actions" and other sections of his speech that appeared contrary to the Bosnian Serb Assembly position.⁹⁵⁰ The Trial Chamber also explicitly considered Mladić's claim that he only sought legitimate military success.⁹⁵¹

267. However, the Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber also considered the following statements that Mladić made at the 16th Assembly Session, including:

*'Ustašas, I know what kind of people Ustašas are. However, we must now see and assess [. . .] who our allies and our enemies are, and which enemy would be easier to handle. On the basis of this we must make our move and eliminate them, either temporarily or permanently, so that they will not be in the trenches.'*⁹⁵²

According to Mladić, the 'thing' that they were doing 'need[ed] to be guarded as [their] deepest secret'. Serb representatives in the media and at political talks and negotiations would have to present the goals in a way that would sound appealing to those who they wanted to win over and the 'Serbian people' would need to know how to read between the lines.⁹⁵³

Mladić also noted that the enemy, a 'common enemy, regardless whether it is the Muslim hordes or Croatian hordes' had attacked 'with all its might from all directions'. He further said that '[w]hat is important now is either to throw both of them out employing political and other moves, or to organize ourselves and throw out one by force of arms, and we will be able to deal somehow with the other'.⁹⁵⁴

268. In assessing his mens rea, the Trial Chamber recalled specific portions of Mladić's statement to the effect that Bosnian Serb leaders needed to guard their "deepest secret", that their objectives needed to be presented in a way that appealed to the Serbian people, and that what Krajišnik and Karadžić wanted would amount to genocide.⁹⁵⁵ The Trial Chamber also recalled his statement that "we must make our move and eliminate them, either temporarily or permanently, so that they will not be in the trenches".⁹⁵⁶ The Appeals Chamber observes that Mladić's statements, together with his conduct, underpin the Trial Chamber's finding that he possessed the intent for crimes to be committed against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats on discriminatory grounds,⁹⁵⁷ and ultimately its finding that he shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Overarching JCE.⁹⁵⁸

269. Given the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber is of the view that, contrary to Mladić's submissions, the Trial Chamber did not isolate portions of his statements at the 16th Assembly Session, ascribe a "sinister meaning" to them, or otherwise confuse his references.⁹⁵⁹ Rather, as set out above, the Trial Chamber took a balanced account of Mladić's statements in their context and considered them within the totality of evidence of all his statements and conduct pertinent to the Overarching JCE.⁹⁶⁰ Mladić therefore fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to or failed to refer to sections of his speech that were allegedly in opposition to the common criminal objective of the Overarching JCE. Given the extensive consideration of his statements at the 16th Assembly Session in the Trial Judgement,⁹⁶¹ the Appeals Chamber also rejects Mladić's submission that the Trial Chamber erred by failing to provide a reasoned opinion on why the sections of the assembly transcript that it quoted were allegedly "more important" than others.⁹⁶²

270. As to the 24th Assembly Session, Mladić refers to his interventions, contending that the Trial Chamber did not give them sufficient weight.⁹⁶³ In this regard, Mladić specifically points to: (i) his attempt to calm assembly members and to ask them to not “appear too heated and frightening” in order to “not create more damage to ourselves than necessary”;⁹⁶⁴ and (ii) his defence of UNPROFOR by stating: “I ask you not to develop such climate towards the UNPROFOR, there are those who work well”.⁹⁶⁵ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber considered evidence relating to the 24th Assembly Session but did not, in the Trial Judgement, expressly summarize or refer to the statements Mladić points to in his submission.⁹⁶⁶ Having reviewed the minutes of the 24th Assembly Session, the Appeals Chamber observes that Mladić appeared to urge assembly members to not “appear too heated and frightening” in relation to combat operations and that “35 aeroplanes took off of the Kennedy plane carrier thirty minutes ago and are flying in an unidentified direction”.⁹⁶⁷ He further made the statement to not antagonize UNPROFOR in response to an incident where the Vice-President of Bosnia and Herzegovina, travelling in an UNPROFOR vehicle, was killed by a Bosnian Serb soldier when the car was stopped and searched.⁹⁶⁸ Mladić further stated that “I don’t know how we are going to return to the Conference in Geneva” because of this incident and that “we must have a very, very sober head” to not “let some individual drive us to disaster”.⁹⁶⁹ The Appeals Chamber considers that, read in context, these statements reflect self-interest in protecting the image of the Bosnian Serb Assembly rather than protecting non-Serbs or UNPROFOR. Mladić therefore fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred by not expressly referring to these statements or that these statements would undermine findings in the Trial Judgement regarding his mens rea.

271. Mladić further contends that, in relation to the 24th Assembly Session, the Trial Chamber relied on statements of others to infer his intent.⁹⁷⁰ Having reviewed the pertinent portions of the Trial Judgement as well as evidence relating to the 24th Assembly Session, the Appeals Chamber considers that the Trial Chamber accurately summarized events at the session to the effect that Mladić was present,⁹⁷¹ and that the assembly unanimously adopted the conclusion that Muslims were a “sect” of Turkish provenance and an artificial creation which the Serbs did not accept.⁹⁷² However, the Appeals Chamber notes that there is no indication in the Trial Judgement that the Trial Chamber relied on these statements to infer his intent. Therefore, Mladić fails to demonstrate any error in this respect.

272. The Appeals Chamber now turns to Mladić’s submission that another reasonable inference – his legitimate military goals – was available on the basis of his statements at the 16th and 24th Assembly Sessions⁹⁷³ as well as his orders on the protection of civilians and on ceasefires.⁹⁷⁴ The Appeals Chamber recalls that the standard of proof beyond reasonable doubt requires a finder of fact to be satisfied that there is no reasonable explanation of the evidence other than the guilt of the accused.⁹⁷⁵ It is further recalled that a trial chamber does not have to discuss every possible hypothesis or inference it may have considered, as long as it is satisfied that the inference it retained was the only reasonable one.⁹⁷⁶

273. The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber considered Mladić’s claim that he only sought legitimate military success rather than permanent removal of Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilians.⁹⁷⁷ As set out above, the Trial Chamber considered Mladić’s interventions at the 16th Assembly Session in a balanced manner,⁹⁷⁸ and found that the totality of all his statements and conduct demonstrated that he possessed the requisite mens rea.⁹⁷⁹ Furthermore, the Trial Chamber discussed Mladić’s orders to respect the Geneva Conventions and to protect civilians,⁹⁸⁰ as well as to respect ceasefires.⁹⁸¹ As noted above, it found that these orders “were not indicative of his true state of mind”, as they were inconsistent with his other conduct, and directly contradicted by his other contemporaneous statements.⁹⁸² In this regard, the Trial Chamber found that Mladić, inter alia, repeatedly used derogatory terms to refer to Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, made references to historical crimes committed against Bosnian Serbs, and made statements indicating an intention to not respect the laws of war in Croatia in 1991, and it also considered his later references to repeating the destruction inflicted during this conflict.⁹⁸³ In light of the foregoing evidence and the Trial Chamber’s assessment, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that the alternative inference Mladić proposes is not reasonable. Mladić’s submissions amount to a disagreement with the Trial Chamber’s assessment of evidence and ultimate finding on his mens rea without demonstrating any error in its conclusions.

(iv) Conclusion

274. On the basis of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić demonstrates no error in the Trial Chamber's finding that he shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Overarching JCE.

(c) Conclusion

275. Consequently, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, dismisses Ground 3.B of Mladić's appeal.

C. ALLEGED ERRORS RELATED TO THE SARAJEVO JCE (GROUND 4)

276. The Trial Chamber found that the Sarajevo JCE existed between 12 May 1992 and November 1995, with the objective of spreading terror among the civilian population of Sarajevo through a campaign of sniping and shelling, including through the commission of murder, terror, and unlawful attacks against civilians.⁹⁸⁴ It found that members of this joint criminal enterprise included Radovan Karadžić, Stanislav Galić, Dragomir Milošević, Momčilo Krajišnik, Biljana Plavšić, Nikola Koljević, and Mladić.⁹⁸⁵ The Trial Chamber determined that Mladić shared the intent to further, and significantly contributed to achieving, the Sarajevo JCE's common purpose.⁹⁸⁶ The Trial Chamber concluded that several sniping and shelling incidents in Sarajevo, except in relation to non-civilian victims, constituted murder, terror, and/or unlawful attacks against civilians,⁹⁸⁷ and held Mladić guilty of these crimes through his participation in the Sarajevo JCE.⁹⁸⁸

277. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber committed several errors of law and fact in finding the existence of, and that he participated in, the Sarajevo JCE, and requests that the Appeals Chamber reverse his convictions for the crimes of murder, terror, and unlawful attacks against civilians in Sarajevo.⁹⁸⁹

1. Alleged Errors Related to the Crime of Terror and Mladić's Mens Rea (Ground 4.A)

278. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in holding him responsible for spreading terror among the civilian population through a campaign of sniping and shelling and in finding that he intended to further the Sarajevo JCE.⁹⁹⁰ In particular, he argues that the Trial Chamber erred in: (i) exercising jurisdiction over the crime of terror;⁹⁹¹ (ii) failing to find that Sarajevo was a "defended city";⁹⁹² (iii) finding the existence of the Sarajevo JCE and that Mladić shared the intent to further the joint criminal enterprise;⁹⁹³ and (iv) the assessment of specific intent for the crime of terror.⁹⁹⁴ The Appeals Chamber will address these contentions in turn.

(a) Alleged Errors in the Exercise of Jurisdiction over the Crime of Terror

279. The Trial Chamber determined that it had jurisdiction over acts of violence the primary purpose of which was to spread terror among the civilian population as a violation of the laws or customs of war punishable under Article 3 of the ICTY Statute ("crime of terror"), as charged under Count 9 of the Indictment.⁹⁹⁵ In making this determination, the Trial Chamber recalled that the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Galić and D. Milošević cases had confirmed that the ICTY had jurisdiction over the crime of terror and found nothing in Mladić's submissions that would lead it to deviate from the established jurisprudence.⁹⁹⁶

280. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in exercising jurisdiction over the crime of terror and convicting him of this crime, and requests that the Appeals Chamber reverse his conviction under Count 9 of the Indictment.⁹⁹⁷ In particular, he argues that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to his submissions that there exist cogent reasons to depart from the jurisprudence which holds that the ICTY had jurisdiction over the crime of terror, asserting that the prohibition of spreading terror among the civilian population did not extend to its penalization under customary international law during the period of his Indictment due to insufficient evidence of settled, extensive, or uniform state practice.⁹⁹⁸ Mladić further argues that the Trial Chamber was prohibited from exercising jurisdiction over the crime of terror because it was not defined with sufficient specificity to be foreseeable at the time of the Indictment, therefore infringing the principle of nullum crimen sine lege.⁹⁹⁹

281. The Prosecution responds that the ICTY had jurisdiction over the crime of terror because it formed part of customary international law at the relevant time and that Mladić fails to show any cogent reasons to depart from established ICTY jurisprudence in this respect.¹⁰⁰⁰ The Prosecution further asserts that: (i) at the time of Mladić's crimes, several states on four continents had criminalized terror, and the widespread ratification by 1992 of Additional Protocols I and II to the Geneva Conventions of 1949 ("Additional Protocols") further demonstrates the customary international law status of the crime of terror;¹⁰⁰¹ (ii) the principle of nullum crimen sine lege does not demand that crimes under customary international law be measured by the standards of specificity required for statutory provisions;¹⁰⁰² and (iii) the crime of terror was defined with sufficient specificity and was foreseeable to Mladić, particularly since laws of the former Yugoslavia had criminalized terror.¹⁰⁰³

282. Mladić replies that the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Galić and D. Milošević cases did not consider the absence of a widespread or representative criminalization of terror, and that, in penalizing terror, the former Yugoslavia did not adopt the language of the Additional Protocols or attempt to define the concept of terror after ratifying the Additional Protocols.¹⁰⁰⁴

283. The Appeals Chamber recalls that the ICTY Trial Chamber in the Galić case determined, by majority, that the ICTY had subject-matter jurisdiction over the crime of terror under Article 3 of the ICTY Statute.¹⁰⁰⁵ The ICTY Appeals Chamber in the same case confirmed, by majority, the ICTY's jurisdiction over the crime of terror, clarifying that customary international law imposed individual criminal responsibility for violations of the prohibition of terror against the civilian population at the time of the commission of the crimes for which Galić was convicted.¹⁰⁰⁶ The ICTY Appeals Chamber in the D. Milošević case, by majority, subsequently reaffirmed the ICTY's jurisdiction over the crime of terror.¹⁰⁰⁷ In light of this jurisprudence, the Appeals Chamber considers that the matter of the ICTY's jurisdiction over the crime of terror was settled by the ICTY Appeals Chamber and was therefore binding on the Trial Chamber in the present case.¹⁰⁰⁸ As it was not open to the Trial Chamber to depart from the existing jurisprudence in this respect, the Appeals Chamber rejects Mladić's contention that the Trial Chamber erred in failing to give sufficient weight to his submissions that there exist cogent reasons to do so.

284. As to whether there exist cogent reasons for the Appeals Chamber to depart from the jurisprudence in this regard, the standards of appellate review require Mladić to demonstrate that the decision to exercise jurisdiction over the crime of terror was made on the basis of a wrong legal principle or was "wrongly decided, usually because the judge or judges were ill-informed about the applicable law".¹⁰⁰⁹ In this respect, Mladić relies chiefly on the dissenting views of Judges Schomburg and Liu in the Galić and D. Milošević Appeal Judgements, respectively, to argue that the state practice referred to by the majority in the Galić Appeal Judgement was not sufficiently extensive, uniform, or representative to give rise to individual criminal responsibility for spreading terror among the civilian population under customary international law at the relevant time.¹⁰¹⁰

285. A review of the Galić Appeal Judgement reveals that the judges of the majority applied the same legal principles as Judge Schomburg in the Galić case and Judge Liu in the D. Milošević case in reaching their conclusions, namely that: (i) the ICTY has jurisdiction to prosecute a violation of a rule of international humanitarian law under Article 3 of the ICTY Statute when four conditions are fulfilled, including when "the violation of the rule must entail, under customary international law, the individual criminal responsibility of the person breaching the rule" ("Fourth Condition");¹⁰¹¹ and (ii) the fulfilment of the Fourth Condition may be inferred from, inter alia, state practice indicating an intention to criminalize the violation.¹⁰¹²

286. In concluding that the Fourth Condition was fulfilled, the judges of the majority in the Galić case considered, inter alia, that: (i) references to terror as a war crime could be found in national and multinational documents as early as 1919 and 1945;¹⁰¹³ (ii) numerous states, including the former Yugoslavia, had criminalized terrorizing civilians as a method of warfare or in a time of war;¹⁰¹⁴ and (iii) a court in Croatia had entered a conviction under, inter alia, Article 51 of Additional Protocol I and Article 13 of Additional Protocol II for acts of terror against civilians which occurred between March 1991 and January 1993.¹⁰¹⁵ Judge Schomburg in the Galić case and Judge Liu in the D. Milošević case, by contrast, expressed doubt as to whether the evidence referred to by the majority in the Galić case was sufficiently extensive and uniform to establish customary international law.¹⁰¹⁶

287. In the Appeals Chamber's view, Judge Schomburg in the Galić case and Judge Liu in the D. Milošević case applied the same legal principles as the majority in the Galić case in determining the sufficiency of the evidence of state practice before them and merely disagreed on the result.¹⁰¹⁷ Bearing in mind that "two judges, both acting reasonably, can come to different conclusions on the basis of the same evidence, both of which are reasonable”,¹⁰¹⁸ the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the finding by the ICTY Appeals Chamber that the ICTY had jurisdiction over the crime of terror was made on the basis of a wrong legal principle or was wrongly decided. In the absence of cogent reasons to depart from the controlling jurisprudence, the Appeals Chamber finds no error in the Trial Chamber’s determination that the ICTY had jurisdiction over the crime of terror in the present case.

288. As to Mladić’s contention that the definition of the crime of terror nonetheless violated the principle of nullum crimen sine lege for lack of specificity and foreseeability,¹⁰¹⁹ the Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber set out the elements of the crime in accordance with the ICTY Appeals Chamber’s definition in the Galić Appeal Judgement, as clarified in the D. Milošević Appeal Judgement.¹⁰²⁰ In particular, the Trial Chamber stated that the crime of terror requires proof of, inter alia, acts or threats of violence committed with the primary purpose of spreading terror among the civilian population and directed against the civilian population or individual civilians not taking direct part in hostilities causing the victims to suffer grave consequences.¹⁰²¹

289. Relying on Judge Shahabuddeen’s separate opinion in the Galić Appeal Judgement stating that “there is neither the required opinio juris nor state practice to support the view that customary international law knows of a comprehensive definition [of terror]”,¹⁰²² Mladić argues that the ICTY was not in a position to define the elements of the crime.¹⁰²³ He further contends that the definition adopted by the ICTY, particularly the requirement that victims suffer “grave consequences” from the acts or threats of violence, did not provide a clear gravity threshold and was improperly determined through a jurisdictional analysis which was developed after the Indictment period.¹⁰²⁴

290. The Appeals Chamber recalls that the principle of nullum crimen sine lege requires that a person may only be found guilty of a crime in respect of acts which constituted a violation of a norm which existed at the time of their commission.¹⁰²⁵ Moreover, the criminal liability in question must have been sufficiently foreseeable and the law providing for such liability must have been sufficiently accessible at the relevant time.¹⁰²⁶ This principle does not, however, prevent a court from interpreting and clarifying the elements of a particular crime, nor does it preclude the progressive development of the law by the court.¹⁰²⁷

291. The Appeals Chamber notes that Judge Shahabuddeen specified in his separate opinion in the Galić Appeal Judgement that: (i) he agreed with the view that terror as charged is a crime known to customary international law;¹⁰²⁸ (ii) the ICTY could recognize that customary international law does know of a core or predominant meaning of “terror” for which there was individual criminal responsibility at the material times;¹⁰²⁹ and (iii) he was satisfied that a serious violation of the laws or customs of war within the meaning of Article 3 of the ICTY Statute, namely, by resorting to the core of terror, gives rise to such responsibility, which existed at the time of the alleged acts of the appellant.¹⁰³⁰ In the view of the Appeals Chamber, the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Galić and D. Milošević cases merely clarified the elements of the crime of terror, which existed in customary international law, for the purposes of Article 3 of the ICTY Statute.¹⁰³¹ The Appeals Chamber considers that this is consistent with the principle of nullum crimen sine lege, as recalled above. Consequently, Mladić fails to show any error in the Trial Chamber’s application of the elements of the crime of terror as clarified by the ICTY Appeals Chamber.¹⁰³²

292. As to foreseeability, the Appeals Chamber recalls that the accused must be able to appreciate that his conduct was criminal in the sense generally understood, without reference to any specific provision.¹⁰³³ Although the ICTY did not apply the law of the former Yugoslavia to the definition of the crimes and forms of liability within its jurisdiction, it had recourse to domestic law for the purpose of establishing that the accused could reasonably have known that the offence in question or the offence committed in the way charged in the Indictment was prohibited and punishable.¹⁰³⁴

293. To this end, it is worth noting that the Criminal Code of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (“SFRY” and “Criminal Code of the SFRY”, respectively) in force at the time of the Indictment period provided that “[w]hoever, in violation of the rules of international law effective at the time of war, armed conflict, or occupation, orders that the civilian population be subject to [...] application of measures of intimidation and terror [...]” shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than five years or by the death penalty”.¹⁰³⁵ In addition, the military manual of the SFRY applicable at the time provided, inter alia, that: (i) “serious violations of the laws of war [are considered] as criminal offences”;¹⁰³⁶ (ii) “[w]ar crimes and other serious violations of the laws of war include [. . .] the application of measures of intimidation and terror [against a civilian population]”;¹⁰³⁷ (iii) “[a]ttacking civilians for the purpose of terrorising them is especially prohibited”;¹⁰³⁸ and (iv) “[p]ersons who commit a war crime, or any other grave violation of the laws of war, [. . .] may also answer before an international court, if such a court has been established”.¹⁰³⁹ Against this background, the Appeals Chamber considers that Mladić does not demonstrate that the crime of terror was not reasonably foreseeable to him at the time of the events charged in the Indictment.

294. Furthermore, in the Appeals Chamber’s view, the specification that, for the purposes of Article 3 of the ICTY Statute, the crime of terror also requires that victims suffered “grave consequences”,¹⁰⁴⁰ in no way detracts from the conclusion that Mladić could reasonably have known that the commission of acts or threats of violence the primary purpose of which is to spread terror among the civilian population was prohibited and punishable.¹⁰⁴¹ The Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić consequently fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in exercising jurisdiction over the crime of terror due to lack of specificity and foreseeability in its definition.

(b) Alleged Error in Failing to Find that Sarajevo was a “Defended City”

295. In finding the existence of the Sarajevo JCE, the Trial Chamber considered, inter alia, that, about two days after the policy regarding Sarajevo was outlined at the 16th Assembly Session, the SRK commenced its heavy shelling of Sarajevo, which, together with regular and frequent sniping, continued throughout the Indictment period.¹⁰⁴² The Trial Chamber found that the objective of the joint criminal enterprise involved the commission of, inter alia, the crime of terror, and that “the infliction of terror among the civilian population was used to gain strategic military advantages and done out of ethnical vengeance”.¹⁰⁴³ In making these determinations, the Trial Chamber rejected Mladić’s arguments that Sarajevo was a valid military target that could not be seen as an “undefended city” pursuant to Article 3(c) of the ICTY Statute.¹⁰⁴⁴

296. Mladić submits that, in convicting him of the crime of terror, the Trial Chamber erred by misconstruing and failing to give sufficient weight to his submissions regarding Sarajevo as a “defended city” pursuant to Article 3(c) of the ICTY Statute.¹⁰⁴⁵ In particular, he argues that the Trial Chamber “erred by failing to consider Sarajevo as a defended city which constituted a legitimate military objective”.¹⁰⁴⁶ Mladić contends that, had the Trial Chamber understood and considered his submissions in this respect, it could not have concluded that terror was the primary purpose of the campaign in Sarajevo and that he possessed the requisite mens rea for this crime.¹⁰⁴⁷ Accordingly, Mladić requests that the Appeals Chamber reverse his conviction under Count 9 of the Indictment.¹⁰⁴⁸

297. The Prosecution responds that Sarajevo as a whole was not a legitimate military target and that the Trial Chamber rightly rejected Mladić’s argument about Sarajevo as a “defended city”.¹⁰⁴⁹ It contends that, regardless of the presence of legitimate military targets within Sarajevo, or of the military advantage offered by holding the city, a distinction must be made between civilian and military objectives.¹⁰⁵⁰ The Prosecution also contends that Mladić was not charged with attacking undefended locales, but with terrorizing, unlawfully attacking, and murdering civilians as violations of the laws or customs of war pursuant to Article 3 of the ICTY Statute.¹⁰⁵¹

298. Mladić replies that he does not contend that Sarajevo in its entirety constituted a valid military target but rather, that Sarajevo, as a defended city, constituted a valid military objective.¹⁰⁵² Mladić further asserts that he does not contend that categorizing a city as “defended” allows a party to avoid their obligations of distinction, but maintains that the Trial Chamber’s conclusion that his primary objective in Sarajevo was to spread terror among the civilian population was not the only reasonable inference available on the evidence.¹⁰⁵³

299. The Appeals Chamber recalls that Article 3 of the ICTY Statute sets out a non-exhaustive list of punishable violations of the laws or customs of war, including, inter alia, under Article 3(c), the “attack, or bombardment, by whatever means, of undefended towns, villages, dwellings, or buildings” (“crime of attacking undefended locales”).¹⁰⁵⁴ The crime of attacking undefended locales is thus one of the violations of the laws or customs of war within the jurisdiction of the ICTY pursuant to Article 3 of the ICTY Statute, which include, for instance, the crimes of murder, terror, unlawfully attacking civilians, or hostage-taking.¹⁰⁵⁵ Mladić asserts that “the reference to Article 3 in the [I]ndictment should be understood to include a reference to Art[icle] 3(c)”.¹⁰⁵⁶ However, nothing in the Indictment, Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief,¹⁰⁵⁷ or trial record suggests that Mladić was charged with the crime of attacking undefended locales. Mladić therefore does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred by failing to give sufficient weight to his submissions and consider Sarajevo as a “defended city” pursuant to Article 3(c) of the ICTY Statute.

300. Moreover, Mladić conflates the question of whether Sarajevo was a “defended city” with whether it contained legitimate military objectives.¹⁰⁵⁸ In this respect, the Appeals Chamber recalls that the principle of distinction requires parties to a conflict to distinguish at all times between the civilian population and combatants, or civilian and military objectives, such that only military objectives may be lawfully attacked and the prohibition on targeting civilians is absolute.¹⁰⁵⁹ As such, Mladić’s general assertion that the strategic military importance, nature, and location of Sarajevo rendered the city and its contents broadly subject to legitimate attack falls to be rejected.¹⁰⁶⁰

301. The Appeals Chamber is also not persuaded by Mladić’s suggestion that, if the Trial Chamber had recognized Sarajevo’s strategic military importance, it could not have concluded that the campaign in Sarajevo was primarily aimed at spreading terror as opposed to gaining military advantage.¹⁰⁶¹ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber explicitly recognized that the infliction of terror among the civilian population, as the primary purpose of the sniping and shelling incidents in Sarajevo, was used to gain a strategic military advantage.¹⁰⁶² In this respect, the Trial Chamber considered evidence showing, inter alia, that: (i) many civilians were targeted while carrying out daily activities of a civilian nature or when present at sites that were known as locations where civilians gathered;¹⁰⁶³ (ii) several of the sniping and shelling attacks were carried out during cease-fires or quiet periods, and civilians were more prone to being targeted when circumstances suggested that the shooting or shelling had stopped and it was safe for civilians to continue their daily activities;¹⁰⁶⁴ (iii) numerous civilians were targeted while they were at home or in neighbourhoods where there was no military activity or military personnel and equipment present in the immediate vicinity;¹⁰⁶⁵ (iv) the period of sniping and shelling continued, largely unabated, over almost four years;¹⁰⁶⁶ and (v) civilians in Sarajevo lived in extreme and constant fear of being hit by sniper or artillery fire.¹⁰⁶⁷

302. In view of the above, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to demonstrate that no reasonable trier of fact could, in principle, have concluded that terror was the primary purpose of the shelling and sniping campaign in Sarajevo. To the extent that Mladić alleges specific errors in the Trial Chamber’s assessment of evidence in this respect, the Appeals Chamber will evaluate such allegations in connection with the supporting submissions.

(c) Alleged Errors Relating to the Existence of a Sarajevo JCE and Mladić’s Intent

303. In finding the existence of the Sarajevo JCE and that Mladić shared the common criminal purpose and intended to establish and carry out a campaign of sniping and shelling against the civilian population of Sarajevo, the Trial Chamber considered, inter alia, that the policy of the Bosnian Serb leadership with regard to Sarajevo was outlined at the 16th Assembly Session, and that Mladić personally directed the SRK to shell Sarajevo and cut its utilities to force inhabitants outside.¹⁰⁶⁸ The Trial Chamber also noted that some of the evidence received may indicate that the Bosnian Serb leadership was genuinely concerned with the well-being of civilians.¹⁰⁶⁹ In this respect, the Trial Chamber pointed to statements of assurance by Bosnian Serb officials to international organizations,¹⁰⁷⁰ including Mladić’s assurances that Sarajevo was “under no threat from the VRS”,¹⁰⁷¹ as well as certain orders prohibiting firing at civilians without approval.¹⁰⁷² The Trial Chamber concluded, however, that these could not serve as a reliable basis for determining the Bosnian Serb leadership’s true state of mind in light of the totality of the evidence.¹⁰⁷³ The Trial Chamber considered, inter alia, that Mladić’s statements at the 16th Assembly Session, as well as the language of the orders, evinced a lack of genuine concern for the well-being of civilians and the rule of law.¹⁰⁷⁴

304. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in interpreting his statements at the 16th Assembly Session predominantly through the lens of its findings on the Sarajevo crime base¹⁰⁷⁵ and in disregarding evidence of orders prohibiting the targeting of civilians.¹⁰⁷⁶ He argues that, as a consequence of these errors, alone or in combination, the Trial Chamber erred in concluding that there was no other inference available on the evidence consistent with his innocence, and thereby erroneously inferred the existence of the Sarajevo JCE and his intention to act in furtherance thereof.¹⁰⁷⁷ Mladić accordingly requests the Appeals Chamber to reverse his convictions for the crimes of murder, terror, and unlawful attacks on civilians under Counts 5, 9, and 10 of the Indictment, respectively, or, in the alternative, reverse the Trial Chamber's findings to the extent of the errors identified.¹⁰⁷⁸

305. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber reasonably interpreted Mladić's statements at the 16th Assembly Session¹⁰⁷⁹ and appropriately discounted Mladić's orders not to fire at civilians.¹⁰⁸⁰ The Prosecution further submits that the Trial Chamber's findings on the existence and Mladić's shared intent of the common criminal purpose do not hinge on his statements at the 16th Assembly Session as the Trial Chamber relied on a wide range of evidence in reaching its conclusions.¹⁰⁸¹

306. The Appeals Chamber recalls that explicit manifestations of criminal intent are often rare and that the requisite intent may therefore be inferred from relevant facts and circumstances,¹⁰⁸² such as, inter alia, the accused's words and/or actions, as well as the general context in which they occurred.¹⁰⁸³ Mladić, by contrast, argues that the Trial Chamber should have viewed the statements made at the 16th Assembly Session "independent of the crime base", and refers to an analysis by the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Gotovina and Markač case to support his argument.¹⁰⁸⁴ In the Appeals Chamber's view, however, Mladić misconstrues the ruling of the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Gotovina and Markač case. In that case, after having overturned the Trial Chamber's findings as to the criminal nature of the context in which certain statements were made, the ICTY Appeals Chamber found that the existence of a joint criminal enterprise could no longer be inferred from those statements.¹⁰⁸⁵ This does not stand for the proposition that a trial chamber should examine evidence related to intent "independent of the crime base". As recalled above, intent is generally inferred from relevant facts and circumstances which include the accused's conduct and the context in which it took place.

307. Moreover, having carefully reviewed the Trial Judgement, as well as the minutes of the 16th Assembly Session, the Appeals Chamber finds nothing to suggest that the Trial Chamber erred in its assessment of Mladić's specific statements.¹⁰⁸⁶ The Trial Chamber determined that his statements at the 16th Assembly Session evinced a desire to mislead the public about the truth of the Bosnian Serb leadership's actions in Sarajevo.¹⁰⁸⁷ Mladić, however, submits that "the warnings that '[t]he thing we are doing needs to be guarded as our deepest secret' and '[o]ur people must know how to read between the lines' could be understood as a warning not to divulge legitimate military strategies needlessly".¹⁰⁸⁸ The Appeals Chamber considers that Mladić merely proposes alternative interpretations without demonstrating the unreasonableness of the Trial Chamber's interpretation of his statements at the 16th Assembly Session.¹⁰⁸⁹

308. With respect to Mladić's contention that the Trial Chamber erred by failing to give weight to orders prohibiting the targeting of civilians,¹⁰⁹⁰ the Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber explicitly considered and discussed such orders,¹⁰⁹¹ but concluded that they evinced a concern with insubordination or wasting of ammunition,¹⁰⁹² and provided "mere lip-service" to support assurances to the international community and/or give the appearance of a leadership obeying the law.¹⁰⁹³ Mladić takes issue with this assessment, contending that such orders constituted direct evidence of his intent and therefore should have weighed against a finding that he intended to further the Sarajevo JCE.¹⁰⁹⁴ The Appeals Chamber notes, however, that, in assessing the probative value of orders prohibiting the targeting of civilians, the Trial Chamber did not only consider the language of such orders, but also, inter alia, that: (i) such orders were not adhered to and the leadership did not take measures to enforce them;¹⁰⁹⁵ (ii) the testimonial evidence concerning the existence of standing orders not to target civilians in Sarajevo was given by former members of the SRK who may have had an interest in protecting themselves;¹⁰⁹⁶ and (iii) Mladić stated at the 16th Assembly Session that Serbian people would need to know how to "read between the lines".¹⁰⁹⁷ Mladić shows no error in the Trial Chamber's approach.

309. In light of the above, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to demonstrate error in the Trial Chamber's overall assessment of his intent to commit murder, terror, and unlawful attacks on civilians in relation to the Sarajevo JCE, especially given the totality of the factors relied upon by the Trial Chamber in this respect.¹⁰⁹⁸

(d) Alleged Errors in the Assessment of Specific Intent for the Crime of Terror

310. In finding that the sniping and shelling incidents in Sarajevo constituted the crime of terror,¹⁰⁹⁹ the Trial Chamber determined, inter alia, that: (i) the perpetrators willfully made civilians not taking direct part in hostilities the object of their sniping and shelling; (ii) the perpetrators intended to spread terror among the civilian population of Sarajevo; and (iii) the infliction of terror was the primary purpose of the sniping and shelling incidents.¹¹⁰⁰

311. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in applying the same “standard of proof”, and relying on the same set of circumstantial factors, to determine the perpetrators’ wilful intent to target civilians as it did to determine their specific intent to spread terror, which requires a “higher standard of proof”.¹¹⁰¹ He contends that, in the absence of “more precise indicia”, no reasonable trier of fact could have concluded “with any certainty” that terror was the primary purpose of the perpetrators of the alleged crimes.¹¹⁰² Mladić submits that, as a result of the Trial Chamber’s error, he was wrongly held liable for the crime of terror pursuant to a joint criminal enterprise, and accordingly requests the Appeals Chamber to reverse his conviction under Count 9 of the Indictment.¹¹⁰³

312. The Prosecution responds that, for Mladić to be held liable as a member of the Sarajevo JCE, the physical perpetrators used as tools by the joint criminal enterprise members need not possess the intent for the crimes,¹¹⁰⁴ and that, in any event, the Trial Chamber reasonably concluded that the SRK perpetrators of the sniping and shelling campaign specifically intended to spread terror among Sarajevo’s civilian population.¹¹⁰⁵

313. The Appeals Chamber recalls that the mens rea of the crime of terror consists of the intent to make the civilian population or individual civilians not taking direct part in hostilities the object of acts of violence or threats thereof, and of the specific intent to spread terror among the civilian population.¹¹⁰⁶ Such intent may be inferred from the circumstances of the acts or threats of violence, such as, inter alia, their nature, manner, timing, and duration.¹¹⁰⁷ Nothing precludes a reasonable trier of fact from relying on the same set of circumstances to infer that perpetrators willfully made civilians the object of acts or threats of violence, and, at the same time, that such acts or threats of violence were committed with the primary purpose of spreading terror among the civilian population. Mladić’s argument that the Trial Chamber erred in so doing because a finding of specific intent requires a “higher standard of proof”¹¹⁰⁸ is accordingly ill-founded.

314. Moreover, in determining that spreading terror was the primary purpose of the sniping and shelling attacks in Sarajevo, the Trial Chamber considered the nature, manner, timing, location, and duration of the attacks, as well as: (i) that many civilians were targeted when carrying out daily activities such as while at the market, standing in line for food, or collecting water or firewood, and while in or around their homes or in parks and hospitals, or when travelling by tram; (ii) that children were also targeted while in school or playing or walking outside their house or on the street; (iii) that civilians were more prone to being targeted when circumstances suggested that the shooting or shelling had stopped and it was safe for them to continue their daily activities; (iv) the challenging living conditions they were subjected to; and (v) the constant and extreme fear they experienced of being hit by sniper or artillery fire.¹¹⁰⁹ In this respect, Mladić recalls his submissions that Sarajevo was a legitimate military target,¹¹¹⁰ which the Appeals Chamber has dismissed above.¹¹¹¹ He further argues that the existence of fear is not an element of the crime of terror, nor does its existence alone substantiate the conclusion that terror was intended,¹¹¹² and that the origin of such fear cannot conclusively be attributed to the SRK in light of evidence of the ABiH sniping and attacking civilians in Sarajevo.¹¹¹³

315. The Appeals Chamber recalls that terror could be defined as “extreme fear”,¹¹¹⁴ and that such fear was merely one of several factors from which the Trial Chamber inferred specific intent in this case.¹¹¹⁵ The Appeals Chamber further observes that the Trial Chamber duly considered evidence of the ABiH’s involvement in the events in Sarajevo¹¹¹⁶ and considers that such evidence does not detract from the Trial Chamber’s findings regarding the SRK’s perpetration of sniping and shelling attacks against civilians in Sarajevo and the relevant intent pertinent to such conduct.¹¹¹⁷ Consequently, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to show any error in the Trial Chamber’s assessment of the SRK perpetrators’ specific intent to spread terror among the civilian population in Sarajevo.

(e) Conclusion

316. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, dismisses Ground 4.A of Mladić's appeal.

2. Alleged Errors Related to the Crimes of Murder and Unlawful Attacks on Civilians and that Spreading Terror was the Primary Purpose of the Sarajevo JCE (Ground 4.B)

317. The Trial Chamber concluded that several sniping and shelling incidents in Sarajevo, except in relation to non-civilian victims, constituted the crimes of murder, terror and/or unlawful attacks on civilians,¹¹¹⁸ and held Mladić responsible for these crimes through his participation in the Sarajevo JCE.¹¹¹⁹

318. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in law and in fact in its assessment of the majority of the incidents that it considered to form part of the Sarajevo JCE crime base,¹¹²⁰ and that the cumulative effect of these errors impacts the Trial Chamber's findings on the existence of the Sarajevo JCE.¹¹²¹ He requests the Appeals Chamber to reverse the Trial Chamber's findings on the affected incidents, "remove" the specified incidents from consideration under Counts 5, 9, and 10 of the Indictment, and reconsider the existence of the Sarajevo JCE and his alleged intent to further its common purpose.¹¹²² In particular, he argues that the Trial Chamber erred in: (i) failing to consider evidence of legitimate military activity;¹¹²³ (ii) relying on adjudicated facts;¹¹²⁴ (iii) failing to provide a reasoned opinion;¹¹²⁵ and (iv) inferring the responsibility of the SRK.¹¹²⁶ The Appeals Chamber will address these contentions in turn.

(a) Alleged Errors in Failing to Consider Evidence of Legitimate Military Activity

319. The Trial Chamber found that, in relation to Scheduled Incident G.1, following an order from Mladić, from 5 p.m. on 28 May 1992 until early the next morning, members of the SRK fired artillery, rockets, and mortars against Sarajevo, injuring Witnesses RM-115 and Fadila Tarčin and causing extensive damage to buildings.¹¹²⁷ The Trial Chamber determined that Mladić personally directed the attack on Sarajevo, including selecting targets such as the Presidency, the town hall, police headquarters, and the children's embassy and directing the fire away from Serb-populated areas.¹¹²⁸

320. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in finding that Scheduled Incident G.1 satisfied the elements of the crimes of terror and unlawful attacks on civilians.¹¹²⁹ In particular, he argues that no reasonable trier of fact could have concluded beyond reasonable doubt, on the basis of the hearsay and circumstantial evidence of Witnesses Tarčin and John Wilson, that the SRK was responsible for the shelling attacks which injured Witnesses Tarčin and RM-115 and/or caused other grave consequences.¹¹³⁰ He further argues that the Trial Chamber misconstrued the evidence of Witness RM-511 and relied on the hearsay evidence of Witness Wilson to erroneously conclude that the attacks were wilfully directed at civilians or civilian targets, in contrast with an assessment of the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Gotovina and Markač case under similar circumstances.¹¹³¹

321. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber reasonably found that Scheduled Incident G.1 formed part of the crimes of terror and unlawful attacks on civilians, and that Mladić fails to show any error in the Trial Chamber's conclusions.¹¹³² It contends that the Trial Chamber did not base its conclusion regarding the SRK's responsibility solely on the evidence of Witnesses Tarčin and Wilson, but also on a wealth of other circumstantial evidence.¹¹³³ The Prosecution further contends that the Trial Chamber correctly interpreted Witness RM-511's evidence, which was among several other factors leading the Trial Chamber to reasonably conclude that Mladić and SRK members wilfully directed Scheduled Incident G.1 against civilians, and asserts that Mladić's comparison of his case with the Gotovina and Markač case is inapposite.¹¹³⁴

322. The Appeals Chamber notes that, in reversing the conclusion of the ICTY Trial Chamber that certain artillery attacks were unlawful, the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Gotovina and Markač case considered, inter alia, that there was no evidence that an explicit order was given to commence the unlawful attacks.¹¹³⁵ By contrast, the Trial Chamber in the present case received evidence of Mladić explicitly ordering the attack on Sarajevo and selecting civilian targets.¹¹³⁶ The Appeals Chamber therefore considers the Gotovina and Markač case to be distinguishable from the circumstances of the present case.

323. The Appeals Chamber recalls that trial chambers have the discretion to rely on hearsay evidence¹¹³⁷ and may infer the existence of a particular fact upon which the guilt of the accused depends from circumstantial evidence if it is the only reasonable conclusion that could be drawn from the evidence presented.¹¹³⁸ Mladić's implication that the Trial Chamber could not reasonably rely on hearsay and/or circumstantial evidence to reach its conclusions is accordingly ill-founded. Moreover, the Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber's findings in relation to Scheduled Incident G.1 were not only based on the evidence of Witnesses Tarčin, Wilson, and RM-511, but also on the testimonies of Witnesses RM-115, Milan Mandivolić, Bakir Nakaš, Nedžib Đozo, as well as documentary evidence.¹¹³⁹

324. In particular, in concluding that during Scheduled Incident G.1 shells were fired by the SRK and aimed at civilian targets, the Trial Chamber considered evidence, inter alia, that: (i) Witness RM-115 was seriously injured in the night of 28 May 1992 by shrapnel while at a civilian hospital;¹¹⁴⁰ (ii) Witness Tarčin was injured in the night of 28 May 1992 by shrapnel while hiding in the cellar of her house in the neighbourhood of Širokača, and learned of the model and calibre of the shell which caused her injuries and the origin of its fire from men in Širokača who had previously served with the JNA;¹¹⁴¹ (iii) the Stari Grad police station logbook recorded that, on 27 and 28 May 1992, VRS artillery shelled neighbourhoods within the vicinity of Širokača;¹¹⁴² (iv) Mladić was the Commander of the VRS Main Staff,¹¹⁴³ which comprised the SRK and other corps;¹¹⁴⁴ (v) on 29 May 1992, Witness Wilson heard an audiotape of Mladić ordering the attack on Sarajevo, selecting civilian targets while directing fire away from Serb-populated areas and determining the calibre of fire to be used at his direct command only;¹¹⁴⁵ and (vi) on 30 May 1992, Mladić admitted his responsibility for the attack on Sarajevo to Witness Wilson.¹¹⁴⁶

325. The Trial Chamber also recalled the evidence of Witness RM-511,¹¹⁴⁷ who, according to the Trial Chamber, "testified that Mladić ordered the shelling of Velešići and Pofalići, two neighbourhoods in Sarajevo, and that the civilians in these neighbourhoods be harassed throughout the night so that they could not rest".¹¹⁴⁸ In this regard, Mladić submits that "[W]itness RM-511 did not state that the Appellant had directed the bombardment of Sarajevo to harass civilians throughout the night".¹¹⁴⁹ A review of the transcript of Witness RM-511's testimony shows that the witness was made to listen to an audiotape of Mladić ordering his subordinates to "[s]hoot at Velešići, and also at Pofalići, there is not much Serb population there [. . .] [a]nd apply artillery reconnaissance, so that they cannot sleep that we roll out their minds".¹¹⁵⁰ The witness explained that the expression "roll out their minds" meant "[t]o harass them throughout the night, so that they cannot rest"¹¹⁵¹ and confirmed that Mladić, [REDACTED].¹¹⁵² In the Appeals Chamber's view, the Trial Chamber could reasonably have concluded on the basis of such evidence that the shelling of Velešići and Pofalići was wilfully directed at harassing civilians. Mladić therefore fails to demonstrate an error in the Trial Chamber's assessment of Witness RM-511's evidence.

326. Having reviewed the evidence underlying the Trial Chamber's conclusions regarding Scheduled Incident G.1, the Appeals Chamber considers that Mladić shows no error in the Trial Chamber's approach or findings. The Appeals Chamber therefore finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to show that the Trial Chamber erred in considering Scheduled Incident G.1 as part of the crimes of terror and unlawful attacks on civilians as well as in its determination of the existence of the Sarajevo JCE and his alleged intent to further its common purpose.

(b) Alleged Errors in Relying on Adjudicated Facts

327. The Trial Chamber found that, in relation to Scheduled Incident F.11, on 8 October 1994 during a series of shootings, an SRK member killed one person, hit two trams and seriously wounded 11 other people.¹¹⁵³ It further found that, in relation to Scheduled Incident G.8, on 5 February 1994, members of the SRK fired a mortar shell from Mrkovići which hit Markale Market, killing 68 people and injuring over 140 others.¹¹⁵⁴

328. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred by relying on adjudicated facts to reach essential findings, particularly with respect to the SRK's responsibility, in relation to several alleged sniping and shelling incidents underpinning his convictions for the crimes of murder, terror, and/or unlawful attacks on civilians in Sarajevo.¹¹⁵⁵ In particular, he contends that the Trial Chamber erred in: (i) failing to find that Adjudicated Fact 2303 was rebutted and then relying on it to conclude that the shots in Scheduled Incident F.11 were fired by a member of the

SRK;¹¹⁵⁶ and (ii) relying on adjudicated facts to conclude that the shell in Scheduled Incident G.8 originated from SRK territory after acknowledging that the Prosecution's own evidence could not support such a finding.¹¹⁵⁷

329. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber properly relied on adjudicated facts in relation to the events in Sarajevo and that Mladić fails to show any error in the Trial Chamber's approach.¹¹⁵⁸

330. The Appeals Chamber recalls that "adjudicated facts that are judicially noticed [...] remain to be assessed by the Trial Chamber to determine what conclusions, if any, can be drawn from them when considered together with all the evidence brought at trial".¹¹⁵⁹ As such, the final evaluation of the probative value of rebuttal evidence, which includes a final assessment of its reliability and credibility, as well as the extent to which it is consistent with or contradicts adjudicated facts, "will only be made in light of the totality of the evidence in the case, in the course of determining the weight to be attached to it".¹¹⁶⁰ The Appeals Chamber also recalls that, in order for it to assess arguments on appeal, the appealing party must provide precise references to relevant transcript pages or paragraphs in the decision or judgement to which the challenge is made.¹¹⁶¹ The Appeals Chamber notes, however, that Mladić only develops and supports his arguments with precise references to relevant adjudicated facts and/or paragraphs in the Trial Judgement in relation to Scheduled Incidents F.11 and G.8.¹¹⁶² The Appeals Chamber will therefore only consider Mladić's arguments in relation to Scheduled Incidents F.11 and G.8, and summarily dismisses his submissions under this sub-ground of appeal in relation to Scheduled Incidents F.5, F.12, F.13, F.15, F.16, G.4, G.7, and G.18 as well as Unscheduled Sniping Incidents of 24 October 1994, 22 November 1994, and 10 December 1994.

331. The Appeals Chamber notes that, in reaching its conclusions in relation to Scheduled Incident F.11, the Trial Chamber considered a number of adjudicated facts, including Adjudicated Fact 2303 according to which the shots in question were fired by an SRK member.¹¹⁶³ With respect to the origin of the fire, Mladić contends that he presented rebuttal evidence offering a reasonable alternative, which should thus have been considered sufficient to rebut the adjudicated facts and re-open the evidentiary debate.¹¹⁶⁴ A review of the Trial Judgement shows, however, that the Trial Chamber duly noted that, "[i]n relation to the origin of the fire, [...] the Adjudicated Facts and some of the evidence differ".¹¹⁶⁵ The Trial Chamber also thoroughly examined whether such evidence was sufficiently reliable to rebut the presumption of the accuracy of the adjudicated facts before determining that it could safely rely on them in its findings.¹¹⁶⁶ In this instance, Mladić does not demonstrate that it was inappropriate for the Trial Chamber to rely on adjudicated facts notwithstanding his presentation of evidence that he argued was inconsistent with them.¹¹⁶⁷ He also does not show that the Trial Chamber misapplied the burden of proof when evaluating his evidence presented to rebut the adjudicated facts.

332. As to its findings in relation to Scheduled Incident G.8, the Trial Chamber similarly considered a number of adjudicated facts – including Adjudicated Facts 2519 and 2525 according to which the mortar shell was fired from SRK-controlled territory.¹¹⁶⁸ Mladić points to the Trial Chamber's finding that evidence of investigations that were inconclusive as to the origin of fire did not contradict the adjudicated facts establishing the matter,¹¹⁶⁹ and contends that the Trial Chamber impermissibly entered "into the arena of the parties" and "saved the Prosecution case" by relying on adjudicated facts instead of the Prosecution evidence.¹¹⁷⁰ He argues that the fact that the Prosecution evidence was inconclusive as to the origin of fire should have been considered sufficient to rebut the adjudicated facts on this point.¹¹⁷¹

333. The Appeals Chamber recalls that judicially noticed facts are presumed to be accurate, and therefore do not have to be proven again at trial, but may be challenged subject to that presumption.¹¹⁷² As such, the Prosecution was not required to adduce evidence supporting the origin of fire as stated in the adjudicated facts,¹¹⁷³ even if, according to Mladić, the Prosecution intended to do so.¹¹⁷⁴ Moreover, the Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber duly considered evidence disputing that the SRK fired the shell in Scheduled Incident G.8.¹¹⁷⁵ The Trial Chamber also thoroughly examined whether such evidence was sufficiently reliable to rebut the presumption of the accuracy of the adjudicated facts before determining that it could safely rely on them in its findings.¹¹⁷⁶ Mladić does not demonstrate that it was inappropriate for the Trial Chamber to rely on adjudicated facts notwithstanding that the record included relevant Prosecution evidence that the Trial Chamber did not rely upon.

334. The Appeals Chamber therefore finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to demonstrate any error in the Trial Chamber's reliance on adjudicated facts in its assessment of Scheduled Incidents F.11 and G.8.

(c) Alleged Error in Failing to Provide a Reasoned Opinion

335. The Trial Chamber found that, in relation to Scheduled Incident G.6, on 22 January 1994, three mortars were fired by a member or members of the SRK hitting a neighbourhood area where children were playing, killing six children and severely wounding six other civilians, five of whom were children.¹¹⁷⁷ It further found that, in relation to Scheduled Incident G.7, on 4 February 1994, three mortar shells were fired by an SRK member on a residential neighbourhood of Dobrinja, killing at least eight civilians and wounding at least eighteen persons who were queuing for humanitarian aid.¹¹⁷⁸

336. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred by failing to provide a reasoned opinion in finding that the perpetrators of the attacks in Scheduled Incidents G.6 and G.7 wilfully intended to target civilians.¹¹⁷⁹ In particular, he contends that the Trial Chamber elaborated on a number of specific incidents in reaching its conclusion that the perpetrators wilfully targeted civilians, but that Scheduled Incidents G.6 and G.7 were not included in this analysis.¹¹⁸⁰ Mladić further argues that circumstantial evidence such as Adjudicated Fact 2434, on which the Trial Chamber relied to conclude that the attack in Scheduled Incident G.6 was not directed at a legitimate military objective, cannot, by itself, demonstrate the wilful intent of the perpetrator to attack a civilian target.¹¹⁸¹

337. The Prosecution recalls its submissions that the SRK perpetrators' intent is not required to be proven in order to hold Mladić liable as a member of the Sarajevo JCE, and responds that, in any event, the Trial Chamber's conclusion on the SRK perpetrators' wilful intent for Scheduled Incidents G.6 and G.7 with regard to murder, terror, and unlawful attacks on civilians was reasoned and reasonable.¹¹⁸²

338. The Appeals Chamber recalls that the intent to make the civilian population or individual civilians not taking direct part in hostilities the object of acts of violence or threats may be inferred from the circumstances of the acts or threats of violence, such as, inter alia, their nature, manner, timing, and duration.¹¹⁸³ Mladić's submission that the Trial Chamber erred in relying exclusively on circumstantial evidence such as Adjudicated Fact 2434, according to which an ABiH military unit was not the intended target of the attack in Scheduled Incident G.6,¹¹⁸⁴ to infer the wilful intent to attack civilians is accordingly ill-founded.

339. The Appeals Chamber further recalls that a trial chamber is not required to articulate every step of its reasoning and that a trial judgement must be read as a whole.¹¹⁸⁵ In the present case, a reading of the Trial Judgement shows that the Trial Chamber clearly considered Scheduled Incidents G.6 and G.7 among those incidents for which it inferred the intent to target civilians beyond reasonable doubt,¹¹⁸⁶ and in respect of which it explicitly "considered a number of factors in determining whether civilians or the civilian population were targeted."¹¹⁸⁷ Such factors included, inter alia, that the victims were civilians, that they were in residential areas when targeted, and that there were no military targets in their vicinity.¹¹⁸⁸

340. In light of the above, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber failed to provide a reasoned opinion in finding that perpetrators of the attacks in Scheduled Incidents G.6 and G.7 wilfully intended to target civilians.

(d) Alleged Errors in Inferring SRK Responsibility from Circumstantial Evidence

341. The Trial Chamber found that, in relation to Scheduled Incident F.5, on 2 November 1993, a member of the SRK targeted, shot, and injured a Bosnian Muslim civilian in her leg.¹¹⁸⁹ It determined that the shot was fired by a member of the SRK on the basis that it originated from SRK-held territory.¹¹⁹⁰ The Trial Chamber similarly determined that the SRK was responsible for a number of other incidents on the basis that the fire in those incidents originated from SRK-held territory.¹¹⁹¹

342. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in inferring the SRK's responsibility for alleged incidents such as Scheduled Incident F.5 on the sole basis that the fire originated from SRK-held territory.¹¹⁹² He contends that the Trial Chamber failed to consider exculpatory evidence such as that the ABiH were, at times, tasked to snipe civilians in Sarajevo to make it appear as though the SRK were responsible,¹¹⁹³ and argues that the Trial Chamber's errors in this regard affected a number of other incidents.¹¹⁹⁴

343. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber reasonably found the SRK to be responsible when fire originated from SRK-held territory since this was the only inference available on the evidence.¹¹⁹⁵ It also contends that the Trial Chamber did address the possibility that the ABiH fired from SRK-held territory.¹¹⁹⁶

344. The Appeals Chamber recalls that a trial chamber may infer the existence of a particular fact upon which the guilt of the accused depends from circumstantial evidence if it is the only reasonable conclusion that would be drawn from the evidence presented.¹¹⁹⁷ As such, the Trial Chamber's inference that the SRK must have been responsible for fire that originated from SRK-held territory is not per se unreasonable, unless the relevant evidence would suggest otherwise. In this respect, the Appeals Chamber notes that Mladić does not support his argument that the ABiH could also have been responsible for firing at civilians from SRK-held territory with references to any evidence underlying any of the specific incidents he contends were affected by the Trial Chamber's alleged error.¹¹⁹⁸

345. Moreover, a review of the Trial Judgement shows that the Trial Chamber explicitly considered and analyzed exculpatory evidence disputing the origin of fire, including evidence of possible ABiH involvement, in respect of certain incidents.¹¹⁹⁹ With respect to Scheduled Incident F.5, for example, the Trial Chamber considered the evidence of Witness Mile Poparić, who testified that there was a line of sight from ABiH-held territory to the impact site and that the shot could not have come from Serb-held positions.¹²⁰⁰ The Trial Chamber concluded that such evidence was not sufficiently reliable to rebut Adjudicated Facts 2263 and 2266 establishing that the shot was fired from SRK-held territory, and that any remaining contradictory evidence related to marginal aspects of the incident and did not affect the outcome of its finding.¹²⁰¹ The Trial Chamber further noted that the only evidence to support the Defence's argument that "ABiH units sn[u]ck into SRK-held territory and fired from there into the city" was hearsay evidence, which the Trial Chamber determined to be "very vague and insufficiently probative to affect the Trial Chamber's finding in this regard".¹²⁰² In determining SRK responsibility with respect to several other incidents, the Trial Chamber "refer[red] to its considerations [. . .] as set out in its factual finding on Scheduled Incident F.5".¹²⁰³ Mladić demonstrates no error in the Trial Chamber's approach. The Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, accordingly dismisses Mladić's arguments in this respect.

(e) Conclusion

346. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, dismisses Ground 4.B of Mladić's appeal.¹²⁰⁴

D. ALLEGED ERRORS RELATED TO THE SREBRENICA JCE (GROUND 5)

347. The Trial Chamber found that, between the days immediately preceding 11 July 1995 and at least October 1995, the Srebrenica JCE existed with the primary purpose of eliminating Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by killing the men and boys and forcibly removing the women, young children, and some elderly men.¹²⁰⁵ The Trial Chamber concluded that the objective of the Srebrenica JCE involved the commission of the crimes of persecution and inhumane acts (forcible transfer) "in the days immediately preceding 11 July 1995".¹²⁰⁶ By the morning of 12 July 1995, and "prior to the first crime being committed", the crimes of genocide, extermination, and murder became part of the means to achieve the objective.¹²⁰⁷ According to the Trial Chamber, members of the Srebrenica JCE included Radovan Karadžić, Radislav Krstić, Vujadin Popović, Zdravko Tolimir, Ljubomir Borovčanin, Svetozar Kosorić, Radivoje Miletić, Radoslav Janković, Ljubiša Beara, Milenko Živanović, Vinko Pandurević, Vidoje Blagojević, and Mladić.¹²⁰⁸

348. The Trial Chamber found that Mladić contributed significantly to the Srebrenica JCE¹²⁰⁹ and that he shared the intent to achieve its common objective.¹²¹⁰ As a member of the Srebrenica JCE, the Trial Chamber found him guilty of the crimes of genocide, persecution, inhumane acts (forcible transfer), murder, and extermination.¹²¹¹

349. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber committed errors of law and fact in finding he participated in, significantly contributed to, and shared the intent for the Srebrenica JCE, and requests that the Appeals Chamber reverse his convictions for the crimes of genocide as well as murder, extermination, persecution, and inhumane acts (forcible transfer) as crimes against humanity.¹²¹²

1. Alleged Errors Related to the Common Plan for Forcible Transfer, Genocide, Extermination, and Murder (Ground 5.A)

350. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in its assessment of the evidence in relation to the Srebrenica JCE and in finding that he was part of a common criminal plan to: (i) forcibly transfer individuals; and (ii) commit genocide, extermination, and murder.¹²¹³ The Appeals Chamber will address these arguments in turn.

(a) Alleged Errors Concerning the Common Plan for Forcible Removal

351. The Trial Chamber found that the VRS began attacking the Srebrenica enclave on 6 July 1995,¹²¹⁴ and, as a result, thousands of Bosnian Muslims fled to Potočari seeking protection within the UNPROFOR compound.¹²¹⁵ The Trial Chamber held that the displacement of the Bosnian Muslim civilians gathered in Potočari was organized by the VRS and the MUP and took place, for the first convoy only, under the supervision and escort of UNPROFOR.¹²¹⁶ In considering the displacements, the Trial Chamber recalled: (i) the circumstances surrounding the movement of population from Srebrenica to Potočari, including the orders by the VRS 10th Sabotage Detachment to Srebrenica Town inhabitants to leave, the shells fired by the VRS at the UNPROFOR Bravo compound in Srebrenica, and the mortars fired along the road taken by the Bosnian Muslims fleeing towards Potočari; (ii) the situation in the UNPROFOR compound in Potočari and its surroundings, where the population sought refuge, namely the shots and shells fired around the compound, the dire living conditions, and the fear and exhaustion of the Bosnian Muslims who had sought refuge there; and (iii) that the VRS, assisted by MUP units, coordinated the boarding of buses, ultimately forcing women, children, and the elderly onto the buses while some were hit by members of the MUP, and that the VRS escorted the buses towards Bosnian Muslim controlled territory.¹²¹⁷ Based on the above, the Trial Chamber concluded that the approximately 25,000 Bosnian Muslims, mostly women, children, and the elderly who left Potočari to go to Bosnian Muslim controlled territory, did not have a genuine choice but to leave.¹²¹⁸

352. With respect to Mladić's role in the transfers, the Trial Chamber found that Mladić gave several orders in relation to the displacement of the Bosnian Muslim civilians from Srebrenica, including the transportation of Bosnian Muslim civilians out of Potočari.¹²¹⁹ In particular, the Trial Chamber found that Mladić and other VRS officers, a representative of the Serb civilian leadership in Srebrenica, UNPROFOR members, and "representatives" of the Bosnian Muslim population "agreed" on 12 July 1995 that the evacuation of the Bosnian Muslim civilians would be organized by the VRS and Bosnian Serb police forces, and would take place under the supervision and escort of UNPROFOR.¹²²⁰

353. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in inferring that he was part of a joint criminal enterprise to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica through their forcible transfer given that the totality of the evidence allowed for another reasonable inference – namely that he was acting in coordination with high-level Dutch Battalion ("DutchBat")/UNPROFOR officials to evacuate civilians for humanitarian reasons.¹²²¹ He asserts that there was ample evidence that the evacuations were necessary and observes that the Trial Chamber credited evidence that he had given civilians a choice to leave.¹²²² In this context, he argues that the Trial Chamber gave no or insufficient weight to evidence that he evacuated civilians pursuant to UN requests to coordinate humanitarian evacuations.¹²²³ Mladić requests that the Appeals Chamber reverse the Trial Chamber's findings of forcible transfer under the first form of joint criminal enterprise or, alternatively, reverse the findings to the extent of the errors identified.¹²²⁴

354. The Prosecution responds that Mladić disagrees with the Trial Chamber's evidentiary assessment without demonstrating error.¹²²⁵ It argues that the Trial Chamber considered and rejected Mladić's argument that the evidence suggested that the civilian population was evacuated for humanitarian reasons.¹²²⁶

355. Mladić replies that the Prosecution has taken the Trial Chamber's findings out of context and did not respond to the errors he identified.¹²²⁷

356. The Appeals Chamber observes that Mladić seeks to demonstrate under this ground of appeal that the evacuations were not unlawful. The Appeals Chamber recalls that forcible transfer entails the displacement of persons from the area in which they are lawfully present, without grounds permitted under international law.¹²²⁸ The requirement that the displacement be forced is not limited to physical force but can be met through the threat of force or coercion, such as that caused by fear of violence, duress, detention, psychological oppression or abuse of power, or taking advantage of a coercive environment. It is the absence of genuine choice that makes the displacement unlawful. While fear of violence, use of force, or other such circumstances may create an environment where there is no choice but to leave, the determination as to whether a transferred person had a genuine choice is one to be made in the context of a particular case being considered.¹²²⁹ Displacement may be permitted by international law in certain limited circumstances,¹²³⁰ provided it is temporary in nature¹²³¹ and conducted humanely.¹²³² Notably, however, displacement is not permissible where the humanitarian crisis that caused the displacement is the result of the accused's own unlawful activity.¹²³³ In addition, the participation of a non-governmental organization in facilitating displacements does not in and of itself render an otherwise unlawful transfer lawful.¹²³⁴

357. The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber considered whether the displacement of the Bosnian Muslim civilians gathered in Potočari on 12 and 13 July 1995 was undertaken pursuant to an evacuation permitted by international law and found that this was not the case.¹²³⁵ Mladić contends that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to evidence that the transfers were necessary for humanitarian reasons and that he “worked in coordination with” UNPROFOR to evacuate the civilians.¹²³⁶ The Appeals Chamber observes that, when addressing the attacks on Srebrenica, the displacement of the Bosnian Muslim civilians, and Mladić's role in the Srebrenica JCE, the Trial Chamber considered the evidence to which Mladić points on appeal.¹²³⁷ The Appeals Chamber also observes that the Trial Chamber correctly recalled that “the displacement of persons carried out pursuant to an agreement among political or military leaders or under the auspices of an organization does not necessarily make it voluntary”.¹²³⁸ While Mladić seeks to emphasize cooperation with international organizations with respect to the relocations of civilians from Srebrenica, he ignores the Trial Chamber's finding that DutchBat soldiers accompanied only the first convoys on 12 July 1995 but were then stopped by the VRS and that VRS soldiers stole DutchBat jeeps as well as weapons and equipment, rendering further DutchBat escorts impossible.¹²³⁹ Mladić does not contest these conclusions.

358. Moreover, Mladić fails to undermine the core findings relied upon by the Trial Chamber to determine that the displacements from Srebrenica were not lawful. Significantly, the Trial Chamber recalled that it was the conduct of the VRS that precipitated the humanitarian crises that preceded the displacements as well as the violent nature in which the VRS effected the displacements.¹²⁴⁰ The Trial Chamber concluded that, in such circumstances, the civilians who left Srebrenica in July 1995 “did not have a genuine choice but to leave”.¹²⁴¹ Furthermore, in assessing displacements cumulatively, which included those related to Srebrenica in July 1995, the Trial Chamber found that the transfers were “not carried out for the security of the persons involved, but rather to transfer them out of certain municipalities” and that no steps were taken to secure the return of those displaced.¹²⁴² On this basis, the Trial Chamber concluded that there “were no circumstances that justified the displacement [. . .] as recognized by international law”.¹²⁴³

359. In view of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred with respect to the Srebrenica JCE in finding that the removal of Bosnian Muslim women, young children, and some elderly men from Srebrenica was forcible.

(b) Alleged Errors Concerning the Common Plan to Commit Genocide, Extermination, and Murder

360. The Trial Chamber found that, by the morning of 12 July 1995, the objective of the Srebrenica JCE developed to involve the commission of the crimes of genocide, extermination, and murder.¹²⁴⁴ In reaching this finding, the Trial Chamber specifically considered its findings that Momir Nikolić, Kosorić, and Popović discussed the “killings on the morning of 12 July 1995” as well as findings that Tolimir first ordered that Batković camp be prepared for a large number of detainees and thereafter conveyed that this plan had been given up.¹²⁴⁵

361. As it concerns Mladić's involvement in the Srebrenica JCE, the Trial Chamber found, inter alia, that between at least 11 July and 11 October 1995, Mladić issued several orders to VRS forces, including the Drina Corps, concerning the operation in and around Srebrenica, provided misleading information about the crimes, and failed to take adequate steps to investigate and/or punish the perpetrators.¹²⁴⁶ The Trial Chamber held that Mladić significantly contributed to achieving the objective of the Srebrenica JCE.¹²⁴⁷

362. The Trial Chamber further determined that Mladić shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Srebrenica JCE, including genocidal intent, based on his statements and conduct throughout the take-over of the Srebrenica enclave, including: (i) his command and control over VRS and MUP units operating in and around Srebrenica in July 1995; (ii) his role in the Hotel Fontana meetings on 11 and 12 July 1995, including statements that the Bosnian Muslims could either “live or vanish”, “survive or disappear”, and that only the people who could secure the surrender of weapons would save the Bosnian Muslims from “destruction”; (iii) his presence in a meeting at the Bratunac Command Centre on 13 July 1995 with VRS and MUP officers during which the task of killing 8,000 Muslim males near Konjević Polje was discussed; (iv) his presence during the gathering and separation of Bosnian Muslims in Potočari on 12 and 13 July 1995; (v) his denial of the crimes committed in Srebrenica; and (vi) the measures he took to provide misleading information and prevent the media from knowing what was happening in Srebrenica.¹²⁴⁸

363. Mladić contends that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to the lack of direct, indirect, or corroborative evidence that a meeting occurred between 11 and 12 July 1995 wherein the criminal objective to commit genocide, extermination, and murder was discussed or agreed upon.¹²⁴⁹ He submits that the Trial Chamber: (i) erroneously relied on hearsay evidence from Witness Momir Nikolić to indirectly conclude that such a meeting occurred;¹²⁵⁰ (ii) failed to take into account that the evidence demonstrated that Mladić would not have had the opportunity to attend such a meeting;¹²⁵¹ and (iii) failed to sufficiently account for Prosecution and Defence evidence that the only known meeting including Mladić and his subordinates that occurred at that time involved no discussion of killings or any criminal objective.¹²⁵²

364. Mladić further submits that the Trial Chamber inferred his participation in the common criminal enterprise based on his statements at the Hotel Fontana meetings and command and control over the VRS and the MUP but erred by: (i) giving insufficient weight to the military context in which the statements at the Hotel Fontana meetings were made,¹²⁵³ and (ii) placing undue weight on his position and role in the military without sufficiently accounting for the absence of evidence “showing direct orders”.¹²⁵⁴

365. Mladić argues that, in light of the above, another reasonable inference was available and, therefore, the actus reus for the Srebrenica JCE supporting his convictions for genocide, extermination, and murder is not established beyond reasonable doubt.¹²⁵⁵ He requests that the Appeals Chamber reverse these convictions or, alternatively, reverse the findings to the extent of the errors identified.¹²⁵⁶

366. The Prosecution responds that it was not its case at trial, and that the Trial Chamber never found, that there was a specific meeting on the night of 11 to 12 July 1995,¹²⁵⁷ but rather that the plan “must have been discussed and decided upon sometime between the evening of 11 July [...] and 10:00 hours on 12 July”.¹²⁵⁸ Accordingly, the Prosecution argues that Mladić’s challenge to such a non-existent finding should be summarily dismissed.¹²⁵⁹ It further submits that the Trial Chamber specifically considered the argument that there was no evidence of a meeting where crimes were discussed and that Mladić fails to demonstrate how the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to that argument.¹²⁶⁰ The Prosecution argues that the Trial Chamber was entitled to rely upon the evidence as it did and that Mladić identifies no error.¹²⁶¹ The Prosecution further contends that Mladić’s submissions that the Trial Chamber placed undue weight on his position and role in the military and gave insufficient weight to a lack of direct orders are unsupported.¹²⁶²

367. Mladić replies that the Prosecution fails to engage with or undermine the legal or factual bases of his submissions.¹²⁶³ He contends that the Prosecution submissions misrepresent his arguments and that the Prosecution incorrectly relies on inapplicable evidence.¹²⁶⁴

368. The Appeals Chamber observes that, contrary to Mladić’s submissions, the Trial Chamber made no finding that a meeting attended by Mladić and his subordinates occurred between 11 and 12 July 1995 wherein the common criminal plan to commit genocide, extermination, and murder was discussed or formulated. In this respect, Mladić simply points to evidence summarized by the Trial Chamber or arguments made by the Prosecution rather than any finding made by the Trial Chamber.¹²⁶⁵ Consequently, Mladić’s arguments that the Trial Chamber erroneously relied on Witness Momir Nikolić’s hearsay evidence to reach such a conclusion as well as his contentions that the evidence on the record would not have permitted Mladić to attend such a meeting are without merit and are dismissed. In light of this conclusion, the Appeals Chamber further dismisses as moot Mladić’s arguments that the Trial Chamber erred

by relying on Witness Momir Nikolić's evidence because: (i) his evidence of a meeting occurring between 11 and 12 July 1995 did not establish a link with Mladić; (ii) it failed to account for Witness Bursik's evidence and its own determination that Witness Momir Nikolić lacked credibility; and (iii) it relied upon Exhibit D1228 for the truth of its contents to establish the occurrence of this meeting contrary to Rules 43, 92 bis or 92 quater of the ICTY Rules and because the Prosecution did not rely on it in its closing submissions for this purpose.¹²⁶⁶

369. Furthermore, Mladić does not show that the Trial Chamber failed to sufficiently account for evidence of his participation in a meeting in which no discussion of killings or any criminal act took place. Mladić's arguments are premised on the Trial Chamber's summaries of evidence of a meeting at the Bratunac Brigade headquarters on 11 or 12 July 1995,¹²⁶⁷ which the Trial Chamber clearly considered and made findings on.¹²⁶⁸ Mladić has not shown that the Trial Chamber disregarded this evidence or that it is inconsistent with its conclusion that the crimes of genocide, extermination, and murder became part of the means to achieve the elimination of Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by the early morning of 12 July 1995, prior to the first crime being committed.¹²⁶⁹ Notably, in reaching this conclusion, the Trial Chamber specifically considered its findings that: (i) the VRS intended to empty the enclave; (ii) the crimes of persecution and inhumane acts (forcible transfer) were committed following the attack, noting that the crimes of genocide, extermination, and murder became part of the means to achieve the objective by early 12 July 1995; (iii) Momir Nikolić, Kosorić, and Popović discussed the killings on the morning of 12 July 1995; and (iv) Tolimir first ordered that Batković camp be prepared for a large number of detainees and thereafter conveyed that this plan had been given up.¹²⁷⁰

370. Turning to Mladić's argument that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to the military context in which his statements at the second Hotel Fontana meeting were made, the Appeals Chamber finds that the evidence cited by him does not support this argument.¹²⁷¹ The Trial Chamber found that Mladić intended to commit genocide based in part on statements made at the second Hotel Fontana meeting wherein he stated that the Bosnian Muslims could either "live or vanish" and "survive or disappear".¹²⁷² Mladić points to the evidence of Witnesses Richard Butler and Kovač in support of his argument.¹²⁷³ However, Witness Butler expressly declined to interpret Mladić's statements quoted above,¹²⁷⁴ while Witness Kovač's evidence cited by Mladić relates only to the question of the surrender of the 28th Division of the ABiH, not the statements in question.¹²⁷⁵ The Appeals Chamber finds that this evidence does not substantiate Mladić's submission that the Trial Chamber failed to sufficiently consider the military context in which his statements were made and he has identified no error in this respect.

371. As to Mladić's contention that the Trial Chamber placed undue weight on his position and role in the military without sufficiently accounting for the absence of evidence showing his direct orders, the Appeals Chamber observes that Mladić refers to paragraphs of the Trial Judgement assessing his contributions and his mens rea with respect to the Srebrenica JCE in isolation.¹²⁷⁶ His undeveloped arguments do not demonstrate any errors in the conclusions reached in those paragraphs and, notably, ignore several findings of the Trial Chamber that he issued orders in relation to the Srebrenica operations.¹²⁷⁷ Consequently, the Appeals Chamber dismisses these contentions.

372. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić does not show that the Trial Chamber erred in relation to his participation in the Srebrenica JCE as it pertains to his convictions for genocide, extermination, and murder.

(c) Conclusion

373. In light of the above, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, dismisses Ground 5.A of Mladić's appeal.

2. Alleged Error Regarding Significant Contribution (Ground 5.B)

374. In concluding that Mladić significantly contributed to the Srebrenica JCE, the Trial Chamber considered his acts vis-à-vis the VRS and subordinated MUP units, given that all of the principal perpetrators of the crimes forming part of the Srebrenica JCE were VRS or MUP members.¹²⁷⁸ In this respect, the Trial Chamber found, inter alia, that: (i) Mladić exercised command and control over the VRS and the MUP forces deployed during the entire Srebrenica operation and its aftermath;¹²⁷⁹ (ii) Mladić failed to take adequate steps to investigate crimes and/or punish members of the VRS and other Serb forces under his effective control who committed crimes in Srebrenica;¹²⁸⁰ and (iii) Mladić's acts were so instrumental to the commission of the crimes that without them the crimes would not have been committed as they were.¹²⁸¹

375. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred by giving insufficient, if any, weight to exculpatory evidence of the actus reus of the Srebrenica JCE and failing to provide a reasoned opinion on probative evidence.¹²⁸² In particular, Mladić argues that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to: (i) evidence regarding his absence from Srebrenica when the crimes were committed, including the content of four orders issued between 14 and 16 July 1995 (collectively, the "Four Orders") and the change in the command structure of the VRS during his absence;¹²⁸³ (ii) evidence that the MUP was not under his effective control;¹²⁸⁴ (iii) the military context and content of orders he gave in Srebrenica;¹²⁸⁵ (iv) evidence undermining the authenticity and reliability of certain intercept communications;¹²⁸⁶ and (v) evidence that he had no knowledge of crimes, and/or he was unable to prevent or punish them, and that he or his subordinates did prosecute or investigate certain crimes.¹²⁸⁷ According to Mladić, had the Trial Chamber given sufficient weight to this evidence, it would not have concluded beyond reasonable doubt that he significantly contributed to furthering the objective of the Srebrenica JCE.¹²⁸⁸ Mladić therefore requests that the Appeals Chamber reverse his convictions under the Srebrenica JCE or, alternatively, reverse the findings to the extent of any errors.¹²⁸⁹ The Appeals Chamber will address each of Mladić's arguments in turn.

(a) Evidence of Mladić's Absence from Srebrenica

376. Mladić submits that, had sufficient weight been given to the evidence of his absence from Srebrenica at the time the crimes were committed, a reasonable trier of fact would not have concluded that he exercised command and control over VRS and MUP forces during that time period.¹²⁹⁰ In this respect, Mladić argues that in relying on four orders issued between 14 and 16 July 1995 to illustrate his command and control while he was away in Belgrade,¹²⁹¹ the Trial Chamber failed to provide a reasoned opinion on how the Four Orders could be attributed to him.¹²⁹² In particular, he submits that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to the content of the Four Orders, specifically that they: (i) relate to the day-to-day running of the army, and not to, inter alia, military operations and Srebrenica;¹²⁹³ (ii) were not sent to units in Srebrenica or to any MUP forces;¹²⁹⁴ and (iii) had unique identification numbers, which indicates that the Four Orders emanated from the General Staff of the VRS.¹²⁹⁵ He also contends that while the Trial Chamber accepted Witness Stevanović's evidence that "s.r./signed" on a document did not always mean that the individual whose signature appeared on the document was aware of it or had actually signed it, the Trial Chamber did not consider this in respect of the Four Orders.¹²⁹⁶

377. Mladić further submits that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to evidence of the change in the command structure while he was in Belgrade in July 1995, in particular that the then VRS Chief of Staff, Manojlo Milovanović, replaced him as de jure and de facto Commander of the VRS.¹²⁹⁷ He contends that the Trial Chamber placed undue weight on four intercept communications between 14 and 16 July 1995,¹²⁹⁸ and that, even if authentic,¹²⁹⁹ they provided insufficient evidence for a reasonable trier of fact to conclude that Mladić continued to exercise command and control of the VRS while he was away.¹³⁰⁰

378. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber reasonably found that Mladić exercised command and control during the entire Srebrenica operation, including between 14 and 16 July 1995 when he was in Belgrade.¹³⁰¹ Specifically, it argues that the Trial Chamber considered the Four Orders in their context to find that Mladić issued them, and that they, along with other mutually corroborating evidence, demonstrate his exercise of command and control from Belgrade.¹³⁰² The Prosecution further contends that Mladić's undeveloped argument that Milovanović replaced him as Commander of the VRS while he was in Belgrade should be summarily dismissed,¹³⁰³ and that the Trial Chamber reasonably concluded that intercepted communications between 14 and 16 July 1995 demonstrate Mladić's continued command and control over the VRS from Belgrade.¹³⁰⁴

379. The Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber found that irrespective of whether Mladić was in Srebrenica or in Belgrade in July 1995, he remained the Commander of the VRS Main Staff.¹³⁰⁵ In reaching this finding, the Trial Chamber considered that, throughout July 1995, including during his travel to Belgrade, Mladić: (i) was in contact with the VRS Main Staff and maintained command and control; (ii) gave orders to VRS units which were implemented; (iii) took measures to ensure the implementation of his orders, including when he was not present on the ground; and (iv) communicated over the phone with Milovanović on a regular basis.¹³⁰⁶ In particular, the Trial Chamber addressed in detail communications and orders by Mladić, as well as conversations between Mladić and other members of the Bosnian Serb leadership, including Milovanović, during his absence from Srebrenica.¹³⁰⁷ In light of the above, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić's submission in relation to the Trial Chamber's weighing of evidence relating to his absence from Srebrenica reflects mere disagreement with the Trial Chamber's assessment of evidence without demonstrating any error. The Appeals Chamber recalls that the mere assertion that a trial chamber failed to give proper weight to evidence is liable to be summarily dismissed.¹³⁰⁸

380. With respect to the alleged failure to provide a reasoned opinion on how the Four Orders could be attributed to Mladić, the Appeals Chamber recalls that, in claiming an error of law on the basis of the lack of a reasoned opinion, a party is required to identify the specific issues, factual findings, or arguments that the trial chamber omitted to address and explain why this omission invalidates the decision.¹³⁰⁹ In this regard, the Appeals Chamber considers that Mladić does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber failed to provide a reasoned opinion with respect to the Four Orders,¹³¹⁰ given that it specifically described the content of each individual order in the Trial Judgement, considered the addressees, and noted that the Four Orders were either signed by or came from Mladić.¹³¹¹ Further, and contrary to the arguments raised by Mladić, the Four Orders do relate to the Srebrenica operations and/or Mladić's continued command over the VRS and the MUP during his time in Belgrade, and they are addressed to the Drina Crops or other units in Srebrenica.¹³¹² Mladić also fails to demonstrate how the unique identification numbers associated with the Four Orders would undermine the Trial Chamber's finding that he issued the Four Orders.¹³¹³ Similarly, while the Trial Chamber did not expressly address, when assessing Mladić's role in issuing the Four Orders, Witness Stevanović's evidence that "s.r./signed" did not always mean that the individual whose signature appeared on the document was aware of it or had signed it, the Trial Chamber recalled this evidence when examining his role in issuing another order signed in this manner in respect of which it concluded that the order was issued by Mladić.¹³¹⁴ Recalling that a trial judgement is to be considered as a whole,¹³¹⁵ the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to this evidence or that it undermines the reasonableness of its findings relating to the Four Orders.

381. In relation to Mladić's contention regarding the change in the command structure, the Appeals Chamber observes that he merely repeats his submissions at trial that Milovanović replaced him as de jure and de facto Commander of the VRS while he was away in Belgrade.¹³¹⁶ The Appeals Chamber recalls that on appeal a party cannot merely repeat arguments that did not succeed at trial, unless it can demonstrate that the trial chamber's rejection of those arguments constituted an error warranting the intervention of the Appeals Chamber.¹³¹⁷ While Mladić refers to the evidence of Witnesses Milovanović and Stevanović to support his argument,¹³¹⁸ the Appeals Chamber observes that Witness Milovanović's evidence that, when the command and control structure did not function as intended, he always sought Mladić's approval before he proceeded, supports rather than undermines the Trial Chamber's finding in question.¹³¹⁹ Furthermore, Witness Stevanović's testimony only shows that VRS Chief of Staff, Milovanović, might replace Mladić as de jure Commander of the VRS during his absence.¹³²⁰ Mladić does not demonstrate how this evidence could undermine the Trial Chamber's finding, based on the totality of the evidence, that he remained the Commander of the VRS Main Staff during his absence from Srebrenica.¹³²¹ The Appeals Chamber therefore finds that, apart from repeating his submissions at trial, Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber's rejection of those arguments constituted an error, thereby failing to satisfy his burden on appeal.

382. The Appeals Chamber will now turn to Mladić's submission that the Trial Chamber placed undue weight on four intercept communications as evidence of his command and control over the VRS during his absence from Srebrenica. The Appeals Chamber observes that, when considering communications and orders issued by Mladić between 14 and 16 July 1995,¹³²² the Trial Chamber examined the content of the four intercept communications, which showed, inter alia, the briefings he received and instructions he issued regarding the operations in the Zvornik area.¹³²³ Mladić's alternative interpretation that the four intercept communications do not contain any orders fails to show that the Trial Chamber's conclusion was unreasonable.¹³²⁴ In this respect, the Trial Chamber noted that certain of the intercepts do contain orders or instructions,¹³²⁵ and in any event, the Appeals Chamber considers that the absence of orders from the four intercept communications would not, in itself, undermine the Trial Chamber's finding that Mladić remained the Commander of the VRS Main Staff during his absence from

Srebrenica.¹³²⁶ The Appeals Chamber therefore finds that Mladić's arguments in this respect reflect mere disagreement with the Trial Chamber's assessment of the evidence without demonstrating an error. The Appeals Chamber reiterates that the mere assertion that the Trial Chamber failed to give proper weight to evidence or that it should have interpreted evidence in a particular manner is liable to be summarily dismissed.¹³²⁷

383. In light of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić does not show an error in the Trial Chamber's conclusion that he exercised command and control over VRS and MUP forces during his absence from Srebrenica.

(b) Command and Control over Members of the MUP

384. Mladić submits that, with a proper weighing of evidence, no reasonable trier of fact could have concluded that he exercised command and control over MUP forces.¹³²⁸ In this respect, he argues that the Trial Chamber gave undue weight to the joint elements of the MUP's cooperation with the VRS and insufficient weight to evidence that the MUP was acting as a separate entity.¹³²⁹ Mladić therefore contends that the Trial Chamber conflated "cooperation and coordinated action" with "re-subordination"¹³³⁰ and failed to consider the totality of the evidence demonstrating the MUP's coordination with the VRS, as opposed to re-subordination.¹³³¹

385. The Prosecution responds that Mladić fails to show any error in the Trial Chamber's conclusion that, from 11 until at least 17 July 1995, MUP units under Borovčanin's command deployed in the area of Srebrenica were under VRS command and that the Trial Chamber properly distinguished cooperation and coordination from re-subordination.¹³³² The Prosecution further contends that the evidence referenced by Mladić either supports the conclusions of the Trial Chamber or is irrelevant.¹³³³

386. The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber found that from 11 until at least 17 July 1995 the MUP forces deployed in the sector of Srebrenica under Borovčanin were under the command of the VRS.¹³³⁴ In reaching this finding, the Trial Chamber specifically addressed Mladić's submission and related evidence that MUP forces were operating under their own command under Borovčanin as of 12 or 13 July 1995.¹³³⁵ The Trial Chamber further addressed in detail other evidence demonstrating: (i) the involvement of MUP forces in the Srebrenica operation and in Potočari pursuant to an order from the VRS Supreme Commander;¹³³⁶ (ii) the direct orders Borovčanin and his forces received from Mladić and other VRS officers about their deployment and military actions;¹³³⁷ and (iii) the reporting of MUP activities to the VRS Bratunac Brigade.¹³³⁸

387. Against this background, and recalling that trial chambers have broad discretion in weighing evidence,¹³³⁹ the Appeals Chamber finds Mladić's contention – that the Trial Chamber gave undue weight to the joint elements of the MUP's cooperation with the VRS and insufficient weight to evidence that the MUP was acting as a separate entity¹³⁴⁰ – to reflect mere disagreement with the Trial Chamber's assessment of the evidence without showing any error.

388. Moreover, contrary to Mladić's assertion,¹³⁴¹ the Trial Chamber clearly distinguished coordination and re-subordination of military units.¹³⁴² In particular, the Trial Chamber pointed out that "[w]hen re-subordinated, the MUP forces followed orders issued by the VRS. The Commander of the VRS unit to which the MUP unit was re-subordinated and the Commander of the MUP unit coordinated their work in carrying out the tasks assigned by the VRS".¹³⁴³ On the basis of this and other supporting evidence, the Trial Chamber explicitly found that when MUP units were participating in combat operations from at least 12 May 1992 until at least 26 September 1995, they were re-subordinated to the command of the VRS, meaning that they were tasked by the VRS and followed orders issued by the VRS.¹³⁴⁴ The Appeals Chamber further considers that evidence of joint operations of the MUP and the VRS does not, on its own, negate evidence of the MUP's subordination to the VRS at the time in question, and that evidence that distinguishes between coordination and re-subordination is consistent with the Trial Chamber's findings.¹³⁴⁵ Considering the Trial Chamber's detailed analysis of evidence demonstrating the re-subordination of the MUP to the VRS, as well as the MUP's coordination with the VRS,¹³⁴⁶ the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber systematically adopted a selective approach to the evidence in its analysis in this respect. The Appeals Chamber also notes that Mladić selectively relies on certain portions of Witness Momir Nikolić's testimony to prove this alleged cooperation and coordinated action, disregards Witness

Momir Nikolić's testimony that Borovčanin received orders from Mladić, and ignores other evidence establishing that MUP units were re-subordinated to the VRS and to Mladić.¹³⁴⁷ Furthermore, Mladić's claim that the fact that the VRS order of 13 July 1995, namely that "forces of the [VRS] mostly regrouped in order to go to Žepa", did not mention the MUP does not undermine the Trial Chamber's finding that MUP units were re-subordinated to the VRS.¹³⁴⁸ In fact, the Trial Chamber found that on 13 July 1995, Mladić tasked the MUP units with "organizing the evacuation of approximately 15,000 civilians from Srebrenica to Kladanj" and "[k]illing of about 8,000 Muslim soldiers".¹³⁴⁹

389. In light of the above, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to demonstrate any error in the Trial Chamber's finding that, from 11 until at least 17 July 1995, the MUP forces deployed in the sector of Srebrenica under Borovčanin were under VRS command and its dismissal of the argument that the MUP forces were operating under their own command in Srebrenica as of 12 or 13 July 1995.

(c) Orders Given by Mladić

390. Mladić submits that, in its analysis of his significant contribution to the Srebrenica JCE, the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to the military context and contents of legitimate military orders he issued in Srebrenica, and erroneously concluded that the only reasonable inference to be drawn from the orders was that he significantly contributed to the common criminal objective.¹³⁵⁰ Mladić contends that, in finding that Directive 7/1 did not rescind Directive 7, the Trial Chamber placed undue weight on the language of Directive 7,¹³⁵¹ and, without providing a reasoned opinion, insufficient weight on the evidence of Witness Butler that operation Krivaja-95 ("Krivaja-95") was a legitimate military operation.¹³⁵² Mladić further submits that, in finding that his order of 13 July 1995 was intended to mislead the media and the international community about the events in Srebrenica, the Trial Chamber did not properly consider the language of the order and the context in which it was given, while placing insufficient weight on similar orders aimed at preventing classified military information from being leaked.¹³⁵³

391. The Prosecution responds that Mladić fails to show error in the Trial Chamber's conclusion that he significantly contributed to the common purpose by issuing orders concerning the Srebrenica operation to VRS and MUP forces.¹³⁵⁴ In this respect, the Prosecution argues that Mladić: (i) ignores that his contribution to the common purpose need not be per se criminal,¹³⁵⁵ (ii) merely seeks to substitute his interpretation of orders regarding Directive 4,¹³⁵⁶ Krivaja-95,¹³⁵⁷ and Directive 7,¹³⁵⁸ and (iii) fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber acted unreasonably in considering his orders concerning the Srebrenica operation.¹³⁵⁹ The Prosecution further responds that, given that none of the allegedly "similar orders" Mladić cites is comparable, the Trial Chamber reasonably concluded that the 13 July 1995 order limiting access for local and foreign journalists to the Srebrenica area and banning the provision of information on prisoners of war, evacuated civilians, and escapees was intended to keep the international community from learning what was happening in Srebrenica.¹³⁶⁰

392. The Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber found that Mladić significantly contributed to achieving the common objective by, inter alia: (i) issuing several orders to VRS forces, including the Drina Corps, concerning the operation in and around Srebrenica between at least 11 July and 11 October 1995; and (ii) giving orders to MUP Commander Borovčanin and his units on 11 and 12 July 1995.¹³⁶¹ In reaching these findings, the Trial Chamber conducted a comprehensive assessment of orders issued by Mladić concerning the Srebrenica operation,¹³⁶² and considered that these orders were so instrumental to the commission of the crimes that without them the crimes would not have been committed as they were.¹³⁶³ The Appeals Chamber thus considers that the Trial Chamber reasonably concluded that Mladić significantly contributed to achieving the common objective by issuing orders concerning the Srebrenica operation to VRS and MUP forces.

393. Turning to the Trial Chamber's alleged failure to give sufficient weight to the context and contents of orders that, according to Mladić, were legitimate military orders issued in Srebrenica, the Appeals Chamber recalls that an accused's contribution to a joint criminal enterprise need not be in and of itself criminal, as long as he or she performs acts that in some way contribute to the furtherance of the common purpose.¹³⁶⁴ Thus, in the Appeals Chamber's view, whether Mladić's orders were legitimate in the military context is not relevant to determining his significant contribution to the common purpose. What matters is that the accused significantly contributed to the commission of the crimes involved in the joint criminal enterprise.¹³⁶⁵ Considering the above, Mladić's assertion that his orders were consistent with legitimate military operations in light of the military context of Srebrenica¹³⁶⁶ cannot serve to demonstrate an error in the Trial Chamber's conclusion that Mladić significantly contributed to achieving the common objective.¹³⁶⁷

394. In any event, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić fails to substantiate his claim that the Trial Chamber did not properly weigh the evidence pertaining to his orders in Srebrenica. In relation to Mladić's contention that Directive 4 ordered adherence to the laws of war, including the Geneva Conventions,¹³⁶⁸ the Appeals Chamber observes that this directive does not contain any reference to the laws of war, including the Geneva Conventions, and does not explicitly mandate respect for the laws of war.¹³⁶⁹ In fact, the Trial Chamber found that Directive 4 ordered the Drina Corps to inflict the heaviest possible losses on the ABiH and to force them to leave the Birač, Žepa, and Goražde areas with the Muslim population.¹³⁷⁰ Further, the Trial Chamber considered evidence that Mladić gave orders to respect the Geneva Conventions, but found that these orders were not indicative of his true state of mind.¹³⁷¹ The Appeals Chamber thus finds that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in its assessment of Directive 4.

395. The Appeals Chamber now turns to Mladić's argument that the Trial Chamber placed undue weight on the language of Directive 7,¹³⁷² and, without providing a reasoned opinion, insufficient weight on Witness Butler's evidence that Krivaja-95 was a legitimate military operation.¹³⁷³ The Appeals Chamber recalls that the mere assertion that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to evidence or that it should have interpreted evidence in a particular manner is liable to be summarily dismissed.¹³⁷⁴ Furthermore, as explained above, whether a military operation is legitimate is irrelevant to determining Mladić's significant contribution to the common purpose.¹³⁷⁵ In any event, the Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber carefully analyzed the context and content of both Directive 7¹³⁷⁶ and Directive 7/1,¹³⁷⁷ and considered evidence from Witnesses Ljubomir Obradović and Milovanović, as well as other documentary evidence, in reaching its finding that Directive 7/1 did not rescind or amend the content of Directive 7.¹³⁷⁸ Furthermore, while Mladić selectively relies on Witness Butler's evidence that "the VRS had the military legitimate right to attack the 28th Division" of the ABiH,¹³⁷⁹ he disregards this witness's consistent statement that Directive 7/1 did not supersede but rather supplemented Directive 7 with additional technical information.¹³⁸⁰ The Appeals Chamber thus finds that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in its assessment of Directive 7.

396. The Appeals Chamber also finds no merit in Mladić's contention that the Trial Chamber did not properly consider the language and context of his order of 13 July 1995, which prevented the entry of local and foreign journalists into the Srebrenica area and banned the provision of information on prisoners of war, evacuated civilians, and escapees.¹³⁸¹ In this regard, the Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber's finding in question was based on the totality of the evidence, and particularly on the language of the order in its context.¹³⁸² Further, the orders referenced by Mladić in support of his argument on appeal were issued to prevent classified military information from being leaked, and are thus different from his 13 July 1995 order, which was issued to restrict the international community's access to information in the midst of a mass murder operation.¹³⁸³ Accordingly, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić's contention in relation to his 13 July 1995 order reflects mere disagreement with the Trial Chamber's evaluation and interpretation of relevant evidence without demonstrating error. In this respect, the Appeals Chamber again recalls that the mere assertion that the Trial Chamber failed to give proper weight to evidence or that it should have interpreted evidence in a particular manner is liable to be summarily dismissed.¹³⁸⁴

397. On the basis of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, dismisses Mladić's submission that the Trial Chamber erroneously concluded that he significantly contributed to the common criminal objective by issuing orders concerning the Srebrenica operation to VRS and MUP forces.

(d) Intercepts

398. Mladić submits that, although the Trial Chamber relied on certain intercepts to find that VRS forces committed crimes in Srebrenica and that he was complicit in those crimes, with a proper weighing of evidence, no reasonable trier of fact could have concluded that the intercepts were reliable and authentic.¹³⁸⁵ In this respect, he argues that the Trial Chamber erroneously disregarded evidence of Witness RM-316's partisanship and limited training, while relying on this witness to conclude that there was no evidence that the Intercepts were forgeries.¹³⁸⁶ Furthermore, according to Mladić, the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to: (i) the fact that [REDACTED];¹³⁸⁷ (ii) the lack of continuity or chain of custody in providing the intercepts to the ICTY;¹³⁸⁸ (iii) the incorrect identification of VRS relay routes and frequencies;¹³⁸⁹ and (iv) the scepticism Witness Butler expressed regarding the reliability of the Intercepts.¹³⁹⁰ In addition, Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber failed to adequately address inconsistencies within the Intercepts.¹³⁹¹

399. The Prosecution responds that Mladić fails to show that the Trial Chamber's assessment of the Intercepts was unreasonable in light of the totality of the evidence.¹³⁹² It thus submits that Mladić's mere assertion that the Trial Chamber disregarded or failed to give sufficient weight to certain evidence should be summarily dismissed.¹³⁹³ The Prosecution further argues that the alleged inconsistencies Mladić raises are not supported by the evidence.¹³⁹⁴

400. The Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber found the Intercepts to be genuine contemporaneous reports of intercepted VRS communications, and did not accept the argument that they were forged or manipulated.¹³⁹⁵ In reaching these findings, the Trial Chamber assessed the Intercepts in the context of the entire trial record, treated them with caution, and considered whether there was corroboration or further detail provided by other sources of evidence.¹³⁹⁶ In particular, the Trial Chamber considered the evidence of Witness RM-316¹³⁹⁷ as well as other evidence on the record, including evidence that the Intercepts were allegedly forgeries.¹³⁹⁸ In this context, Mladić's argument that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to certain evidence reflects mere disagreement with the Trial Chamber's assessment of evidence without demonstrating any error.

401. Moreover, with respect to his submission regarding the Trial Chamber's assessment of the reliability and authenticity of the Intercepts, the Appeals Chamber considers that Mladić merely repeats his submissions at trial without demonstrating any error.¹³⁹⁹ A party cannot merely repeat arguments that did not succeed at trial, unless it can demonstrate that rejecting them caused an error warranting the intervention of the Appeals Chamber.¹⁴⁰⁰ Furthermore, although Mladić refers to Witness Butler's initial scepticism about the reliability of the Intercepts, this witness testified that he ultimately was "able to corroborate much of the information that was contained in those [I]ntercepts".¹⁴⁰¹

402. Turning to Mladić's submission that the Trial Chamber did not adequately address inconsistencies in the Intercepts, the Appeals Chamber recalls that it is within a trial chamber's discretion to assess inconsistencies and determine whether the evidence as a whole is reliable and credible.¹⁴⁰² In this case, the Appeals Chamber is not convinced that the alleged inconsistencies Mladić refers to are supported by the evidence. For example, although Mladić argues that Exhibits P1320, P1321, and P2126 are inconsistent with Exhibit P1332,¹⁴⁰³ the Appeals Chamber observes that Exhibit P1332 is unrelated to the other three Intercepts, which pertain to the same conversation and are, in fact, consistent with each other, as they concern the same operation.¹⁴⁰⁴ Furthermore, although Mladić argues that Exhibits P1645 and P1657 are inconsistent with each other, the Appeals Chamber observes that Exhibit P1645 is not an intercept but a handwritten note and that Mladić's claims about the contents of Exhibit P1657 are incorrect because, contrary to his submission, [REDACTED].¹⁴⁰⁵

403. In light of the above, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to demonstrate error in the Trial Chamber's assessment of or reliance on the Intercepts.

(e) Knowledge, Investigation, and Punishment of Crimes

(i) Alleged Failure to Give Sufficient Weight to Probative Evidence

404. Mladić submits that, in finding that he failed to take adequate steps to investigate crimes and/or punish perpetrators, the Trial Chamber disregarded or failed to give sufficient weight to probative evidence that: (i) he had no knowledge of crimes and/or was unable to prevent or punish them; and (ii) he or his subordinates did investigate and prosecute certain crimes.¹⁴⁰⁶ With respect to the evidence that he had no knowledge of crimes, Mladić contends that the Zvornik Brigade¹⁴⁰⁷ daily combat report, dated 14 July 1995 ("Zvornik Brigade Report"), does not mention the commission of crimes,¹⁴⁰⁸ and that, to establish that crimes were reported, the Trial Chamber placed undue emphasis on Witness Ljubomir Bojanović's evidence that such information would be reported up the chain of command.¹⁴⁰⁹

According to Mladić, Witness Momir Nikolić confirmed that he concealed the killings from his commanders and provided misleading information about “asanacija/sanitisation” to cover up reburials.¹⁴¹⁰ Mladić additionally argues that the Trial Chamber relied on a fuel order he signed to establish his knowledge of the crimes and the reburial operation, but failed to give sufficient weight to the fact that the unique identification number appearing on the fuel order was not his.¹⁴¹¹

405. Mladić further argues that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to evidence of: (i) parallel reporting and investigation processes; (ii) the institutional limitations of the military justice system; and (iii) conflicts with the civilian authorities, which led to his inability to prevent crimes and punish MUP perpetrators.¹⁴¹² With respect to evidence that he or his subordinates investigated and prosecuted crimes, Mladić points to: (i) ultimatums he issued on 23 September 1995 and 20 October 1995 stating that the MUP Command should prevent crimes and punish MUP perpetrators, or else face military action from the VRS;¹⁴¹³ and (ii) a meeting on 26 March 1996 to form a joint investigation commission between the MUP and the VRS to investigate crimes committed in Srebrenica.¹⁴¹⁴ Mladić argues that the Trial Chamber disregarded this evidence, ultimately leading to the impermissible inference that he failed to investigate crimes.¹⁴¹⁵

406. The Prosecution responds that Mladić’s argument that the Trial Chamber disregarded and improperly weighed probative evidence should be dismissed.¹⁴¹⁶ Specifically, it argues that the Trial Chamber reasonably found that Mladić was aware of the crimes¹⁴¹⁷ and that he does not show that the Trial Chamber erred in concluding that he failed to take adequate steps to investigate the crimes and punish the perpetrators.¹⁴¹⁸

407. The Appeals Chamber observes that, in reaching its finding that Mladić was aware of crimes committed in Srebrenica in July 1995 by members of the VRS and the MUP but failed to take adequate steps to investigate crimes and punish perpetrators,¹⁴¹⁹ the Trial Chamber recalled its previous findings, inter alia, that: (i) in 1995, the Drina Corps maintained an effective command and control structure with a strong reporting chain and there was a fully functioning communication system in place at the time;¹⁴²⁰ and (ii) VRS officers were aware of the killings of Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica and the Zvornik area, but there were no investigations or prosecutions with respect to the July 1995 killings in Srebrenica.¹⁴²¹ The Appeals Chamber further observes that the Trial Chamber explicitly pointed out that it “did not receive evidence to conclude that Mladić ordered any substantial or meaningful investigations into war crimes or crimes against humanity”.¹⁴²² Moreover, the Trial Chamber relied on its previous findings, based on extensive evidence, that Mladić: (i) possessed the authority to order investigations within the military justice system;¹⁴²³ (ii) was under a duty to take adequate steps to investigate and/or punish the crimes;¹⁴²⁴ (iii) was aware of crimes committed in Srebrenica in July 1995 by members of the VRS and the MUP;¹⁴²⁵ and (iv) engaged in actions that were deliberately misleading.¹⁴²⁶

408. Having reviewed relevant portions of the Trial Judgement, the Appeals Chamber is not convinced that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to evidence showing that Mladić had no knowledge of the crimes committed in Srebrenica.¹⁴²⁷ In relation to the Zvornik Brigade Report, the Appeals Chamber fails to see how the absence of explicit reference to the commission of crimes in the report, which is only pertinent to 14 July 1995 and to the Zvornik Brigade’s area of responsibility, would undercut the Trial Chamber’s finding that Mladić was aware of crimes committed in Srebrenica as a whole.¹⁴²⁸ With respect to Witness Bojanović’s evidence that the mass execution of detainees in the Zvornik Brigade’s area of responsibility would have been reflected in the daily combat report, the Trial Chamber explicitly considered this evidence in determining the concealment of crimes, but did not rely on it, on the basis that Witness Bojanović was not involved in the drafting of the report and accordingly found his comments speculative.¹⁴²⁹ Regarding evidence concerning Witness Momir Nikolić, the Appeals Chamber observes that Mladić misinterprets Exhibit D1228, which shows that Witness Momir Nikolić discussed the killing of captured Muslims with his commander, Blagojević, on 12 and 13 July 1995, rather than concealed the killings from his commanders.¹⁴³⁰ Furthermore, Mladić merely offers an alternative interpretation of Witness Momir Nikolić’s evidence without demonstrating the unreasonableness of the Trial Chamber’s finding that the reburial operation was reported.¹⁴³¹ Turning to the fuel order, contrary to Mladić’s assertion,¹⁴³² the Trial Chamber did not rely on it to determine his knowledge of the crimes or the reburial operation.¹⁴³³ In this respect, Mladić merely disagrees with the Trial Chamber’s assessment of the unique identification number appearing on the fuel order without demonstrating an error.

409. With respect to Mladić's alleged inability to investigate crimes given the parallel reporting and investigation processes,¹⁴³⁴ he merely repeats his submissions at trial, arguing, inter alia, that "probative evidence showed that the crimes were reported to the civilian authorities".¹⁴³⁵ The Trial Chamber explicitly rejected this argument and found that "merely reporting the crimes to the MUP Commander would not satisfy [Mladić's] duties as commander".¹⁴³⁶ In addition, while Mladić refers to portions of Witness Theunens's testimony to support his contention that he could not take direct steps to investigate crimes perpetrated by MUP officers,¹⁴³⁷ nothing in those portions of the testimony supports this contention.¹⁴³⁸ On the contrary, Witness Theunens stated, without reference to any particular situation, that when the MUP units were conducting operations under military command, the VRS Commander in the area had the duty to investigate alleged crimes.¹⁴³⁹ In relation to evidence of conflicts with the civilian authorities, the Appeals Chamber notes that Mladić simply repeats his submissions presented at trial,¹⁴⁴⁰ where the Trial Chamber found that Mladić possessed the authority to order investigations within the military justice system,¹⁴⁴¹ without identifying any error on the part of the Trial Chamber. The Appeals Chamber reiterates that a party cannot merely repeat arguments that did not succeed at trial, unless it can demonstrate that rejecting them caused an error warranting the intervention of the Appeals Chamber.¹⁴⁴²

410. Finally, with respect to Mladić's submission regarding evidence that he or his subordinates prosecuted or investigated crimes, the Appeals Chamber observes that the ultimatums issued by Mladić, to which he points on appeal, did not concern Srebrenica crimes.¹⁴⁴³ As such, these ultimatums were not relevant to the Trial Chamber's assessment of Mladić's contribution to the Srebrenica JCE. As to the meeting to form the joint investigation commission, the Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber considered evidence in this respect¹⁴⁴⁴ in finding that "on 23 March 1996, Karadžić ordered the VRS and MUP to immediately form a mixed commission to investigate the alleged discovery of two decomposed bodies in the Pilica area", however, it explicitly noted that the proposal to initiate such investigation by Drinić was never addressed.¹⁴⁴⁵

411. In light of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber committed an error in evaluating evidence regarding his knowledge of the crimes, his inability to punish crimes, and that he or his subordinates prosecuted or investigated crimes. In addition, recalling the finding that, inter alia, Mladić has failed to show an error in the Trial Chamber's findings that he exercised command and control over VRS and MUP forces, which were under VRS command from 11 until 17 July 1995, even during his absence from Srebrenica, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, finds Mladić's claim of Momir Nikolić, the MUP, and other rogue members of the VRS committing revenge killings in Srebrenica without his knowledge to be speculative and unconvincing.¹⁴⁴⁶ His submissions in this regard are therefore summarily dismissed.

(ii) Alleged Error in Relying on Failure to Investigate and Punish Crimes to Determine Significant Contribution

412. Noting that the Trial Chamber relied on his failure to investigate and prosecute crimes committed in Srebrenica to determine his significant contribution to the Srebrenica JCE, Mladić submits that such omissions are insufficient evidence of his significant contribution.¹⁴⁴⁷ He argues that, as the ICC Appeals Chamber in Bemba confirmed, the measures taken by a commander cannot be faulted merely because of shortfalls in their execution.¹⁴⁴⁸

413. The Prosecution responds that Mladić's reliance on the Bemba Appeal Judgement, which addressed measures that had been taken to prosecute and investigate crimes, is inapposite to these circumstances where no measures were taken.¹⁴⁴⁹

414. The Appeals Chamber recalls that the law does not foresee specific types of conduct which per se cannot be considered a contribution to the common purpose of a joint criminal enterprise.¹⁴⁵⁰ What matters is that the accused performs acts that in some way contribute to the furtherance of the common purpose.¹⁴⁵¹ Within these legal confines, the question of whether a failure to act could be taken into account to establish that the accused significantly contributed to a joint criminal enterprise is a question of fact to be determined on a case-by-case basis.¹⁴⁵² Furthermore, the Appeals Chamber recalls that failures to act or acts carried out in furtherance of a joint criminal enterprise need not involve carrying out any part of the actus reus of a crime forming part of the common purpose, or indeed any crime at all.¹⁴⁵³

415. In the present case, as part of the factual determination of Mladić's significant contribution to the Srebrenica JCE, the Trial Chamber considered, together with his other actions,¹⁴⁵⁴ that: (i) Mladić commanded and controlled VRS and MUP units during the Srebrenica operation and its aftermath,¹⁴⁵⁵ and (ii) Mladić failed to take adequate steps to investigate crimes and/or punish members of the VRS and other elements of the Serb forces under his effective control who committed such crimes,¹⁴⁵⁶ despite his duty and ability to do so and his awareness of the crimes.¹⁴⁵⁷ The Trial Chamber further considered that the above-mentioned acts were so instrumental to the commission of the crimes that without them the crimes would not have been committed as they were.¹⁴⁵⁸ The Appeals Chamber recalls that a failure to intervene to prevent the recurrence of crimes or to halt abuses has been taken into account in assessing an accused's contribution to a joint criminal enterprise as well as his intent, where the accused had some power, influence, or authority over the perpetrators that was sufficient to prevent or halt the abuses but failed to exercise such power.¹⁴⁵⁹ Therefore, Mladić fails to show that the Trial Chamber erred in considering his failure to take adequate steps to investigate crimes and/or punish perpetrators in determining whether he significantly contributed to the Srebrenica JCE.

416. In light of the above, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, rejects Mladić's contention that his failure to punish crimes is insufficient evidence of his significant contribution to the Srebrenica JCE.

(f) Conclusion

417. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, dismisses Ground 5.B of Mladić's appeal.

3. Alleged Errors in Reversing the Burden of Proof and Violating In Dubio Pro Reo (Ground 5.D)

418. In finding that Mladić shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Srebrenica JCE, the Trial Chamber rejected Mladić's argument that his personal actions and behaviour did not support his criminal intent.¹⁴⁶⁰ In this respect, the Trial Chamber found that the only reasonable inference was that Mladić had the specific intent to commit genocide and that he intended to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by killing the men and boys and forcibly removing the women, young children, and some elderly men.¹⁴⁶¹

419. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber relied on statements he made at the Hotel Fontana meetings, statements he made to the media, and his knowledge of crimes to establish that he shared a common state of mind with other members of the Srebrenica JCE.¹⁴⁶² Mladić contends that the Trial Chamber erred in giving insufficient weight to exculpatory evidence, thereby incorrectly finding the requisite mens rea beyond a reasonable doubt and violating the principle of in dubio pro reo.¹⁴⁶³ In particular, Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to: (i) his statements and actions to adhere to international law by evacuating civilians and ensuring the welfare of prisoners of war;¹⁴⁶⁴ and (ii) the orders he and his subordinates gave in Srebrenica.¹⁴⁶⁵ According to Mladić, had the Trial Chamber given sufficient weight to this evidence and viewed it in its totality, it would not have concluded beyond a reasonable doubt that he shared the necessary mens rea to achieve the common objective of the Srebrenica JCE and the specific intent to kill Bosnian Muslim men and boys.¹⁴⁶⁶ Mladić therefore requests that the Appeals Chamber reverse his conviction for the crimes committed under the Srebrenica JCE or, alternatively, reverse the findings to the extent of any errors.¹⁴⁶⁷

(a) Statements and Affirmative Actions Taken by Mladić to Adhere to International Law

420. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in relying on statements that he made during the Hotel Fontana meetings on 11 and 12 July 1995 to establish that he shared the criminal intent for both objectives of the Srebrenica JCE.¹⁴⁶⁸ In particular, he argues that the Trial Chamber placed insufficient weight on the context in which these statements were made and contends that the language used in these statements was consistent with legitimate military language.¹⁴⁶⁹ He further submits that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient, if any, weight to his subsequent statements and actions, including: (i) his involvement with the UN in coordinating humanitarian evacuations; (ii) his statements that civilians had a choice to leave for Yugoslavia or the Federation or stay in Republika Srpska; (iii) his assurances to captured prisoners of war that they would be treated in accordance with the law; and (iv) his cooperation during the Belgrade discussions on 14 and 15 July 1995 with the UN, European Union, and

UNPROFOR (“Belgrade Discussions”), which culminated in a signed assurance that the ICRC would be granted access to prisoners of war and that the Geneva Conventions would be adhered to.¹⁴⁷⁰ Finally, in relation to the Trial Chamber’s consideration that he misled the media about the conditions in Srebrenica, Mladić contends that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to information that was reported to him, to his reliance on the information available to him at the time, and the fact that he repeated it to the media.¹⁴⁷¹

421. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber reasonably found that Mladić shared the intent to further the common purpose of the Srebrenica JCE.¹⁴⁷² It contends that Mladić fails to identify any relevant evidence which the Trial Chamber disregarded and that his challenges reflect mere disagreement with the weighing of the evidence, without showing error.¹⁴⁷³ The Prosecution argues that Mladić fails to explain how the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to the context of his statements¹⁴⁷⁴ and submits that: (i) Mladić improperly extrapolates the testimony of two expert witnesses commenting on a certain order to claim that his statements at the second Hotel Fontana meeting were also legitimate;¹⁴⁷⁵ (ii) Mladić fails to explain how some of his statements could have been interpreted positively,¹⁴⁷⁶ or as legitimate military language,¹⁴⁷⁷ or how they were taken out of context;¹⁴⁷⁸ and (iii) Mladić’s subsequent conduct does not refute the criminal meaning of his statements and, on the contrary, his preferred alternative inference ignores findings clearly showing otherwise.¹⁴⁷⁹ The Prosecution further submits that Mladić’s claim that the Trial Chamber failed to consider the totality of the evidence ignores a multitude of statements and acts it relied on to conclude that he shared the intent for the Srebrenica JCE,¹⁴⁸⁰ and that his claim that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to his reliance on information available to him when talking to the media reflects mere disagreement with the Trial Chamber’s assessment of the evidence.¹⁴⁸¹

422. With respect to Mladić’s argument that the language used in his statements at the Hotel Fontana meetings was consistent with “legitimate military language”,¹⁴⁸² the Appeals Chamber recalls that it has already addressed and dismissed this argument.¹⁴⁸³ Furthermore, the Trial Chamber’s finding that Mladić shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Srebrenica JCE is only partly based on his statements calling for revenge on the Bosnian Muslims from Srebrenica,¹⁴⁸⁴ and, in any event, Mladić does not show that the Trial Chamber erred in assessing these statements.

423. Turning to Mladić’s argument that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to his speeches and actions after his statements at the Hotel Fontana meetings, the Appeals Chamber recalls that, as a result of the VRS attack on the Srebrenica enclave in July 1995, thousands of Bosnian Muslims fled to Potočari seeking refuge within the UNPROFOR compound before being transferred to Bosnian controlled territory under the auspices of the VRS and the MUP and, for the first convoy only, under the supervision and escort of UNPROFOR.¹⁴⁸⁵ The Appeals Chamber further notes that the Trial Chamber found that the Bosnian Muslims who left Potočari to go to Bosnian Muslim controlled territory “did not have a genuine choice but to leave”.¹⁴⁸⁶ Against this background, Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to evidence that he and the UN coordinated humanitarian evacuations¹⁴⁸⁷ and to statements where he made it clear that civilians in Potočari had a choice to stay or leave.¹⁴⁸⁸ The Appeals Chamber recalls that it has already considered and rejected Mladić’s submissions that he was “acting in coordination with high-level DutchBat/UNPROFOR officials to evacuate civilians” for humanitarian reasons and that the Trial Chamber gave no or insufficient weight to evidence that he evacuated civilians pursuant to UN requests to coordinate humanitarian evacuations.¹⁴⁸⁹ The Appeals Chamber has also already determined that Mladić’s submission that he gave civilians a choice to stay or leave and that he was acting to evacuate civilians for humanitarian reasons was unconvincing, especially since the Trial Chamber found such statements to be “deliberately misleading”.¹⁴⁹⁰ In this respect, the Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber considered the evidence to which Mladić points on appeal, in particular his statement in Potočari that everyone who wanted to leave had been evacuated safely.¹⁴⁹¹ Specifically, the Trial Chamber considered the evidence of Witness Milovan Milutinović that “Mladić gave the Muslim delegation his word that everyone gathered at Potočari who had surrendered their weapons could cho[o]se whether to go to ‘Yugoslavia, the Federation’ or to stay in the Bosnian-Serb Republic, and guaranteed them full rights and freedoms”.¹⁴⁹² While the Trial Chamber did not discuss Exhibit P1147 when assessing Mladić’s criminal intent, it addressed this evidence elsewhere in the Trial Judgement. In particular, the Trial Chamber considered that while in Potočari, Mladić said that Bosnian Serb authority had been established in Srebrenica and the entire enclave was under the control of the VRS and everyone who wanted to leave had been evacuated safely.¹⁴⁹³ In this respect, the Appeals Chamber recalls that a trial chamber is not required to articulate every step of its reasoning, that a trial judgement must be read as a whole, and that there is a presumption that the trial chamber has evaluated all the relevant evidence as long as there is no indication that it completely disregarded any particular piece of evidence.¹⁴⁹⁴ Mladić ignores the Trial Chamber's extensive review of the evidence in support of its finding that the Bosnian Muslims who left Potočari to go to Bosnian Muslim controlled territory did not have a genuine choice but to leave.¹⁴⁹⁵ Mladić's argument that the Trial Chamber afforded insufficient weight to evidence that he gave civilians a choice to stay or leave is therefore without merit.

424. In relation to Mladić's contention that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient, if any, weight to statements he made to prisoners of war, Mladić refers to evidence of Witnesses RM-292, RM-253, and RM-364, that, while they were being held prisoner, Mladić assured them that they would be exchanged and returned to their families.¹⁴⁹⁶ While the Trial Chamber did not expressly discuss this particular evidence in the Trial Judgement, it considered and made findings on other evidence that Mladić addressed Bosnian Muslim soldiers and assured them that they would be exchanged.¹⁴⁹⁷ The Appeals Chamber notes, however, that the Trial Chamber ultimately found such statements to be "misleading assurances".¹⁴⁹⁸ The Appeals Chamber therefore finds that Mladić's arguments in this respect reflect mere disagreement with the Trial Chamber's assessment of the evidence without demonstrating an error. In this regard, the Appeals Chamber recalls that the mere assertion that the Trial Chamber failed to give proper weight to evidence or that it should have interpreted evidence in a particular manner is liable to be summarily dismissed.¹⁴⁹⁹

425. In support of his argument that the Trial Chamber did not give sufficient weight to evidence demonstrating his cooperation during the Belgrade Discussions, Mladić points to one exhibit about an informal agreement to allow the ICRC access to assess the welfare of prisoners of war and register them in accordance with the Geneva Conventions.¹⁵⁰⁰ Mladić ignores that the Trial Chamber considered and made findings on similar orders he gave to the VRS and other subordinated forces, in relation to the Overarching JCE, to grant freedom of movement to international humanitarian organizations and to respect the Geneva Conventions.¹⁵⁰¹ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber found this evidence inconsistent with Mladić's other conduct and directly contradicted by his other contemporaneous statements.¹⁵⁰² In particular, the Trial Chamber found, in its assessment of the Overarching JCE, that Mladić's orders to respect the Geneva Conventions were not indicative of his true state of mind.¹⁵⁰³ Recalling that the Trial Judgement must be read as a whole,¹⁵⁰⁴ the Appeals Chamber therefore finds that Mladić fails to demonstrate how the exhibit he points to on appeal could undermine the Trial Chamber's finding in this respect.

426. Mladić also submits that, in finding that he misled the media about the conditions in Srebrenica, the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to information that was reported to him, to his reliance on the information available to him at the time, and to the fact that he repeated this information to the media.¹⁵⁰⁵ Mladić, however, provides no support for any of these contentions, and the Appeals Chamber recalls that the mere assertion that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to evidence or that it should have interpreted evidence in a particular manner is liable to be summarily dismissed.¹⁵⁰⁶ Moreover, the Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber's findings are based on the totality of the evidence, including on the actions Mladić took to prevent the media and public from knowing what was happening in Srebrenica.¹⁵⁰⁷ The Appeals Chamber therefore finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić's unsupported arguments in this respect reflect mere disagreement with the Trial Chamber's assessment of the evidence without demonstrating an error.

(b) Orders Made by Mladić and His Subordinates

427. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in its assessment of the Krivaja-95 operation and other related orders, and that it gave insufficient weight to the military context of these orders.¹⁵⁰⁸ Mladić further submits that the Trial Chamber did not afford sufficient weight to the language of his 13 July 1995 order preventing the media from entering the combat zone in the general sector of Srebrenica and Žepa, which he argues were prohibitions consistent with combat operations, as shown by other orders in other areas.¹⁵⁰⁹

428. The Prosecution responds that Mladić repeats arguments made under another subsection regarding the Krivaja-95 operation while showing no error.¹⁵¹⁰ The Prosecution further submits that Mladić fails to show any error in the Trial Chamber's finding that his 13 July 1995 order was intended to keep the media and international community from knowing what was happening in Srebrenica.¹⁵¹¹ In this regard, the Prosecution submits that Mladić ignores relevant evidence,¹⁵¹² and that, contrary to his claim, the language in other orders does not make the Trial Chamber's assessment of the 13 July 1995 order unreasonable.¹⁵¹³

429. The Appeals Chamber recalls that it has already rejected Mladić's argument that his orders were consistent with legitimate military operations in light of the military context of Srebrenica and found that they cannot serve to demonstrate any error in the Trial Chamber's conclusion that Mladić significantly contributed to achieving the common objective.¹⁵¹⁴ The Appeals Chamber therefore finds no merit in Mladić's contention that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to the military context of his orders in Srebrenica when finding his mens rea for the Srebrenica JCE.

430. Turning to the 13 July 1995 order, the Trial Chamber found that Mladić gave this order, which called for the prevention of the entry of local and foreign journalists into the zones of combat operations in Srebrenica and Žepa, as well as a ban on giving any information to the media about operations in Srebrenica, particularly on prisoners of war, evacuated civilians, and escapees.¹⁵¹⁵ The Trial Chamber further found that Mladić's aim was to keep the media and international community from knowing what was happening in Srebrenica.¹⁵¹⁶ The Appeals Chamber recalls that it previously found no merit in Mladić's argument that the Trial Chamber did not properly consider the language and context of the 13 July 1995 order.¹⁵¹⁷ Furthermore, the Appeals Chamber notes that while Mladić attempts to show that this order was aimed at prohibiting access to Srebrenica for the media's own protection and to prevent the spreading of rumours,¹⁵¹⁸ he ignores that the Trial Chamber's finding is based on a number of other findings regarding Mladić's position,¹⁵¹⁹ his presence on the ground in Potočari and involvement in the Hotel Fontana meetings,¹⁵²⁰ his proposal to mislead the international public about the truth at the 16th Assembly Session,¹⁵²¹ and the reburials of the Bosnian Muslim men and boys murdered in Srebrenica.¹⁵²² The Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić therefore fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to his arguments regarding the Krivaja-95 operation and other orders as well as to the language of his 13 July 1995 order.

(c) Conclusion

431. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, dismisses Ground 5.D of Mladić's appeal.

4. Alleged Errors in Failing to Provide a Reasoned Opinion or Evaluate the Military Status of Victims (Genocide and Extermination in Srebrenica) (Ground 5.E)

432. The Trial Chamber found that in relation to scheduled and unscheduled incidents concerning Srebrenica, the victims of the killings were either civilians or "at least detained at the time of killing" and thus hors de combat, and concluded that "in all Srebrenica incidents, the victims were not actively participating in the hostilities at the time of the killings".¹⁵²³ With respect to the number of victims and the overall situation in the Srebrenica enclave, the Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Fact 1476 stating that between 7,000 and 8,000 Bosnian Muslim men were systematically murdered.¹⁵²⁴

433. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber failed to provide a reasoned opinion on the use of Adjudicated Fact 1476 in its findings and to consider the potential military status of the victims and/or the extent of combat casualties.¹⁵²⁵ He argues that "as a consequence of the error, [he] is unable to determine the extent to which the Trial Chamber relied upon the adjudicated fact and the impact this may have had [on] his conviction".¹⁵²⁶ Mladić specifically argues that the Trial Chamber failed to give a reasoned opinion that, based on Adjudicated Fact 1476, "all of the 7,000–8,000 victims of the killings in Srebrenica were not actively taking part in the hostilities".¹⁵²⁷ He contends that the Trial Chamber did not consider whether the men killed in Srebrenica were civilians or combatants and that this omission impacts the basis for its findings and his convictions.¹⁵²⁸ Mladić further submits that, at a minimum, the Trial Chamber erroneously considered Adjudicated Fact 1476 as evidence of his intent to further the Srebrenica JCE.¹⁵²⁹ In addition, Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in applying a heightened standard to his disproving Adjudicated Fact 1476.¹⁵³⁰ According to Mladić, the Trial Chamber failed to consider any of the evidence he presented to rebut this fact,¹⁵³¹ and this evidence was sufficient to rebut Adjudicated Fact 1476 on the military status of the victims.¹⁵³² Accordingly, Mladić requests the Appeals Chamber to articulate the basis of his liability and, to the extent of any error, review the sentence imposed on him.¹⁵³³

434. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber did not rely on Adjudicated Fact 1476 to determine the circumstances of the victims' deaths, nor did it find that all victims were civilians, and submits that Mladić's attempt to appeal a non-existent finding should be summarily dismissed.¹⁵³⁴ The Prosecution further responds that the Trial Chamber: (i) gave a reasoned opinion regarding the status of victims through an incident-by-incident analysis, which Mladić has ignored in his submissions;¹⁵³⁵ (ii) clearly articulated the basis of his liability;¹⁵³⁶ and (iii) applied the correct legal standard to rebuttal evidence and considered the evidence that Mladić has relied on to rebut Adjudicated Fact 1476.¹⁵³⁷

435. Mladić replies, inter alia, that the Appeals Chamber should reject the Prosecution's contention that the Trial Chamber limited its analysis of his responsibility to the victims established on the basis of the Prosecution's evidence.¹⁵³⁸ According to Mladić, contrary to the Prosecution's submission, the Trial Chamber relied on the number of victims contained in Adjudicated Fact 1476 to determine, among others, his intent to achieve the common purpose of the Srebrenica JCE, his specific intent to commit genocide, his significant contribution to the Srebrenica JCE, and his sentence.¹⁵³⁹ He further replies that the Prosecution does not engage with his argument regarding the Trial Chamber's failure to provide a reasoned opinion on the status of the victims, and that Adjudicated Fact 1476 should have been rebutted.¹⁵⁴⁰

436. The Appeals Chamber will address in turn whether the Trial Chamber erred in: (i) failing to provide a reasoned opinion on the military status of the victims; (ii) articulating the basis of Mladić's liability, namely its alleged use of Adjudicated Fact 1476 to determine his mens rea and significant contribution to the Srebrenica JCE as well as his sentence; and (iii) failing to consider evidence presented by Mladić to rebut Adjudicated Fact 1476.

(a) Alleged Error in Failing to Provide a Reasoned Opinion on the Military Status of the Victims

437. The Appeals Chamber recalls that trial chambers are required to provide a reasoned opinion pursuant to Article 23(2) of the ICTY Statute and Rule 98 ter (C) of the ICTY Rules.¹⁵⁴¹ A reasoned opinion in the trial judgment is essential to ensuring that adjudications are fair; it, inter alia, allows for a meaningful exercise of the right of appeal by the parties, and enables the Appeals Chamber to understand and review the findings.¹⁵⁴² Accordingly, a trial chamber should set out in a clear and articulate manner the factual and legal findings on the basis of which it reached the decision to convict or acquit an accused.¹⁵⁴³ In particular, a trial chamber is required to provide clear, reasoned findings of fact as to each element of the crime charged.¹⁵⁴⁴

438. The Appeals Chamber further recalls that in claiming an error of law on the basis of the lack of a reasoned opinion, a party is required to identify the specific issues, factual findings, or arguments that the trial chamber omitted to address and explain why this omission invalidates the decision.¹⁵⁴⁵ The Appeals Chamber understands that, at the core, Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber failed to provide a reasoned opinion that, based on Adjudicated Fact 1476, all of the 7,000 to 8,000 victims of the killings in Srebrenica were not actively taking part in hostilities.¹⁵⁴⁶

439. The Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Fact 1476 stating that "between 7,000 and 8,000 Bosnian-Muslim men were systematically murdered".¹⁵⁴⁷ On the one hand, the Trial Chamber explicitly referenced this adjudicated fact in sections of the Trial Judgement regarding burial operations and the chapeau elements of crimes against humanity, where it considered the number of victims and the overall situation in Srebrenica.¹⁵⁴⁸ On the other hand, the Trial Chamber found that "at least 3,720 Bosnian-Muslim males were killed" in relation to incidents in Srebrenica.¹⁵⁴⁹ The Appeals Chamber observes that this finding is based on an incident-by-incident analysis in Chapters 7 and 8.3.2 of the Trial Judgement regarding "Schedule E and other incidents",¹⁵⁵⁰ rather than on Adjudicated Fact 1476.

440. Having reviewed the relevant portions of the Trial Judgement, the Appeals Chamber finds Mladić's submission – "that the Trial Chamber failed to give a reasoned opinion that, based on [Adjudicated Fact] 1476, all of the 7,000–8,000 victims of the killings in Srebrenica were not actively taking part in hostilities"¹⁵⁵¹ – to be based on a misinterpretation of the Trial Judgement. The Trial Chamber's finding that "all of the victims of the killings in Srebrenica were not actively participating in the hostilities at the time of the killings” is explicitly qualified by its findings in Chapter 8.3.2 of the Trial Judgement.¹⁵⁵² Chapter 8.3.2, as elaborated below, sets out an incident-by-incident account of the killings in Srebrenica.¹⁵⁵³ Recalling that the Trial Judgement must be read as a whole,¹⁵⁵⁴ the Appeals Chamber considers that the Trial Chamber’s statement about “all of the victims of the killings in Srebrenica” was a reference to those identified in the specific scheduled and unscheduled incidents.¹⁵⁵⁵ Contrary to Mladić’s submission, there is no indication that the Trial Chamber made a finding, on the basis of Adjudicated Fact 1476, that all of the 7,000 to 8,000 victims of the killings in Srebrenica were not actively taking part in hostilities. Accordingly, Mladić’s submission in this respect is dismissed.

441. The Appeals Chamber also finds no merit in Mladić’s contention that the Trial Chamber failed to evaluate the military status of the victims in Srebrenica.¹⁵⁵⁶ The Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber conducted a detailed incident-by-incident analysis in Chapters 7 and 8.3.2 of the Trial Judgement and evaluated the status of the victims for each incident.¹⁵⁵⁷ Contrary to Mladić’s assertion that the Trial Chamber found that “all of the victims were civilians”,¹⁵⁵⁸ the Trial Chamber rather concluded that “a number of the victims were civilians”.¹⁵⁵⁹ The Trial Chamber further specified that: “For many incidents, [. . .] it remained unclear whether the victims were civilians or combatants. However, those people were at least detained at the time of killing, thus hors de combat”.¹⁵⁶⁰ Based on these considerations, the Trial Chamber found that the victims were not actively participating in the hostilities at the time of the killings.¹⁵⁶¹ Such a detailed and comprehensive assessment of the status of the victims in the Srebrenica incidents satisfies, in the Appeals Chamber’s view, the Trial Chamber’s obligation to provide a reasoned opinion.

442. The Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, accordingly rejects Mladić’s claim that the Trial Chamber failed to provide a reasoned opinion on the military status of the victims or that it erred in this respect in relation to Adjudicated Fact 1476.

(b) Alleged Error in the Use of Adjudicated Fact 1476 and in Articulating Mladić’s Liability

443. The Appeals Chamber now turns to Mladić’s allegation that the Trial Chamber erroneously relied on “the number of victims contained in [Adjudicated Fact] 1476” to make findings on his mens rea and significant contribution to the Srebrenica JCE as well as to determine his sentence.¹⁵⁶² As noted above, the Trial Chamber referred to Adjudicated Fact 1476 only with respect to the burial operations and the chapeau elements of crimes against humanity in Srebrenica.¹⁵⁶³ This adjudicated fact is thus pertinent in this case to the overall situation in Srebrenica and not to Mladić’s acts, conduct, and mental state. This is further supported by the fact that, as previously elaborated, the Trial Chamber did not rely on Adjudicated Fact 1476 to determine the number of killings for which Mladić was ultimately found responsible in relation to the Srebrenica JCE.¹⁵⁶⁴ Rather, that determination was based on a detailed incident-by-incident analysis of Schedule E incidents and unscheduled events in Chapters 7 and 8.3.2 of the Trial Judgement.¹⁵⁶⁵

444. Regarding his intent to participate in the Srebrenica JCE and his genocidal intent, Mladić points to the Trial Chamber’s consideration of his presence at a meeting on 13 July 1995 with the VRS and the MUP during which the task of killing 8,000 Muslim males was discussed.¹⁵⁶⁶ In the Appeals Chamber’s view, Mladić has conflated Adjudicated Fact 1476 with Exhibit P2118, which states that he was present at a meeting that discussed the “[k]illing of about 8,000 Muslim soldiers whom [they] blocked in the woods near Konjević Polje [. . .] [t]his job is being done solely by MUP units”.¹⁵⁶⁷ There is no indication that Exhibit P2118 or the Trial Chamber’s findings regarding his mens rea to participate in the Srebrenica JCE or to commit genocide were in any way based on Adjudicated Fact 1476. Having reviewed the Trial Chamber’s analysis on Mladić’s significant contribution to the Srebrenica JCE,¹⁵⁶⁸ the Appeals Chamber finds that the same holds true—there is no indication that the Trial Chamber relied on Adjudicated Fact 1476 in this respect.

445. In relation to his sentence, Mladić argues that “the Trial Chamber relied on its findings in Chapters 7 and 8 where it established that 7,000–8,000 Bosnian-Muslim men were systematically murdered on the basis of [Adjudicated Fact] 1476”.¹⁵⁶⁹ The Appeals Chamber observes that, when assessing the gravity of Mladić’s offences, the Trial Chamber referred to its findings on the crimes in Chapters 7 and 8 as well as his significant contribution to the Srebrenica JCE in Chapter 9.7.¹⁵⁷⁰ As addressed above, there is no indication in the Trial Judgement that the Trial Chamber relied on Adjudicated Fact 1476 to determine his liability in those sections of the Trial Judgement.¹⁵⁷¹ Thus, Mladić does not demonstrate that the Trial Chamber determined his sentence for crimes committed in Srebrenica on the basis of Adjudicated Fact 1476.

446. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber rejects, Judge Nyambe dissenting, Mladić's submissions that the Trial Chamber erred in using Adjudicated Fact 1476 as a basis for determining his liability or sentence with respect to the Srebrenica JCE.

(c) Alleged Error in Failing to Consider Rebuttal Evidence

447. With respect to Mladić's submissions regarding rebuttal evidence, the Appeals Chamber recalls that it has already rejected his blanket submission that the Trial Chamber erred by applying a heightened standard on the burden to rebut adjudicated facts.¹⁵⁷² Mladić's bare statement to this effect in this part of the appeal¹⁵⁷³ is also rejected.

448. With respect to the alleged error in failing to consider evidence presented by Mladić to rebut Adjudicated Fact 1476, the Appeals Chambers recalls that the Trial Chamber only referenced this fact in sections of the Trial Judgement regarding burial operations and the chapeau elements of crimes against humanity, where it considered the number of victims and the overall situation in Srebrenica.¹⁵⁷⁴ Moreover, as already discussed, Mladić's responsibility for crimes committed in Srebrenica was based on a detailed incident-by-incident analysis of killings in Chapter 8.3.2 of the Trial Judgement¹⁵⁷⁵ as well as extensive evidence of his participation in the Srebrenica JCE,¹⁵⁷⁶ rather than on Adjudicated Fact 1476. Given that the Trial Chamber did not use Adjudicated Fact 1476 to determine Mladić's acts, conduct, and mental state, and thus his liability for the Srebrenica JCE, the Appeals Chamber considers that any error on the Trial Chamber's part regarding the assessment of rebuttal evidence would have little, if any, impact on its findings in the Trial Judgement. The Appeals Chamber recalls that arguments which do not have the potential to cause the impugned decision to be reversed or revised may be immediately dismissed and need not be considered on the merits.¹⁵⁷⁷ As such, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, therefore dismisses Mladić's argument that the Trial Chamber failed to address evidence rebutting Adjudicated Fact 1476.

(d) Conclusion

449. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, dismisses Ground 5.E of Mladić's appeal.

5. Alleged Error in Relying on Certain Evidence without Corroboration (Ground 5.I)

450. Mladić submits that, in reaching its findings in support of his Srebrenica JCE convictions under Counts 2 to 8 of the Indictment, the Trial Chamber erred by giving undue weight to "decisive hearsay" and adjudicated facts.¹⁵⁷⁸ In particular, he argues that the Trial Chamber erred by relying on: (i) uncorroborated hearsay to make findings linked to his significant contribution and intent;¹⁵⁷⁹ and (ii) adjudicated facts to prove the elemental requirements of the crime base.¹⁵⁸⁰ Mladić therefore requests that the Appeals Chamber reverse, to the extent of any error, the findings and the basis of his Srebrenica JCE convictions.¹⁵⁸¹ The Appeals Chamber will address these contentions in turn.

(a) Alleged Error in Relying on Uncorroborated Hearsay

451. The Trial Chamber admitted into evidence excerpts of Witness Deronjić's testimony in the Blagojević and Jokić case pursuant to Rule 92 quater of the ICTY Rules,¹⁵⁸² excerpts of the testimony of Witness Drinić in the Blagojević and Jokić case,¹⁵⁸³ as well as excerpts of Witness Mevludin Orić's testimony in the Popović et al. case pursuant to Rule 92 bis of the ICTY Rules.¹⁵⁸⁴ Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in law by relying on this untested evidence to make findings related to his significant contribution to and intent for the Srebrenica JCE.¹⁵⁸⁵ According to Mladić, without the Trial Chamber's erroneous reliance on this evidence, it would not have established the elements of Scheduled Incident E.15, nor the essential elements of the existence of the Srebrenica JCE and his participation in them.¹⁵⁸⁶

452. The Prosecution responds that Mladić fails to show that the Trial Chamber erred by giving “undue weight to” or “relying on” three witnesses whom he did not cross-examine.¹⁵⁸⁷ In the Prosecution’s view, the Trial Chamber properly relied on the evidence of Witnesses Deronjić, Drinić, and Orić.¹⁵⁸⁸ The Prosecution argues that Mladić’s convictions under Counts 2 to 8 of the Indictment in relation to the Srebrenica JCE rest on numerous sources of evidence and findings set out over two volumes of the Trial Judgement and that his assertion that any of his convictions are based solely or in a decisive manner on “untested” evidence is incorrect.¹⁵⁸⁹

453. The Appeals Chamber recalls that under Article 21(4)(e) of the ICTY Statute an accused has the right to examine, or have examined, the witnesses against him. In relation to the challenges to a trial chamber’s reliance on evidence admitted pursuant to Rules 92 bis and 92 quater of the ICTY Rules when the defendant did not have an opportunity to cross-examine the witness, the Appeals Chamber has adopted the following statement of the law:

[A] conviction may not rest solely, or in a decisive manner, on the evidence of a witness whom the accused has had no opportunity to examine or to have examined either during the investigation or at trial. This principle applies “to any fact which is indispensable for a conviction”, meaning “the findings that a trier of fact has to reach beyond reasonable doubt”. It is considered to “run counter to the principles of fairness [. . .] to allow a conviction based on evidence of this kind without sufficient corroboration”.¹⁵⁹⁰

(i) Witness Deronjić’s Rule 92 quater Evidence

454. In finding the existence of the Srebrenica JCE and Mladić’s significant contribution to it, the Trial Chamber considered an excerpt of Witness Deronjić’s testimony admitted pursuant to Rule 92 quater of the ICTY Rules,¹⁵⁹¹ in which he stated that Beara told him that he was about to kill all detainees in Bratunac and that he would do so based on “orders from the top”.¹⁵⁹² Further, with regard to the alleged concealment of crimes during the transportation of Bosnian Muslim civilians out of Potočari, the Trial Chamber, relying on the evidence of Witnesses RM-294 and Deronjić, found that a declaration signed by the DutchBat Deputy Commander Major Robert Franken, Deronjić, and Nesib Mandžić on 17 July 1995 did not reflect the reality with regard to options the population would have had, as no one was given a choice to remain or be evacuated.¹⁵⁹³

455. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erroneously relied on Witness Deronjić’s sole evidence linking Mladić’s subordinate, Beara, to the statement that the orders to kill “came from the top”, as evidence of Mladić’s guilt.¹⁵⁹⁴ In his submission, the Trial Chamber also erred by considering that a declaration, signed by Witness Deronjić regarding the evacuations, concealed that the civilian departures were not voluntary in nature,¹⁵⁹⁵ and it relied on this evidence to find that Mladić was a member of and participated in the Srebrenica JCE and intended to conceal crimes.¹⁵⁹⁶

456. The Prosecution responds that no conviction rests on Witness Deronjić’s evidence alone.¹⁵⁹⁷ It contends that Witness Deronjić’s testimony that Beara told him that the orders to kill came “from the top” was only a fraction of the evidence considered by the Trial Chamber in finding the existence of the Srebrenica JCE and Mladić’s participation in it.¹⁵⁹⁸ The Prosecution also submits that the Trial Chamber reasonably relied on Witness Deronjić’s evidence that the 17 July 1995 declaration he signed concealed the involuntary nature of the transfers.¹⁵⁹⁹

457. The Appeals Chamber will now examine whether Mladić’s convictions rest solely, or in a decisive manner, on the untested evidence of Witness Deronjić. In this regard, the Appeals Chamber observes that, in admitting Witness Deronjić’s testimony pursuant to Rule 92 quater of the ICTY Rules, including its “limited references” to matters that go to the proof of Mladić’s acts and conduct as charged in the Indictment, the Trial Chamber considered that this evidence is cumulative of other evidence and emphasized that “it cannot possibly enter a conviction [based] solely on Deronjić’s evidence without other evidence to corroborate it”.¹⁶⁰⁰

458. In finding the existence of the Srebrenica JCE and Mladić’s participation in it, although the Trial Chamber considered Witness Deronjić’s testimony regarding the orders to kill,¹⁶⁰¹ the Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber essentially relied on its other findings, based on extensive evidence, in relation to: (i) the takeover of the Srebrenica enclave;¹⁶⁰² (ii) the crimes committed in the aftermath of the take-over, including murder, extermination, inhumane acts (forcible transfer), persecution, and genocide;¹⁶⁰³ and (iii) the various statements, acts, and meetings of Bosnian Serb individuals around the time of the take-over of the enclave.¹⁶⁰⁴ The Appeals Chamber thus considers that Witness Deronjić's testimony represents only a small fraction of the evidence considered by the Trial Chamber and Mladić's convictions would stand even without it. Accordingly, the Appeals Chamber finds that Witness Deronjić's testimony regarding the orders to kill cannot be classified as evidence which formed the sole or even a decisive basis for any of Mladić's convictions.

459. Furthermore, the Appeals Chamber notes that Mladić's characterization of the excerpt of Witness Deronjić's testimony regarding the orders to kill as hearsay evidence is correct to the extent that the content of the evidence is what Beara told him. The Appeals Chamber recalls that a trial chamber has the discretion to rely on hearsay evidence,¹⁶⁰⁵ and, accordingly, it is for Mladić to show that no reasonable trier of fact would have taken this evidence into account. However, Mladić's general contentions concerning the Trial Chamber's use of this evidence fail to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in this regard.

460. Turning to the excerpt of Witness Deronjić's testimony regarding the involuntary nature of the transfers, the Appeals Chamber notes that this evidence was corroborated by the evidence of Witnesses Robert Franken¹⁶⁰⁶ and RM-294,¹⁶⁰⁷ which demonstrated that the declaration did not reflect the reality because no one was given a genuine choice whether to stay or to be evacuated.¹⁶⁰⁸ Further, the Appeals Chamber observes that, in reaching its finding that approximately 25,000 Bosnian Muslims who left Potočari to go to Bosnian Muslim controlled territory did not have a genuine choice but to leave, the Trial Chamber did not only rely on evidence concerning the declaration.¹⁶⁰⁹ The Trial Chamber also recalled:

(i) the circumstances surrounding the movement of population from Srebrenica to Potočari, including the orders by the 10th Sabotage Detachment to Srebrenica Town inhabitant[s] to leave, the shells fired by the VRS at the UNPROFOR Bravo compound in Srebrenica, the mortars fired along the road taken by the Bosnian Muslims fleeing towards Potočari; (ii) the situation in the UNPROFOR compound in Potočari and its surroundings, where the population sought refuge, namely the shots and shell[s] fired around the compound, the dire living conditions, the fear and exhaustion of the Bosnian Muslims who had sought refuge there; and (iii) that the VRS, assisted by MUP units, coordinated the boarding of buses, ultimately forcing women[,] children and elderly onto the buses while some were hit by members of the MUP, and escorted the buses towards Bosnian-Muslim controlled territory.¹⁶¹⁰

461. Therefore, the Appeals Chamber considers that Witness Deronjić's testimony regarding the involuntary nature of the transfers was corroborated and that the Trial Chamber did not rely solely, or in a decisive manner, on his evidence in support of Mladić's convictions related to the Srebrenica JCE. Accordingly, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to show any error in the Trial Chamber's reliance on Witness Deronjić's evidence.

(ii) Witness Drinić's Rule 92 bis Evidence

462. Relying in part on Witness Drinić's evidence admitted pursuant to Rule 92 bis of the ICTY Rules,¹⁶¹¹ the Trial Chamber found that no investigations were conducted by any Bosnian Serb military or civilian authority in relation to crimes committed in Srebrenica in 1995.¹⁶¹² Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in law by relying on Witness Drinić's untested testimony in a decisive manner to make this finding,¹⁶¹³ and that, although he sought to recall Witness Drinić and cross-examine him, the Trial Chamber denied this request.¹⁶¹⁴

463. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber properly relied on Witness Drinić's evidence to find that no investigations were conducted by Bosnian Serb military or civilian organs.¹⁶¹⁵ The Prosecution argues that the Rule 92 bis evidence provided by Witness Drinić does not relate to Mladić's acts or conduct and is cumulative of Witness RM-513's testimony.¹⁶¹⁶ It further submits that Mladić did not oppose admission of this evidence at trial¹⁶¹⁷ or seek to recall Witness Drinić to cross-examine him on the basis of this evidence.¹⁶¹⁸ The Prosecution further contends that, in any event, the Trial Chamber did not rely solely on this evidence to find that no investigations were conducted.¹⁶¹⁹

464. While it is undisputed that Mladić did not cross-examine Witness Drinić, the Appeals Chamber is not convinced by Mladić's submission that the Trial Chamber relied on Witness Drinić's evidence in a decisive manner to find that there were no investigations or prosecutions with regard to the Srebrenica killings.¹⁶²⁰ The Appeals Chamber notes that, in reaching its finding, the Trial Chamber relied on, in addition to Witness Drinić's evidence, the witness statement and testimony of Witness RM-513 showing that there were no investigations or prosecutions with regard to the killings of Muslims in Srebrenica or the Zvornik area by members of the Drina Corps, even though information of mass killings was discussed by VRS officers.¹⁶²¹

465. Further, the Appeals Chamber considers that the Trial Chamber's impugned finding could stand even without Witness Drinić's untested testimony. Indeed, the witness statement and testimony of Witness RM-513 suffice to support the Trial Chamber's finding in question. The Appeals Chamber notes that Mladić does not contest the Trial Chamber's reliance on or evaluation of the evidence of Witness RM-513 on appeal. The Appeals Chamber further recalls that there is no legal requirement that the testimony of a single witness on a material fact be corroborated before it can be accepted as evidence. What matters is the reliability and credibility accorded to the testimony.¹⁶²² The Appeals Chamber observes that Mladić was given an opportunity to cross-examine Witness RM-513. However, he did not contest the reliability and credibility of the testimony of Witness RM-513 that there were no investigations or prosecutions with regard to the Srebrenica killings.¹⁶²³

466. Accordingly, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to show that the Trial Chamber relied decisively on Witness Drinić's untested testimony in reaching its finding that there were no civilian or military investigations regarding crimes committed in Srebrenica and dismisses Mladić's submission in this regard.

(iii) Witness Orić's Rule 92 bis Evidence

467. Relying in part on Witness Orić's evidence admitted pursuant to Rule 92 bis of the ICTY Rules,¹⁶²⁴ the Trial Chamber found that, in relation to Scheduled Incident E.15.3, on the night of 13 July 1995, VRS military policemen killed a Bosnian Muslim man who was forced off a bus parked in front of Vuk Karadžić Elementary School.¹⁶²⁵

468. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in law by relying on Witness Orić's Rule 92 bis evidence to establish the crime of murder in Scheduled Incident E.15.3.¹⁶²⁶ Mladić argues that Witness Orić's testimony was uncorroborated by any other evidence and that he was unable to challenge it.¹⁶²⁷ Mladić further submits that without erroneously relying on Witness Orić's Rule 92 bis evidence, the Trial Chamber would not have been able to establish the elements of Scheduled Incident E.15.3, nor the essential elements of the existence of the Srebrenica JCE and his participation in it.¹⁶²⁸

469. The Prosecution responds that Mladić fails to identify an error with respect to the Trial Chamber's reliance on Witness Orić's evidence in relation to Scheduled Incident E.15.3.¹⁶²⁹ According to the Prosecution, while corroboration was not required, Witness Orić's evidence was, in fact, corroborated by adjudicated facts considered by the Trial Chamber which demonstrated a pattern of conduct.¹⁶³⁰ The Prosecution further contends that Mladić's convictions under Counts 2 to 8 do not rest solely or decisively on Witness Orić's "untested evidence" because Scheduled Incident E.15.3 is one of many killings underlying Mladić's conviction for murder and genocide which would stand without the finding that Scheduled Incident E.15.3 took place.¹⁶³¹

470. The Appeals Chamber notes that Witness Orić's evidence was corroborated. In reaching its finding on the killing of one Bosnian Muslim man on 13 July 1995, the Trial Chamber also considered, inter alia, Adjudicated Facts 1502, 1503, 1505, 1506, 1518, and 1519, which demonstrate a pattern of conduct relating to the detention and killing of Bosnian Muslim men in and around the Vuk Karadžić Elementary School between 12 and 14 July 1995.¹⁶³² In this respect, the Appeals Chamber recalls that evidence demonstrating a pattern of conduct relevant to serious violations of international humanitarian law may be used as corroborative evidence.¹⁶³³ There is also no indication that Mladić rebutted these adjudicated facts by introducing reliable and credible evidence to the contrary. Accordingly, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, rejects Mladić's submission that the Trial

Chamber erred in law by relying on Witness Orić's Rule 92 bis evidence when making its finding on Scheduled Incident E.15.3.¹⁶³⁴

(b) Alleged Error in Relying on Adjudicated Fact 1612

471. Pursuant to Rule 94 of the ICTY Rules, the Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Fact 1612 which states that “[b]etween 1,000 and 1,200 men were killed in the course of [16 July 1995] at [the Branjevo Military Farm]”.¹⁶³⁵ In relation to Scheduled Incident E.9.2, the Trial Chamber relied in part on Adjudicated Fact 1612 to determine that between 1,000 and 1,200 male Bosnian Muslim detainees were killed by VRS soldiers at the Branjevo Military Farm on 16 July 1995.¹⁶³⁶ The Trial Chamber also found that the victims of this incident were buried at the Branjevo Military Farm mass grave, and that bodies from this mass grave were subsequently reburied in the Čančari Road 4, 8, 9, 11, and 12 mass graves.¹⁶³⁷

472. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in relying on Adjudicated Fact 1612 to find that the number of victims in relation to Scheduled Incident E.9.2 was between 1,000 and 1,200.¹⁶³⁸ Mladić argues that the Trial Chamber preferred Adjudicated Fact 1612 while it was rebutted by the Prosecution's forensic evidence, namely by the evidence of Witness William Haglund and former ICTY Prosecution Investigator Dušan Janc, showing that the number of victims was limited to 132 bodies at the primary burial site and 43 DNA matches to a secondary site.¹⁶³⁹

473. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber properly relied on Adjudicated Fact 1612.¹⁶⁴⁰ Specifically, it argues that: (i) the Trial Chamber correctly concluded that the forensic evidence did not contradict Adjudicated Fact 1612;¹⁶⁴¹ (ii) Mladić fails to identify an error in the Trial Chamber's finding that the evidence of Witnesses Haglund and Janc does not contradict the total number of victims established through Adjudicated Fact 1612;¹⁶⁴² and (iii) the Trial Chamber properly exercised its discretion in taking judicial notice of adjudicated facts.¹⁶⁴³

474. The Appeals Chamber recalls that by taking judicial notice of an adjudicated fact, a trial chamber recognizes a well-founded presumption for the accuracy of this fact, which therefore does not have to be proven again at trial.¹⁶⁴⁴ It is well-established that facts judicially noticed pursuant to Rule 94(B) of the ICTY Rules are presumptions that may be rebutted with evidence at trial,¹⁶⁴⁵ and that their use does not shift the ultimate burden of proof or persuasion, which remains on the Prosecution.¹⁶⁴⁶ An accused may rebut the presumption by introducing “reliable and credible” evidence to the contrary.¹⁶⁴⁷ The final evaluation of the reliability and credibility, and hence the probative value of the evidence, will only be made in light of the totality of the evidence in the case, in the course of determining the weight to be attached to it.¹⁶⁴⁸

475. The Appeals Chamber notes that, although Mladić challenged Adjudicated Fact 1612 at trial, he did not present any evidence to explicitly rebut it.¹⁶⁴⁹ Moreover, it is for a trial chamber to determine what conclusions, if any, are to be drawn from adjudicated facts when considered together with all of the evidence brought at trial.¹⁶⁵⁰ In determining the number of victims in Scheduled Incident E.9.2, the Trial Chamber considered, inter alia: (i) the evidence of Witness Haglund showing that the Pilica grave site, also referred to as the Branjevo Military Farm grave site, contained the remains of at least 132 men;¹⁶⁵¹ and (ii) Janc's report on the Srebrenica investigation identifying 43 DNA connections between the remains identified at the Branjevo Military Farm primary mass grave, and the remains identified in the Čančari Road 4, 8, 9, 11, and 12 secondary mass graves.¹⁶⁵² The Trial Chamber considered that this evidence did not establish the total number of victims in relation to Scheduled Incident E.9.2 because the Branjevo Military Farm and Čančari Road mass graves contained bodies from multiple incidents.¹⁶⁵³ It thus found that this evidence did not contradict Adjudicated Fact 1612 with respect to the total number of victims.¹⁶⁵⁴

476. Having reviewed the relevant portions of the Trial Judgement, the Appeals Chamber finds no merit in Mladić's contention that Adjudicated Fact 1612 is contradicted by the Prosecution evidence with respect to the number of victims. In the Appeals Chamber's view, Mladić misinterprets the evidence of Witness Haglund and the report of Janc by asserting that this evidence limits the victims to “132 bodies at the primary burial site and 43 DNA matches to a secondary site”.¹⁶⁵⁵ Moreover, in determining whether evidence contradicts an adjudicated fact, the Appeals Chamber recalls that it previously upheld the Trial Chamber's analysis that considered whether the evidence was “unambiguous in its meaning”, namely that it must either point to “a specific alternative scenario” or “unambiguous[ly] demonstrate[e] that the scenario as found in the Adjudicated Fact must reasonably be excluded as true”.¹⁶⁵⁶ In respect of Adjudicated Fact 1612, the Prosecution evidence that Mladić refers to on appeal does not point to a specific alternative scenario nor does it unambiguously demonstrate that the scenario as found in Adjudicated Fact 1612, namely that between 1,000 and 1,200 men were killed in the course of 16 July 1995 at the Branjevo Military Farm,¹⁶⁵⁷ must be reasonably excluded as true.¹⁶⁵⁸ Accordingly, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić fails to identify any error in the Trial Chamber’s finding that the evidence of Witness Haglund and the report of Janc do not contradict Adjudicated Fact 1612 with respect to the total number of victims in relation to Scheduled Incident E.9.2.

477. On the basis of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to show that the Trial Chamber erred in relying on Adjudicated Fact 1612 to find that the number of victims in relation to Scheduled Incident E.9.2 was between 1,000 and 1,200.

(c) Conclusion

478. In light of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, dismisses Ground 5.I of Mladić’s appeal.

E. ALLEGED ERRORS RELATED TO THE HOSTAGE-TAKING JCE (GROUND 6)

479. The Trial Chamber found that, between 25 May and 24 June 1995, VRS soldiers and officers, including members of the military police, and Bosnian Serb police officers and others, detained UNPROFOR and UNMO personnel (“UN Personnel”) in Pale, Banja Luka, Goražde, and in and around Sarajevo, held some of them in strategic military locations which were potential targets of NATO air strikes, and threatened to kill them in order to exert leverage over NATO to end air strikes against Bosnian Serb military targets, recover Serb weapons under UNPROFOR control, and compel UNPROFOR forces to surrender or exchange prisoners.¹⁶⁵⁹ The Trial Chamber found that these acts constituted the crime of taking of hostages as a violation of the laws or customs of war punishable under Article 3 of the ICTY Statute.¹⁶⁶⁰

480. The Trial Chamber further concluded that, from around 25 May 1995, when NATO air strikes commenced, until approximately 24 June 1995, when the last of the detained UN Personnel was released, the Hostage-Taking JCE existed with the common objective of capturing UN Personnel deployed in various parts of Bosnia and Herzegovina and detaining them at strategic military locations to prevent NATO from launching air strikes against Bosnian Serb military targets.¹⁶⁶¹ The Trial Chamber found that members of the Hostage-Taking JCE, which included Radovan Karadžić, Nikola Koljević, as well as members of the VRS Main Staff and corps commands, implemented the common objective themselves or by using VRS members.¹⁶⁶² The Trial Chamber further found that Mladić, Commander of the VRS Main Staff, was “closely involved [...] throughout every stage of the hostage-taking” and significantly contributed to the Hostage-Taking JCE.¹⁶⁶³ It also found that Mladić, as well as other members of the Hostage-Taking JCE, shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the joint criminal enterprise.¹⁶⁶⁴ The Trial Chamber convicted Mladić under Count 11 of the Indictment for the crime of taking of hostages as a violation of the laws or customs of war on the basis of his participation in the Hostage-Taking JCE.¹⁶⁶⁵

481. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in finding that he intended the objective of the Hostage-Taking JCE and that he committed the actus reus and shared the requisite intent for the crime of hostage-taking. In particular, he submits that the Trial Chamber: (i) applied a wrong legal standard in finding that the detention of UN Personnel constituted the crime of hostage-taking; (ii) made incorrect conclusions from its assessment of evidence relating to the detention of UN Personnel; and (iii) erred by assessing circumstantial evidence in a manner that violated the principle of in dubio pro reo.¹⁶⁶⁶ The Appeals Chamber will address these contentions in turn.

1. Alleged Error in Applying the Legal Standard to Find that the Detention of UN Personnel Constituted the Crime of Hostage-Taking (Ground 6.A)

482. In concluding that the events between 25 May and 24 June 1995 constituted the crime of hostage-taking as a violation of the laws or customs of war punishable under Article 3 of the ICTY Statute, the Trial Chamber found that it had jurisdiction over the alleged violation and that the captured UN Personnel fell within the protection guaranteed by Common Article 3 to the four Geneva Conventions (“Common Article 3”).¹⁶⁶⁷ The Trial Chamber held that violations of Common Article 3 fall within the ambit of Article 3 of the ICTY Statute,¹⁶⁶⁸ and that the charge of hostage-taking under Common Article 3(1)(b) meets the jurisdictional requirements and general conditions of Article 3 of the ICTY Statute.¹⁶⁶⁹ In this regard, the Trial Chamber, relying on ICTY Appeals Chamber jurisprudence, held, inter alia, that the rules in Common Article 3 are part of customary international law in international and non-international armed conflicts and that violations of such rules entail individual criminal responsibility.¹⁶⁷⁰ The Trial Chamber also recalled that the protection of Common Article 3 applies to any person taking no active part in the hostilities including combatants placed hors de combat at the time the offence was committed.¹⁶⁷¹

483. Mladić submits that his conviction under Count 11 of the Indictment should be reversed as the Trial Chamber erroneously convicted him for acts which did not constitute a crime under customary international law during the Indictment period.¹⁶⁷² Mladić asserts that the ICTY’s jurisdiction is limited to the ICTY Statute and only the Security Council may “revise and reinterpret the Statute”.¹⁶⁷³ He submits that the Trial Chamber in this case erroneously relied on a decision of the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Tadić case in finding that violations of Common Article 3 fall within the ambit of Article 3 of the ICTY Statute.¹⁶⁷⁴ He contends that the Trial Chamber failed to conduct an analysis of its jurisdiction, and that, had it done so, it would have found cogent reasons to depart from the Tadić Decision of 2 October 1995.¹⁶⁷⁵ Mladić submits that, by relying on the Tadić Decision of 2 October 1995, the Trial Chamber violated the principle of nullum crimen, nulla poena sine praevia lege, which, according to him, “requires a trier of fact to exercise great caution in finding that an alleged act, not regulated in [Article 3] of the [ICTY] Statute, forms part of a crime.”¹⁶⁷⁶

484. Mladić argues that, in May and June 1995, the taking of combatants as hostages entailed only state responsibility and not individual criminal responsibility under customary international law.¹⁶⁷⁷ He contends that the prohibition against taking non-civilians hostage was introduced as a war crime in 2002 with the entry into force of the Statute of the ICC (“ICC Statute”) and that, during the Indictment period, only the killing of hostages was criminalized.¹⁶⁷⁸ Mladić adds that, during the events, individual criminal responsibility extended only to the hostage-taking of civilians and that the UN Personnel could not be considered civilians.¹⁶⁷⁹

485. The Prosecution responds that hostage-taking of any detainee was criminalized under customary international law in 1995 and that the ICTY had jurisdiction over this crime.¹⁶⁸⁰ The Prosecution contends that Mladić fails to provide cogent reasons to depart from the well-established jurisprudence that Common Article 3 formed part of customary international law during the relevant events and that its breaches entailed individual criminal responsibility.¹⁶⁸¹ It asserts that in light of the “clear ICTY case law”, and since Mladić never raised the jurisdictional argument at trial, the Trial Chamber was not required to provide a detailed analysis for hostage-taking as a serious violation of Common Article 3.¹⁶⁸²

486. Mladić replies that the Prosecution fails to address his submissions and that its reliance on the Karadžić Decision of 11 December 2012 is misguided as the decision does not deal with the issues challenged in his appeal.¹⁶⁸³

487. The Appeals Chamber observes that Mladić did not raise the issue regarding the Trial Chamber’s alleged lack of jurisdiction over the crime of hostage-taking at trial.¹⁶⁸⁴ The Appeals Chamber recalls that if a party raises no objection to a particular issue before the Trial Chamber when it could have reasonably done so, in the absence of special circumstances, the Appeals Chamber will find that the party has waived its right to adduce the issue as a valid ground of appeal.¹⁶⁸⁵ The Appeals Chamber notes, however, that as discussed below, the matter of the ICTY’s jurisdiction over violations of Common Article 3 and, in particular, the crime of hostage-taking was settled by the ICTY Appeals Chamber and was therefore binding on the Trial Chamber in the present case.¹⁶⁸⁶ Consequently, even if Mladić had raised this jurisdictional challenge at trial, it would not have been open to the Trial Chamber in this case to depart from the jurisprudence of the ICTY Appeals Chamber. In these circumstances, the Appeals Chamber exercises its discretion to examine Mladić’s submissions on appeal in respect of the ICTY’s alleged lack of jurisdiction over the crime of hostage-taking.

488. As to whether cogent reasons exist for the Appeals Chamber to depart from the jurisprudence in this regard, the standards of appellate review require Mladić to demonstrate that the decision to exercise jurisdiction over the crime of hostage-taking was made on the basis of a wrong legal principle or was “wrongly decided, usually because the judge or judges were ill-informed about the applicable law”.¹⁶⁸⁷ The Appeals Chamber recalls ICTY Appeals Chamber jurisprudence holding that Article 3 of the ICTY Statute is a general and residual clause which refers to a broad category of offences, namely all “violations of the laws or customs of war”, not limited to the list of violations enumerated therein.¹⁶⁸⁸ The ICTY Appeals Chamber has consistently held that Article 3 of the ICTY Statute may cover all violations of international humanitarian law not falling under Articles 2, 4, or 5 of the ICTY Statute, including violations of Common Article 3,¹⁶⁸⁹ which contains a prohibition of hostage-taking.¹⁶⁹⁰ The Appeals Chamber further recalls that the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Tadić case examined, inter alia, findings of the International Military Tribunal at Nuremberg, domestic prosecutions, military manuals and legislation – including the law of the former Yugoslavia – and Security Council resolutions, and confirmed the formation of opinio juris to the effect that customary international law imposes criminal liability for those who commit serious violations of Common Article 3.¹⁶⁹¹ Furthermore, the ICTY Appeals Chamber has previously rejected arguments that there are cogent reasons to depart from the Tadić jurisprudence on the questions of whether Common Article 3 is included in the scope of Article 3 of the ICTY Statute¹⁶⁹² and whether breaches of its provisions give rise to individual criminal responsibility.¹⁶⁹³ The ICTY Appeals Chamber has stated that the acts enumerated in Common Article 3 were intended to be criminalized within the international legal order as early as 1949.¹⁶⁹⁴

489. Furthermore, the ICTY has exercised its jurisdiction under Article 3 of the ICTY Statute to try individuals for violations of Common Article 3,¹⁶⁹⁵ including on the basis of hostage-taking.¹⁶⁹⁶ In this respect, the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Karadžić case upheld the ICTY Trial Chamber’s determination that the ICTY had jurisdiction over the crime of hostage-taking under Article 3 of the ICTY Statute.¹⁶⁹⁷ The ICTY Appeals Chamber has held that, under Common Article 3, there is an absolute prohibition of taking hostage of any person taking no active part in hostilities as well as detained individuals irrespective of their status prior to detention.¹⁶⁹⁸ It has also rejected the submission that the crime of hostage-taking is limited under customary international law to the taking of civilians hostage.¹⁶⁹⁹ In light of this jurisprudence, the Appeals Chamber considers that the matter of the ICTY’s jurisdiction over the crime of hostage-taking was settled by the ICTY Appeals Chamber.

490. In attempting to demonstrate that there are cogent reasons to depart from this well established jurisprudence, Mladić submits that during the Indictment period, with the exception of the killing of hostages or the taking of civilians hostage, the taking of “non-civilians” hostage was not prohibited and did not entail individual criminal responsibility under customary international law. Mladić’s argument that the laws and norms applicable to the International Military Tribunal at Nuremberg only apply to the killing of hostages¹⁷⁰⁰ does not undermine the fact that the prohibition of hostage-taking of any person taking no active part in the hostilities was nevertheless well established in customary international law during the period covered by the Indictment and entailed individual criminal responsibility. The Appeals Chamber recalls that Article 4 of the ICTR Statute, which was adopted in 1994, expressly prohibits hostage-taking as a violation of Common Article 3 and Additional Protocol II. The ICTY Appeals Chamber has stated that the ICTR applies existing customary international law and that it was established to prosecute crimes which were already the subject of individual criminal responsibility.¹⁷⁰¹ Furthermore, an analysis of state practice confirms the formation of opinio juris that customary international law imposes individual criminal responsibility for violations of Common Article 3 and Additional Protocol II during the Indictment period. For example, legislation and military manuals of a number of states prohibited such violations,¹⁷⁰² and Additional Protocol II, which specifically contains the prohibition against hostage-taking of “[a]ll persons who do not take a direct part or who have ceased to take part in hostilities, whether or not their liberty has been restricted”, was adopted in 1977 by consensus and had been ratified by over 120 states at the time of the events included in the Indictment.¹⁷⁰³

491. Against this background, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić’s reliance on two domestic military manuals in support of his arguments is unpersuasive and fails to undermine well-established law on the prohibition of hostage-taking. In this respect, Mladić’s submission that the military manual of the United States only prohibits the taking of civilians hostage neglects that the same manual restates Common Article 3 and criminalizes “every violation of the law of war” as a war crime.¹⁷⁰⁴ Similarly, his contention that the military manual of the United Kingdom only prohibits the killing of civilian hostages omits that the same section of the manual provides a non-exhaustive list of acts amounting to war crimes and criminalizes “all other violations of the [Geneva] Conventions”.¹⁷⁰⁵

492. With respect to Mladić’s assertion that hostage-taking did not form part of Article 144 of the Criminal Code of the SFRY,¹⁷⁰⁶ it is worth noting that: (i) Article 142(1) of the same criminal code entitled “War crimes against the civilian population” forbids an attack against persons hors de combat and includes a prohibition against hostage-taking;¹⁷⁰⁷ and (ii) as previously noted by the ICTY Appeals Chamber, the SFRY Parliament enacted a law in 1978 to implement the two Additional Protocols of the Geneva Conventions, which contain the prohibition against hostage-taking, rendering them “directly applicable to the courts of former Yugoslavia”.¹⁷⁰⁸

493. In light of the above considerations, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the decision to exercise jurisdiction over the crime of hostage-taking was made on the basis of a wrong legal principle or has been wrongly decided and that, therefore, there are cogent reasons to depart from well-settled jurisprudence in this respect.

494. The Appeals Chamber notes that in finding that it had jurisdiction over the crime of hostage-taking, the Trial Chamber recalled the four conditions set out in the Tadić Decision of 2 October 1995 to satisfy Article 3 of the ICTY Statute’s “residual jurisdiction”, namely that: (i) the offence charged must violate a rule of international humanitarian law; (ii) the rule must bind the parties at the time of the alleged offence; (iii) the rule must protect important values and its violation must have grave consequences for the victim; and (iv) that such a violation must entail the individual criminal responsibility of the perpetrator.¹⁷⁰⁹ The Trial Chamber relied, inter alia, on the ICTY Appeals Chamber jurisprudence in the Tadić, Čelebići, and Karadžić cases and concluded that hostage-taking under Article 3(1)(b) common to the Geneva Conventions met these conditions as the rules in Common Article 3 are part of customary international law in international and non-international armed conflicts, the acts prohibited by Common Article 3 breach rules protecting important values and involve grave consequences for the victims, and violations of such rules entail individual criminal responsibility.¹⁷¹⁰ In light of the established jurisprudence on this matter, the Appeals Chamber finds that the Trial Chamber correctly relied on the Tadić Decision of 2 October 1995 and other consistent ICTY Appeals Chamber jurisprudence in the exercise of its jurisdiction over the crime of hostage-taking and, contrary to Mladić’s argument, it was not required to conduct a more detailed analysis in this respect.¹⁷¹¹

495. With respect to Mladić’s submission that the Trial Chamber violated the principle of nullum crimen sine lege, the Appeals Chamber recalls that this principle prescribes that a person may only be found guilty of a crime in respect of acts which constituted a violation of a norm which existed at the time of their commission.¹⁷¹² In light of the well-established jurisprudence that hostage-taking was a crime under customary international law during the period covered by the Indictment, the Appeals Chamber rejects Mladić’s contention that, by relying on the Tadić Decision of 2 October 1995, the Trial Chamber breached the principle of nullum crimen sine lege.

496. Mladić therefore fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in finding that it had jurisdiction over the hostage-taking of the UN Personnel or that there are cogent reasons to depart from well-established jurisprudence on this matter. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber dismisses Ground 6.A of Mladić’s appeal.

2. Alleged Error in Conclusions from Assessment of Evidence Relating to the Detention of UN Personnel (Ground 6.B)

497. Upon considering Mladić’s argument that the UN Personnel were combatants and not entitled to the protection of Common Article 3, the Trial Chamber found their status as combatants or civilians to be irrelevant since the protection of Common Article 3 applies to any person taking no active part in the hostilities at the time the offence was committed, including combatants rendered hors de combat by detention.¹⁷¹³ The Trial Chamber concluded that the captured UN Personnel fell within the protection guaranteed by Common Article 3.¹⁷¹⁴

498. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred by failing to make a determination of the status of the UN Personnel and in finding that their status as combatants or civilians was irrelevant.¹⁷¹⁵ He contends that the UN Personnel were combatants and that the detention of combatants as prisoners of war, who become hors de combat, does not entail any criminal responsibility.¹⁷¹⁶ Consequently, Mladić submits, the Trial Chamber did not have jurisdiction over the alleged crime of taking the UN Personnel hostage.¹⁷¹⁷

499. The Prosecution responds that the UN Personnel were rendered hors de combat by their detention and, as such, were protected under Common Article 3 regardless of their status prior to detention.¹⁷¹⁸ It submits that the ICTY had jurisdiction over the crime of hostage-taking relating to all detained individuals and that the determination of the status of the UN Personnel prior to detention was unnecessary.¹⁷¹⁹

500. Mladić replies that the Prosecution does not engage directly with his submission that the status of the UN Personnel was relevant to whether the Trial Chamber had jurisdiction over the alleged crimes.¹⁷²⁰

501. As discussed above, the Trial Chamber correctly found that the protection of Common Article 3 applies to any person taking no active part in the hostilities including combatants placed hors de combat at the time the offence was committed.¹⁷²¹ The prohibition against hostage-taking in Common Article 3 applies to all detained individuals irrespective of their status prior to detention.¹⁷²² Accordingly, the Appeals Chambers of the ICTY and the Mechanism have affirmed that the UN Personnel were entitled to protection under Common Article 3.¹⁷²³ Mladić therefore fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in finding that the status of the UN Personnel, as combatants or civilians, was irrelevant to determining whether they were entitled to the protection against hostage-taking in Common Article 3.

502. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber dismisses Ground 6.B of Mladić's appeal.

3. Alleged Errors in Assessing Circumstantial Evidence (Ground 6.C)

503. As recalled above, the Trial Chamber concluded that, from around 25 May 1995 until approximately 24 June 1995, the Hostage-Taking JCE existed with the common objective of capturing the UN Personnel deployed in various parts of Bosnia and Herzegovina and detaining them at strategic military locations to prevent NATO from launching air strikes against Bosnian Serb military targets.¹⁷²⁴ The Trial Chamber also found that Mladić significantly contributed to and, along with other members of the Hostage-Taking JCE, shared the intent to achieve the common objective of this joint criminal enterprise.¹⁷²⁵

504. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to exculpatory evidence in relation to the Hostage-Taking JCE, leading it to err in finding that his significant contribution¹⁷²⁶ and *mens rea*¹⁷²⁷ were established beyond reasonable doubt.¹⁷²⁸ The Appeals Chamber will address these contentions in turn.

(a) Alleged Failure to Give Sufficient Weight to “Exculpatory Evidence” Concerning Mladić’s Significant Contribution to the Hostage-Taking JCE

505. In concluding that Mladić significantly contributed to the Hostage-Taking JCE, the Trial Chamber considered its findings that, inter alia, Mladić ordered VRS units to detain the UN Personnel and to place them at potential NATO air strike targets and, when requested to release them, informed the UNPROFOR Commander that the detainees' release was contingent on the cessation of air strikes.¹⁷²⁹

506. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in fact in making findings on his significant contribution to the Hostage-Taking JCE, namely by: (i) relying on orders not issued by him; (ii) failing to give sufficient weight to other orders issued by him to treat the UN Personnel as prisoners of war in accordance with the Geneva Conventions; and (iii) failing to correctly assess evidence relating to the filming of the UN Personnel.¹⁷³⁰

507. Specifically, Mladić submits that, in finding that he ordered the placement of the UN Personnel at potential NATO air strike targets and that he significantly contributed to the Hostage-Taking JCE, the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to the fact that two orders on which it relied in making this finding were not issued by him.¹⁷³¹ He argues that the order dated 27 May 1995 was not signed by him and originated from the “Supreme Defence Counsel” headed by Karadžić.¹⁷³² In addition, he contends that this order and another order, dated 30 May 1995, on which the Trial Chamber relied did not contain his “unique identification number”, and that both were “inconsistent with [his] military notebooks” and orders to his subordinates.¹⁷³³

508. Mladić further submits that, in finding that his subordinates made threats against the UN Personnel and that his orders to detain them illustrate his significant contribution to the Hostage-Taking JCE, the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to orders he gave to subordinates to treat detainees as prisoners of war in accordance with the Geneva Conventions, which were followed.¹⁷³⁴ Mladić asserts that his orders to detain and disarm the UN Personnel were lawful under international humanitarian law.¹⁷³⁵

509. Mladić also submits that, in finding that he visited the detainees between 2 and 4 June 1995 and ordered their filming, the Trial Chamber relied on Witness Janusz Kalbarczyk whose evidence was inconsistent and differed from testimonies of other detained UN Personnel who did not confirm seeing Mladić.¹⁷³⁶ Mladić asserts that the Trial Chamber found that he ordered the filming of the detainees without referring to evidence.¹⁷³⁷ He contends that the Trial Chamber relied on the hearsay evidence of Witness Patrick Rechner that Mladić had ordered the transport of the detainees to be filmed on different dates and locations, and that this evidence was not corroborated by “other UN prisoners present there”.¹⁷³⁸ He argues that this evidence was inconsistent with: (i) Witness Kalbarczyk’s testimony affirming Mladić’s absence during the filming on 2 and 3 June 1995 and that the filming was done by a civilian journalist;¹⁷³⁹ (ii) the lack of mention of the filming between 2 and 4 June 1995 by Witness Griffiths Evans;¹⁷⁴⁰ and (iii) the evidence of Witness Snježan Lalović, the journalist who conducted the filming, that he was not ordered to film by anyone in the military but by his editors and “who denies any mention of [Mladić]” during the transportation of the detainees on 26 May 1995.¹⁷⁴¹

510. The Prosecution responds that none of the evidence cited by Mladić undermines the Trial Chamber’s findings and that he ignores critical evidence establishing his central involvement in the implementation of the common purpose.¹⁷⁴² Specifically, the Prosecution contends that the Trial Chamber did not attribute the order dated 27 May 1995 to Mladić or rely on it in finding that he ordered the placement of the UN Personnel at potential air strike targets.¹⁷⁴³ The Prosecution submits that the Trial Chamber did not fail to give sufficient weight to orders to treat detainees as prisoners of war, but points out that those same orders also include instructions to take the UN Personnel as hostages.¹⁷⁴⁴ Consequently, in its submission, the Trial Chamber properly relied on such orders in making its finding that Mladić and the other members of the joint criminal enterprise issued them in furtherance of the common objective of the Hostage-Taking JCE.¹⁷⁴⁵ The Prosecution further submits that the Trial Chamber reviewed the evidence to which Mladić refers with respect to the filming of the detainees and submits that the Trial Chamber reasonably concluded that he ordered the filming.¹⁷⁴⁶ The Prosecution adds that, in any event, the Trial Chamber’s finding of Mladić’s significant contribution does not depend on any finding concerning the filming of the detainees, in light of Mladić’s orders to detain the UN Personnel and place them at potential NATO air strike targets as well as his negotiating about their release.¹⁷⁴⁷

511. Mladić replies that he demonstrated that the Trial Chamber erred by relying on inconsistent evidence and failing to give sufficient weight to exculpatory evidence regarding his participation in the Hostage-Taking JCE.¹⁷⁴⁸

512. Mladić contends that the Trial Chamber relied on two orders not issued by him, pointing to orders dated 27 May 1995 and 30 May 1995.¹⁷⁴⁹ With respect to the order dated 27 May 1995, the Appeals Chamber recalls that the Trial Chamber found that it contained an order to various VRS corps and units to place captured and disarmed UNPROFOR forces at potential NATO air strike targets (“Order of 27 May 1995”).¹⁷⁵⁰ With respect to the order dated 30 May 1995, the Trial Chamber found that Mladić informed VRS corps commands and units that NATO was preparing an operation to free the captured UN Personnel and ordered: (i) all units to open fire on the area of airborne assault and of the deployment of UNPROFOR troops in the event NATO launched such an operation; and (ii) the SRK Command to complete the disarming of the detainees and deploy them to potential NATO strike targets (“Order of 30 May 1995”).¹⁷⁵¹ The Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber explicitly noted that the Order of 27 May 1995 was signed by Milovanović who was the Chief of Staff and Deputy Commander of the VRS Main Staff.¹⁷⁵² The Trial Chamber therefore did not attribute this order to Mladić personally, but rather to the VRS Main Staff.¹⁷⁵³ To the extent that Mladić argues that the Trial Chamber erred in attributing the Order of 30 May 1995 to him, the Appeals Chamber finds this to be without merit as this order bears his signature and Mladić did not claim at trial that the order was not attributable to him.¹⁷⁵⁴ In addition, the Appeals Chamber summarily dismisses Mladić’s undeveloped submissions that the two orders were inconsistent with his military notebooks and orders to his subordinates. The Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić fails to demonstrate error in the Trial Chamber's assessment related to the Order of 27 May 1995 and the Order of 30 May 1995.

513. The Appeals Chamber turns to Mladić's submission that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to his orders to subordinates to treat detainees as prisoners of war in accordance with the Geneva Conventions. The Appeals Chamber observes that in support of this argument Mladić refers to paragraphs of the Trial Judgement without pointing to any specific orders or evidence on the record.¹⁷⁵⁵ A review of the Trial Judgement reveals that in some of the paragraphs which Mladić cites, the Trial Chamber discussed evidence concerning orders regarding the treatment of detainees¹⁷⁵⁶ or their actual treatment.¹⁷⁵⁷ In reviewing some of the evidence which Mladić claims concerns the treatment of the detainees as prisoners of war in accordance with the Geneva Conventions, the Trial Chamber also considered that: (i) the detainees were beaten, abused, and handcuffed to flagpoles; (ii) Mladić and VRS members issued threats to the UN Personnel or UNPROFOR headquarters on the fate of the detainees with the aim of stopping the air strikes; and (iii) UN Personnel were used as "human shields".¹⁷⁵⁸ In these circumstances, Mladić does not demonstrate an error on the part of the Trial Chamber in assessing or weighing the evidence.

514. The Appeals Chamber also observes that, in discussing Mladić's contribution to the Hostage-Taking JCE, the Trial Chamber specifically recalled some of the evidence concerning the alleged treatment of the detained UN Personnel as prisoners of war¹⁷⁵⁹ and found that he: (i) ordered VRS units to detain the UN Personnel and to place them at potential NATO air strike targets; (ii) when requested to release the detained UN Personnel, informed an UNPROFOR representative that such release was contingent on the cessation of air strikes; and (iii) was closely involved throughout every stage of the hostage-taking, including as a negotiator with UNPROFOR representatives.¹⁷⁶⁰ In light of such evidence and findings, Mladić does not show how selective orders to treat the detained UN Personnel as prisoners of war or examples of alleged favourable treatment of the detainees who were threatened, abused, and used as "human shields", could undermine the Trial Chamber's conclusion that he significantly contributed to the Hostage-Taking JCE. Similarly, in light of these considerations, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić's arguments that his orders to detain and disarm the UN Personnel, as well as orders forbidding leakage of information regarding the detention and contact with the detainees were lawful, fail to identify any error or undermine the Trial Chamber's finding that he significantly contributed to the Hostage-Taking JCE.

515. With respect to Mladić's contention that the Trial Chamber erred in relying on inconsistent evidence in finding that he visited some of the detainees between 2 and 4 June 1995 and ordered to film them, the Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber did not rely on this evidence in making a finding on Mladić's significant contribution to the Hostage-Taking JCE.¹⁷⁶¹ The Trial Chamber mainly relied on the evidence and findings that Mladić ordered VRS units to detain the UN Personnel and place them at potential NATO air strike targets, informed an UNPROFOR representative that their release was contingent on the cessation of air strikes, ordered such release, and was closely involved throughout every stage of the hostage-taking including as a negotiator with UNPROFOR representatives.¹⁷⁶² Therefore, any error on the part of the Trial Chamber relating to Mladić's visit and order to film the detainees between 2 and 4 June 1995 would not disturb the Trial Chamber's conclusion that he significantly contributed to the Hostage-Taking JCE. Consequently, as Mladić's submissions on this point do not have the potential to demonstrate a miscarriage of justice or cause the Trial Judgement to be reversed or revised, the Appeals Chamber dismisses them without further consideration in accordance with the applicable standard of review.¹⁷⁶³

516. The Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić therefore fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in assessing the evidence concerning his contribution to the Hostage-Taking JCE.

(b) Alleged Failure to Give Sufficient Weight to "Exculpatory Evidence" Concerning Mladić's Mens Rea

517. In concluding that Mladić shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Hostage-Taking JCE, the Trial Chamber found that he intended to capture the UN Personnel and detain them in strategic military locations in order to prevent NATO from launching further air strikes on Bosnian Serb military targets.¹⁷⁶⁴ The Trial Chamber particularly considered Mladić's statements and conduct including: (i) his orders to detain the UN Personnel and place them at potential NATO air strike locations; (ii) his statements on the fate of the UN Personnel; (iii) evidence that he communicated to UNPROFOR that the release of the detainees was contingent on the cessation of air strikes; and (iv) evidence that his subordinates threatened the UN Personnel with the aim of stopping the air strikes.¹⁷⁶⁵

518. Mladić submits that in finding that he possessed the mens rea for the Hostage-Taking JCE, the Trial Chamber erred by giving insufficient weight to his “proactive actions and conduct”, which reflected his intent “to bring a peaceful end to the situation”.¹⁷⁶⁶ Mladić namely points to his attempt to open “direct and more efficient” channels of communication and prompt action to end the crisis by: (i) negotiating a possible termination of hostilities to end the captivity of the UN Personnel despite the fact that they “can be detained until the definitive termination of hostilities”,¹⁷⁶⁷ and (ii) instructing his subordinates to release the UN Personnel immediately after such decision was made by the political leadership.¹⁷⁶⁸ Mladić further submits that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient, if any, weight to the evidence of Witness Radoje Vojvodić who, on the orders of the VRS Main Staff, removed the UN Personnel from risk and harm inflicted by others and treated them in accordance with international humanitarian law.¹⁷⁶⁹

519. The Prosecution responds that the evidence cited by Mladić incriminates, rather than exculpates him, and does not undermine the fact that the UN Personnel were taken hostage on his orders.¹⁷⁷⁰ It contends that Mladić’s argument that prisoners of war can be detained until the termination of hostilities is “beside the point” given his role in conditioning their release on the cessation of hostilities which amounts to a gross violation of international humanitarian law.¹⁷⁷¹ The Prosecution submits that Mladić played a central role in the implementation of the Hostage-Taking JCE and fails to show error in the Trial Chamber’s findings in relation to his mens rea.¹⁷⁷²

520. Mladić replies that the Prosecution mischaracterizes and fails to respond to his submissions that he took proactive actions in order to bring an end to the crisis.¹⁷⁷³

521. With respect to the alleged failure to give sufficient weight to Mladić’s negotiating a possible termination of hostilities,¹⁷⁷⁴ the Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber took express note of and discussed the evidence cited by Mladić of conversations between him and UNPROFOR Commander General Bernard Janvier concerning such negotiations.¹⁷⁷⁵ The Trial Chamber found that when requested to release the UN Personnel, Mladić informed Commander Janvier that their release was contingent on a guarantee that the air strikes would cease.¹⁷⁷⁶ The Trial Chamber took this evidence into account, among other evidence of Mladić’s acts and conduct, in concluding that Mladić shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Hostage-Taking JCE.¹⁷⁷⁷ The Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić does not demonstrate error in the Trial Chamber’s assessment of his negotiating efforts.

522. With respect to the alleged failure to give sufficient weight to his instructions to release the UN Personnel immediately upon the decision of the political leadership to do so,¹⁷⁷⁸ the Trial Chamber reviewed the evidence to which Mladić refers that, on 2 and 6 June 1995, in compliance with the orders from Karadžić, Mladić ordered various VRS units to release 215 of the detained UN Personnel.¹⁷⁷⁹ While the Trial Chamber did not expressly discuss this evidence in assessing Mladić’s intent to achieve the common objective of the Hostage-Taking JCE, in light of the evidence and the Trial Chamber’s findings that he had ordered their initial detention and placement at potential NATO air strike locations,¹⁷⁸⁰ Mladić does not demonstrate how the fact that he implemented orders by his superior to release some of the detained UN Personnel could undermine the Trial Chamber’s conclusion that he shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Hostage-Taking JCE.¹⁷⁸¹

523. The Appeals Chamber turns to the alleged failure to give sufficient weight to the evidence of Witness Vojvodić, a VRS officer in charge of the Koran military barracks in Pale,¹⁷⁸² who Mladić claims removed the detained UN Personnel from harm and treated them in accordance with international humanitarian law.¹⁷⁸³ Although the Trial Chamber did not expressly consider this evidence in the section of the Trial Judgement concerning Mladić’s mens rea for the Hostage-Taking JCE, the Trial Chamber discussed Witness Vojvodić’s treatment of the detainees in Chapter 6 of the Trial Judgement, which sets out the evidence relating to hostage-taking.¹⁷⁸⁴ The Trial Chamber considered, for example, that on one occasion Witness Vojvodić sent back soldiers who had made threats to the life of UN Personnel detained at the Koran military barracks.¹⁷⁸⁵ However, the Trial Chamber also reviewed evidence that: (i) on 26 May 1995, Bosnian Serb soldiers drove two of the detained UN Personnel to the Koran headquarters and handcuffed them to flagpoles in front of the building;¹⁷⁸⁶ (ii) on the same day, a VRS commander told detained UN Personnel that they would be chained to strategic places if NATO strikes were to continue;¹⁷⁸⁷ and (iii) on 27 May 1995, following a visit of Witness Vojvodić, detained UN Personnel were moved to another building so that they could be chained more quickly to NATO's potential targets.¹⁷⁸⁸ In light of this evidence considered by the Trial Chamber, Mladić fails to demonstrate that the alleged selective favourable treatment of the detained UN Personnel by one VRS officer could undermine the Trial Chamber's conclusion that Mladić shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Hostage-Taking JCE.

524. In light of the evidence and the Trial Chamber's findings that Mladić issued orders to detain the UN Personnel and place them at potential NATO air strike locations, made statements on the fate of the detainees, informed UNPROFOR that their release was contingent on the cessation of air strikes, and that his subordinates threatened the UN Personnel with the aim of stopping the air strikes,¹⁷⁸⁹ the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber insufficiently considered his "proactive actions and conduct" or that the Trial Chamber assessed the evidence in an unreasonable manner in finding that he shared the intent to achieve the common purpose of the Hostage-Taking JCE.

(c) Conclusion

525. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber dismisses Ground 6.C of Mladić's appeal.

H. SENTENCING (GROUND 9)

537. The Trial Chamber sentenced Mladić to a single sentence of life imprisonment for genocide, crimes against humanity (persecution, extermination, murder, deportation, and inhumane acts), and violations of the laws or customs of war (murder, terror, unlawful attacks on civilians, and taking of hostages).¹⁸¹⁷ In determining his sentence, the Trial Chamber considered, inter alia, the gravity of Mladić's offences and the totality of his culpable conduct, his individual circumstances, and the general practice regarding prison sentences in the courts of the former Yugoslavia.¹⁸¹⁸

538. Pursuant to Article 24 of the ICTY Statute and Rule 101(B) of the ICTY Rules, trial chambers of the ICTY were required to take into account the following factors in sentencing: (i) the gravity of the offence or totality of the culpable conduct; (ii) the individual circumstances of the convicted person; (iii) the general practice regarding prison sentences in the courts of the former Yugoslavia; and (iv) aggravating and mitigating circumstances.¹⁸¹⁹

539. The Appeals Chamber recalls that appeals against a sentence, as appeals from a trial judgement, are appeals stricto sensu; they are of a corrective nature and are not trials de novo.¹⁸²⁰ Trial chambers are vested with a broad discretion in determining an appropriate sentence, due to their obligation to individualize the penalties to fit the circumstances of the accused and the gravity of the crime.¹⁸²¹ As a general rule, the Appeals Chamber will not revise a sentence unless the trial chamber has committed a discernible error in exercising its discretion or has failed to follow the applicable law.¹⁸²² It is for the party challenging the sentence to demonstrate how the trial chamber ventured outside its discretionary framework in imposing the sentence.¹⁸²³ To show that the trial chamber committed a discernible error in exercising its discretion, an appellant must demonstrate that the trial chamber gave weight to extraneous or irrelevant considerations, failed to give weight or sufficient weight to relevant considerations, made a clear error as to the facts upon which it exercised its discretion, or that its decision was so unreasonable or plainly unjust that the Appeals Chamber is able to infer that the trial chamber failed to properly exercise its discretion.¹⁸²⁴

540. Mladić appeals against the sentence of life imprisonment imposed by the Trial Chamber.¹⁸²⁵ He challenges the Trial Chamber's consideration of: (i) his abuse of authority;¹⁸²⁶ (ii) his mitigating circumstances;¹⁸²⁷ and (iii) the sentencing practices and laws in the former Yugoslavia.¹⁸²⁸ The Appeals Chamber will address these submissions in turn.

1. Abuse of Authority (Ground 9.A)

541. As part of its assessment on the gravity of the offences and the totality of the culpable conduct, the Trial Chamber considered that Mladić's participation in all four joint criminal enterprises was undertaken in his official capacity as Commander of the VRS Main Staff, a position which he held throughout the entire Indictment period.¹⁸²⁹ The Trial Chamber found that Mladić abused this position and that, inter alia, this “abuse of his superior position” added to the gravity of the offences.¹⁸³⁰

542. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber did not prove the elements of superior responsibility under Article 7(3) of the ICTY Statute beyond reasonable doubt and thus erred by “aggravating [his] sentence with superior responsibility”.¹⁸³¹ Mladić requests the Appeals Chamber to revise the sentence accordingly.¹⁸³²

543. The Prosecution responds that Mladić’s sentence should stand, as life imprisonment is the only sentence that reflects both the gravity of his crimes and the form and degree of his participation in them and any other sentence would be “unreasonable and plainly unjust”.¹⁸³³ The Prosecution submits that the Trial Chamber appropriately considered Mladić’s abuse of authority as an aggravating factor, which did not require a finding of superior responsibility.¹⁸³⁴

544. Mladić replies that the Prosecution fails to undermine the legal and factual grounds of appeal under Ground 9.¹⁸³⁵

545. The Appeals Chamber recalls that the primary goal in sentencing is to ensure that the final or aggregate sentence reflects the totality of the criminal conduct and overall culpability of the offender.¹⁸³⁶ While gravity of the offence is the primary factor in sentencing, the inherent gravity must be determined by reference to the particular circumstances of the case and the form and degree of the accused’s participation in the crime.¹⁸³⁷ In this regard, the Appeals Chamber recalls that while a position of influence or authority, even at a high level, does not automatically warrant a harsher sentence, its abuse may constitute an aggravating factor.¹⁸³⁸

546. The Appeals Chamber notes that, in assessing his liability, the Trial Chamber stated that “Mladić’s conduct and superior position [were] encapsulated within the conduct relied upon to establish his participation in the four [joint criminal enterprises]”.¹⁸³⁹ The Trial Chamber did not enter convictions pursuant to superior responsibility under Article 7(3) of the ICTY Statute but indicated that it would consider Mladić’s superior position for the purposes of sentencing.¹⁸⁴⁰ The Appeals Chamber is of the view that this legal approach is consistent with settled jurisprudence.¹⁸⁴¹ In the sentencing portion of the Trial Judgement, the Trial Chamber considered that Mladić’s participation in all four joint criminal enterprises “was undertaken in his official capacity as Commander of the VRS Main Staff”, and that he held this position throughout the entire Indictment period.¹⁸⁴² The Trial Chamber then concluded that he therefore “abused his position” and found that “Mladić’s abuse of his superior position” added to the gravity of the offences.¹⁸⁴³

547. Contrary to Mladić’s contention, the Appeals Chamber finds no indication that the Trial Chamber aggravated his sentence with superior responsibility under Article 7(3) of the ICTY Statute.¹⁸⁴⁴ Rather, according to the Trial Chamber, it was the abuse of his position as Commander of the VRS Main Staff that aggravated the gravity of his offences.¹⁸⁴⁵ The Appeals Chamber notes the Trial Chamber’s conclusion that Mladić was “responsible for having committed a wide range of criminal acts through his participation in four [joint criminal enterprises]”,¹⁸⁴⁶ and that he did so while, inter alia: (i) commanding and controlling VRS units and other groups subordinated to the VRS; (ii) having knowledge of crimes committed by those under his command; (iii) placing severe restrictions on humanitarian aid; (iv) providing misleading information about crimes to representatives of the international community; and (v) failing to investigate crimes and/or punish perpetrators of the crimes.¹⁸⁴⁷ Given the totality of the Trial Chamber’s findings on Mladić’s responsibility, the Appeals Chamber finds no discernible error in the Trial Chamber’s conclusion that Mladić abused his position of authority and that this added to the gravity of the crimes. The Appeals Chamber notes that Mladić appears to also argue that the Trial Chamber “double count[ed]” his superior responsibility.¹⁸⁴⁸ Given that he provides no argument or other basis to support this submission, his contention in this regard is dismissed.

548. In light of the above, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to demonstrate any error in the Trial Chamber’s conclusion in determining his sentence that the abuse of his superior position added to the gravity of the offences. The Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, therefore dismisses Ground 9.A of Mladić’s appeal.

2. Mitigating Circumstances (Grounds 9.B and 9.C)

549. In determining Mladić's sentence, the Trial Chamber considered whether, inter alia, his benevolent treatment of and assistance to victims, diminished mental capacity, poor physical health, and advanced age amounted to mitigating circumstances.¹⁸⁴⁹ Owing to the gravity of the offences, the Trial Chamber did not consider his sporadic benevolent acts in mitigation.¹⁸⁵⁰ It also observed that the evidence the Defence relied on did not establish that Mladić suffered from diminished mental capacity.¹⁸⁵¹ The Trial Chamber also noted that Mladić suffered from certain health problems, but found that these were not such as to warrant mitigation, and further noted that his general condition was stable, concluding that it would not consider Mladić's health as a factor in mitigation.¹⁸⁵² Finally, the Trial Chamber stated that it gave due consideration to Mladić's age in sentencing.¹⁸⁵³

550. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in failing to give sufficient weight to the following mitigating circumstances: (i) his ill health combined with his age; (ii) his daughter's death; and (iii) his benevolent treatment of and assistance to victims.¹⁸⁵⁴ According to Mladić, the Trial Chamber, in noting that his general condition was stable, failed to give sufficient weight to the totality of the medical evidence and his medical history.¹⁸⁵⁵ In relation to his daughter's death, he argues that the Trial Chamber presented it under the heading of diminished mental capacity but did not give weight to this as part of his "family circumstances".¹⁸⁵⁶ As to evidence of his benevolent treatment of and assistance to victims, he challenges the Trial Chamber's conclusion that his benevolent acts were "sporadic".¹⁸⁵⁷ Mladić asks that the Appeals Chamber give these factors due weight and revise the sentence accordingly.¹⁸⁵⁸

551. The Prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber considered each of the mitigating factors Mladić presented at trial,¹⁸⁵⁹ and that he fails on appeal to show how the Trial Chamber abused its discretion by either not considering certain factors or by giving them insufficient weight.¹⁸⁶⁰ The Prosecution contends that the Trial Chamber expressly considered Mladić's age, health, and benevolent acts in mitigation.¹⁸⁶¹ The Prosecution further argues that Mladić only raised his daughter's death at trial in relation to his diminished mental capacity and not in relation to his family circumstances, and cannot raise this argument for the first time on appeal.¹⁸⁶² The Prosecution argues that, in any event, none of the factors relied on by Mladić, either individually or cumulatively, could outweigh the gravity of the crimes for which he has been convicted to justify a sentence below life imprisonment.¹⁸⁶³

552. Mladić replies that the Appeals Chamber should reject the Prosecution's submission that the mitigating factors are insufficient to reduce his life sentence.¹⁸⁶⁴

553. The Appeals Chamber recalls that a trial chamber is required to consider any mitigating circumstance when determining the appropriate sentence, and that it enjoys considerable discretion in determining what constitutes a mitigating circumstance and the weight, if any, to be accorded to the factors identified.¹⁸⁶⁵ Furthermore, the existence of mitigating factors does not automatically imply a reduction of sentence or preclude the imposition of a particular sentence.¹⁸⁶⁶

554. In relation to Mladić's health and age, the Appeals Chamber recalls that the age of the accused may be a mitigating factor¹⁸⁶⁷ and that poor health is accepted as a mitigating factor in exceptional cases only.¹⁸⁶⁸ The Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber expressly stated that it gave due consideration to Mladić's age in sentencing.¹⁸⁶⁹ The Trial Chamber further noted that Mladić suffered from certain health problems and that his general condition was stable.¹⁸⁷⁰ It decided not to consider his health as a factor in mitigation.¹⁸⁷¹ In assessing his health, the Trial Chamber referred to, inter alia, five medical reports, showing his general condition as stable.¹⁸⁷² Mladić has not identified any evidence that would support a conclusion that his health condition was exceptional and warranted consideration in mitigation. The Appeals Chamber therefore finds that Mladić does not demonstrate any error in the Trial Chamber's assessment of his age and health as mitigating circumstances.

555. The Appeals Chamber now turns to Mladić's submission that the Trial Chamber erred in failing to consider the death of his daughter as part of his "family circumstances".¹⁸⁷³ According to Article 24(2) of the ICTY Statute, the Trial Chamber was required to take into account "the individual circumstances of the convicted person" in the course of determining the sentence. The Appeals Chamber recalls that such circumstances could include family circumstances but that little weight is afforded to this factor in the absence of exceptional family circumstances.¹⁸⁷⁴ The Appeals Chamber notes that, at trial, Mladić did not rely upon the death of his daughter in relation to family circumstances as a mitigating factor, but rather pointed to his daughter's death only in relation to his "diminished mental responsibility",¹⁸⁷⁵ which the Trial Chamber explicitly considered.¹⁸⁷⁶ The Appeals Chamber recalls that it is an accused's prerogative to identify any mitigating circumstances before the trial chamber,¹⁸⁷⁷ and if he fails to specifically refer in his final brief or closing arguments to a mitigating circumstance, he cannot raise it for the first time on appeal.¹⁸⁷⁸ In light of this standard, the Appeals Chamber does not consider further Mladić's submission that the Trial Chamber failed to consider the death of his daughter as "evidence of his family circumstances".

556. Regarding Mladić's submission on his benevolent treatment of and assistance to victims, the Appeals Chamber recalls that an accused's assistance to victims or detainees can be considered in mitigation of his or her sentence.¹⁸⁷⁹ However, such acts must be weighed against the gravity of the offences.¹⁸⁸⁰ The Trial Chamber considered the Defence's submissions that Mladić took steps to minimize the number of victims and their suffering to the best of his ability through, inter alia, a demilitarization agreement, ordering troops to protect persons of Bosnian Serb and other nationalities alike, ordering a ceasefire to allow civilians to safely withdraw, insisting that patients not be discriminated against at a military hospital, assisting the daughter of a Bosnian Muslim, and providing kindness and sweets to children throughout the conflict.¹⁸⁸¹ In relation to the order that troops should protect Bosnian Serb and other nationalities, the Trial Chamber noted that "the order only concerned 'honest' members of other nationalities".¹⁸⁸² The Trial Chamber also noted that the ceasefire ordered for civilians to withdraw related to only the Jewish population in Sarajevo, and did not constitute benevolent treatment of or assistance to Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats.¹⁸⁸³ The Trial Chamber concluded that while some of the acts cited by Mladić may have shown "at best some kindness" towards individual Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, they did not affect the achievement of the common objective of the Overarching JCE.¹⁸⁸⁴ It considered that, bearing in mind the gravity of Mladić's crimes, the assistance he provided "was sporadic".¹⁸⁸⁵ Noting the central position Mladić held within the leadership of the VRS, the Trial Chamber was of the view that he "had the power to provide assistance to the victimized population on a large scale, had he wished to do so".¹⁸⁸⁶ The Trial Chamber recalled that "sporadic benevolent acts or ineffective assistance may be disregarded", and therefore did not consider this factor in mitigation of Mladić's sentence.¹⁸⁸⁷ The Appeals Chamber considers that in light of the gravity of the offences committed by Mladić and the noted sporadic nature of the benevolent treatment and assistance undertaken by Mladić, he does not demonstrate a discernible error in the Trial Chamber's assessment of his assistance as a mitigating circumstance.

557. The Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, therefore dismisses Grounds 9.B and 9.C of Mladić's appeal.

3. Sentencing Practices in the Courts of the Former Yugoslavia (Ground 9.D)

558. The Trial Chamber noted that it was required to consider the general practice regarding the prison sentences in the courts of the former Yugoslavia, but recalled that it was not "obliged to conform to that practice".¹⁸⁸⁸ The Trial Chamber considered the relevant sentencing provisions and practices of the former Yugoslavia during the Indictment period,¹⁸⁸⁹ and noted that the maximum term of imprisonment at the time was 15 years, but that for the most serious crimes the death penalty or a prison sentence of 20 years could have been imposed instead.¹⁸⁹⁰ The Trial Chamber further considered that the ICTY Appeals Chamber had previously upheld sentences of more than 20 years of imprisonment as not infringing the principle of nulla poena sine lege.¹⁸⁹¹

559. Mladić submits that the Trial Chamber erred in sentencing him to life imprisonment based on "oversights in the jurisprudence".¹⁸⁹² He argues that the jurisprudence of the ICTY has "overlooked the distinction" between Article 24 of the ICTY Statute and Rule 101(A) of the ICTY Rules.¹⁸⁹³ To support this argument, Mladić asserts that Article 24 of the ICTY Statute, adopted in 1993, "imported" into the ICTY the domestic sentencing practice of the former Yugoslavia, which had a maximum sentence of 20 years' imprisonment at the time the crimes were committed.¹⁸⁹⁴ He argues that the "subsequent adoption" of Rule 101(A) of the ICTY Rules in February 1994 "create[d] another penal law" within the same jurisdiction in contradistinction to Article 24 of the ICTY Statute, and "retroactively" established life imprisonment.¹⁸⁹⁵ He contends that life imprisonment was thus not accessible or foreseeable to an accused, including himself, at the ICTY.¹⁸⁹⁶ Relying on a judgement from the ECtHR,¹⁸⁹⁷ Mladić contends that the Trial Chamber's imposition of a life sentence according to Rule 101(A) of the ICTY Rules therefore breached the principles of nulla poena sine lege and lex mitior.¹⁸⁹⁸ Mladić requests that the

Appeals Chamber articulate the correct legal standard, review the factual findings of the Trial Chamber, reverse the life sentence imposed by the Trial Chamber, and impose a sentence of 20 years' imprisonment.¹⁸⁹⁹

560. The Prosecution responds, inter alia, that pursuant to Article 24 of the ICTY Statute, the Trial Chamber was not bound by the sentencing practices of the former Yugoslavia but need only have "recourse" to them, and that in such circumstances the Trial Chamber's imposition of life imprisonment did not violate the principles of nulla poena sine lege and lex mitior.¹⁹⁰⁰ It also argues that the Maktouf and Damjanović Judgement can be distinguished from the present case, as it related to changes in sentencing laws within the same jurisdiction, whereas Mladić was sentenced "under a unified penal scheme with a maximum sentence that was solidly rooted in customary international law in 1992".¹⁹⁰¹

561. Mladić replies, inter alia, that the Prosecution misunderstands his submissions regarding the legality of imposing a life sentence, and fails to address his argument that the maximum sentence of imprisonment available in the former Yugoslavia was 20 years' imprisonment.¹⁹⁰²

562. The Appeals Chamber recalls that, pursuant to Article 24(1) of the ICTY Statute, trial chambers "shall have recourse to the general practice regarding prison sentences in the courts of the former Yugoslavia".¹⁹⁰³ Furthermore, according to Rule 101(A) of the ICTY Rules, a "convicted person may be sentenced to imprisonment for a term up to and including the remainder of the convicted person's life".¹⁹⁰⁴ The Appeals Chamber also recalls that the principle of nulla poena sine lege prohibits retroactive punishment.¹⁹⁰⁵ The principle of lex mitior prescribes that if the law relevant to the offence of the accused has been amended, the less severe law should be applied;¹⁹⁰⁶ however, the relevant law must be binding upon the court.¹⁹⁰⁷

563. The Appeals Chamber considers that Mladić's submission regarding "oversights in the jurisprudence" is based on the erroneous foundation that, having "recourse" to the sentencing practices of the former Yugoslavia meant that Article 24 of the ICTY Statute "incorporated" or "import[ed]" domestic sentencing practices into international law and the sentencing practice of the ICTY.¹⁹⁰⁸ It is settled jurisprudence that the ICTY was not in any way bound by the laws or sentencing practices of the former Yugoslavia; rather, trial chambers were only obliged to take such practice into consideration.¹⁹⁰⁹

564. There is also no merit in Mladić's submissions that the introduction of Rule 101(A) of the ICTY Rules created another sentencing regime within the jurisdiction of the ICTY and "retroactively" provided for life imprisonment,¹⁹¹⁰ or that life imprisonment was not "accessible or foreseeable" to accused, including himself, at the ICTY.¹⁹¹¹ His contention that Rule 101(A) of the ICTY Rules, which was adopted subsequent to the ICTY Statute, established a different sentencing regime is misguided. The Appeals Chamber recalls that judicial power to adopt rules of procedure and evidence at the ICTY was subject to the principles and parameters set out in the ICTY Statute and international law.¹⁹¹² Given that Article 24 of the ICTY Statute does not adopt or incorporate the sentencing practices of the former Yugoslavia into the ICTY's sentencing practices, Mladić fails to establish that the creation of Rule 101(A) of the ICTY Rules deviates from the principle set out in the ICTY Statute.¹⁹¹³ Regarding the foreseeability of life imprisonment, Mladić ignores jurisprudence that the imposition of life imprisonment has been available for the most serious violations of international humanitarian law since at least the tribunals established after World War II.¹⁹¹⁴ Additionally, the Appeals Chamber finds no merit in Mladić's submission that the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Čelebići case conflated issues of liability (nullem crimen sine lege) and punishment (nulla poena sine lege).¹⁹¹⁵ The ICTY Appeals Chamber specifically considered the question of penalty independent of liability, concluding that there could be no doubt that the accused must have been aware that the crimes for which they were indicted were the most serious violations of international humanitarian law, punishable by the most severe penalties.¹⁹¹⁶ Furthermore, since the establishment of the ICTY, convicted persons before it have received sentences of life imprisonment pursuant to the ICTY Statute and Rules.¹⁹¹⁷ Most recently, the Appeals Chamber imposed a sentence of life imprisonment in the Karadžić case before the Mechanism.¹⁹¹⁸ The Appeals Chamber thus finds that Rule 101(A) of the ICTY Rules did not create another sentencing regime inconsistent with Article 24(1) of the ICTY Statute,¹⁹¹⁹ and Mladić fails to demonstrate that life imprisonment was not an accessible or foreseeable punishment.

565. In light of the foregoing, and recalling that determinations of other courts – domestic, international, or hybrid – are not binding upon it,¹⁹²⁰ the Appeals Chamber further considers that Mladić’s reliance on the Maktouf and Damjanović Judgement is misguided. The ECtHR in the Maktouf and Damjanović Judgement held, inter alia, that a retrospective change to the domestic sentencing frameworks of the former Yugoslavia in relation to war crime offences violated Article 7 of the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms.¹⁹²¹ As discussed above, given that there was no change in the ICTY’s sentencing regime, such analysis is not applicable to the ICTY.

566. Turning to the circumstances in this case, the Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber set out the applicable ICTY law and reviewed the pertinent sentencing provisions in the former Yugoslavia, noting that the range of penalties included fines, confiscation of property, imprisonment, and the death penalty.¹⁹²² The Trial Chamber considered, inter alia, that, at the time of the crimes, the maximum sentence applicable in the former Yugoslavia had been 15 years of imprisonment and that, for the most serious crimes, the death penalty or a prison sentence of 20 years could be imposed in lieu.¹⁹²³ Given the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber considers that the Trial Chamber properly took into account the general sentencing practice in the former Yugoslavia, and correctly stated that sentences imposed by the ICTY can exceed those in the former Yugoslavia.¹⁹²⁴ Mladić’s submissions that the principles of nulla poena sine lege and lex mitior were violated are thus without merit.

567. In light of the above, the Appeals Chamber finds, Judge Nyambe dissenting, that Mladić fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in imposing a life sentence. The Appeals Chamber, Judge Nyambe dissenting, therefore dismisses Ground 9.D of Mladić’s appeal.

IV. THE APPEAL OF THE PROSECUTION

568. Under Count 1 of the Indictment, the Prosecution alleged that, between 31 March 1992 and 31 December 1992, Mladić committed in concert with others, planned, instigated, ordered, and/or aided and abetted genocide against a part of the Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat groups, as such, in some municipalities of Bosnia and Herzegovina, particularly Foča, Ključ, Kotor Varoš, Prijedor, Sanski Most, and Vlasenica.¹⁹²⁵

569. The Trial Chamber found that a large number of Bosnian Muslims and/or Bosnian Croats in Foča, Ključ, Kotor Varoš, Prijedor, Sanski Most, and Vlasenica were the victims of prohibited acts, such as killings or serious bodily or mental harm, which contributed to the destruction of their groups.¹⁹²⁶ The Trial Chamber further found, by majority, that certain physical perpetrators of these prohibited acts had the intent to destroy a part of the Bosnian Muslim group when carrying out the prohibited acts, except in relation to Bosnian Muslims in Ključ.¹⁹²⁷ The Trial Chamber was not, however, convinced beyond reasonable doubt that those perpetrators intended to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Sanski Most, Foča, Kotor Varoš, Prijedor, and Vlasenica (“Count 1 Municipalities”) “as a substantial part of the protected group”.¹⁹²⁸ The Trial Chamber was also not convinced beyond reasonable doubt that the Bosnian Serb leadership possessed genocidal intent or that the crime of genocide formed part of the objective of the Overarching JCE.¹⁹²⁹ The Trial Chamber accordingly acquitted Mladić of genocide under Count 1 of the Indictment.¹⁹³⁰

570. The Prosecution submits that the Trial Chamber erred in finding that: (i) the Bosnian Muslim communities of the Count 1 Municipalities (“Count 1 Communities”) did not each constitute a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim group in Bosnia and Herzegovina (Ground 1),¹⁹³¹ and (ii) Mladić and other members of the Overarching JCE did not possess “destructive intent” (Ground 2).¹⁹³² The Prosecution requests that the Appeals Chamber correct these errors and convict Mladić of genocide under Count 1 of the Indictment pursuant to the first, or alternatively the third, category of joint criminal enterprise, or alternatively, as a superior under Article 7(3) of the ICTY Statute.¹⁹³³

571. Mladić responds that the Prosecution demonstrates no error in the Trial Chamber’s findings and invites the Appeals Chamber to dismiss Grounds 1 and 2 of the Prosecution’s appeal.¹⁹³⁴

A. ALLEGED ERRORS IN FINDING THAT THE COUNT 1 COMMUNITIES DID NOT CONSTITUTE A SUBSTANTIAL PART OF THE PROTECTED GROUP (GROUND 1)

572. In concluding that it could not find that the physical perpetrators intended to destroy each of the Count 1 Communities “as a substantial part of the protected group”,¹⁹³⁵ the Trial Chamber found that: (i) the physical perpetrators had limited geographical control or authority to carry out activities;¹⁹³⁶ (ii) the Bosnian Muslims targeted in each of the Count 1 Municipalities formed a relatively small part of the Bosnian Muslim population in the Bosnian Serb-claimed territory or in Bosnia and Herzegovina as a whole;¹⁹³⁷ and (iii) there was insufficient evidence indicating why the Count 1 Communities or the Count 1 Municipalities had a special significance or were emblematic in relation to the Bosnian Muslim group as a whole.¹⁹³⁸

573. The Prosecution submits that the Trial Chamber erroneously concluded that the Count 1 Communities did not each constitute a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim group.¹⁹³⁹ Drawing parallels with findings in relation to the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica,¹⁹⁴⁰ the Prosecution argues that each of the Count 1 Communities was substantial not only in size, consisting of many thousands of Bosnian Muslims,¹⁹⁴¹ but also in nature, with a unique historic and cultural identity that made them prominent and emblematic of the Bosnian Muslim group as a whole.¹⁹⁴² The Prosecution also argues that the Count 1 Municipalities held immense strategic importance for the Bosnian Serb leadership¹⁹⁴³ and that the territories of the Count 1 Municipalities represented the full extent of the perpetrators’ respective areas of activity and control.¹⁹⁴⁴ The Prosecution contends that, in light of these factors, no reasonable trier of fact could have failed to conclude that the destruction of the Count 1 Communities would in each case have been significant enough to have an impact on the Bosnian Muslim group as a whole.¹⁹⁴⁵

574. Mladić responds that the Prosecution repeats arguments made at trial and fails to demonstrate that the evidence was so unambiguous that a reasonable trial chamber was obliged to infer that each of the Count 1 Communities constituted a substantial part of the overall Bosnian Muslim group.¹⁹⁴⁶ He contends that the Trial Chamber correctly concluded that the numerical size of the targeted part of the Bosnian Muslim group, when considered with the physical perpetrators’ control in each of the Count 1 Municipalities, was not substantial.¹⁹⁴⁷ He further argues that the Prosecution’s claims that the Count 1 Municipalities held immense strategic importance for the Bosnian Serb leadership and that the Count 1 Communities had a unique historic and cultural identity to evidence their prominence and emblematic nature, including through the eyes of the Bosnian Muslim group as a whole, are unsubstantiated.¹⁹⁴⁸ Mladić also submits that none of the Count 1 Communities is comparable to Srebrenica in size¹⁹⁴⁹ or in qualitative importance.¹⁹⁵⁰

575. The Prosecution replies that Mladić misconstrues the Trial Chamber’s findings on the numeric size of the targeted parts in that his arguments are premised on the misconception that the parts of the Bosnian Muslim group targeted for destruction comprised subsets of the Bosnian Muslim population within each of the Count 1 Municipalities.¹⁹⁵¹ The Prosecution also argues that Mladić’s arguments on the prominent and emblematic nature of the Count 1 Communities are permeated by a false theory that this factor must be assessed solely “through the eyes” of the protected group, and that his remaining arguments mischaracterize the Prosecution’s submissions.¹⁹⁵²

576. The Appeals Chamber recalls that, where a conviction for genocide relies on the intent to destroy a protected group “in part”, the targeted part must be a substantial part of that group.¹⁹⁵³ The ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Krstić case identified the following non-exhaustive and non-dispositive guidelines that may be considered when determining whether the part of the group targeted is substantial enough to meet this requirement: (i) the numeric size of the targeted part as the necessary starting point, evaluated not only in absolute terms, but also in relation to the overall size of the entire group; (ii) the targeted part’s prominence within the group; (iii) whether the targeted part is emblematic of the overall group or essential to its survival; and/or (iv) the perpetrators’ areas of activity and control, as well as the possible extent of their reach.¹⁹⁵⁴ The applicability of these factors, together with their relative weight, will vary depending on the circumstances of the particular case.¹⁹⁵⁵

577. In relation to the numeric size of the targeted part, the Trial Chamber noted that the population of Bosnia and Herzegovina in 1991 was approximately 4.4 million people, 43.7 per cent of whom were Bosnian Muslims.¹⁹⁵⁶ The Prosecution argues that the Count 1 Communities, which the Trial Chamber noted ranged from 11,090 people in Kotor Varoš to 49,700 people in Prijedor,¹⁹⁵⁷ were sufficiently sizeable to satisfy the substantiality requirement.¹⁹⁵⁸

Considering, however, that the Count 1 Communities effectively comprised between approximately 0.6 and 2.6 per cent of the overall Bosnian Muslim group in Bosnia and Herzegovina,¹⁹⁵⁹ the Appeals Chamber finds that the Prosecution does not demonstrate error in the Trial Chamber's conclusion that the Count 1 Communities each formed "a relatively small part" of the group.¹⁹⁶⁰

578. The Appeals Chamber recalls that, because the intent to destroy formed by perpetrators of genocide will always be limited by the opportunity presented to them, the perpetrators' areas of activity and control, as well as the possible extent of their reach, should be considered when determining whether the part of the protected group they intended to destroy was substantial.¹⁹⁶¹ In this respect, the Trial Chamber determined that, from the perspective of the physical perpetrators, the Count 1 Communities were the only parts of the Bosnian Muslim group within their respective areas of control, and that the perpetrators' authority did not extend beyond each of the Count 1 Municipalities in which they committed prohibited acts.¹⁹⁶² The Appeals Chamber considers that these conclusions, when viewed in the light of the Trial Chamber's finding that the perpetrators intended to destroy the Count 1 Communities,¹⁹⁶³ evince that the perpetrators targeted as substantial a part of the overall Bosnian Muslim group for destruction as they could. While this factor alone will not indicate whether the targeted group is substantial, it can – in combination with other factors – inform the analysis.¹⁹⁶⁴ The Trial Chamber in the present case considered this factor, among others, in its analysis concluding that the physical perpetrators did not have the intent to destroy the Count 1 Communities as a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim group.¹⁹⁶⁵

579. The Trial Chamber also considered that it had "received insufficient evidence indicating why [. . .] [each of the Count 1 Communities or the Count 1 Municipalities] themselves had a special significance or were emblematic in relation to the protected group as a whole".¹⁹⁶⁶ However, the Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber identified several factors which reflected the strategic and/or symbolic importance of the Count 1 Municipalities to Bosnian Serbs and/or Bosnian Muslims.¹⁹⁶⁷ The Appeals Chamber further notes that such factors were considered to support findings that the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica constituted a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim group, not only in previous cases,¹⁹⁶⁸ but also by the Trial Chamber in the present case.¹⁹⁶⁹ The core of the Prosecution's argument is that the similarities in the Trial Chamber's predicate findings about the importance of the Count 1 Communities and the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica underscore the unreasonableness of its contradictory conclusions about their substantiality.¹⁹⁷⁰ The Prosecution contends that the Trial Chamber was therefore obliged to infer that the destruction of the Count 1 Communities, like that of the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica, would in each case have been significant enough "to have an impact on the Bosnian Muslim [g]roup as a whole".¹⁹⁷¹

580. The Appeals Chamber recalls that it is not just any impact on a protected group that supports a finding of genocidal intent; rather, it is the impact that the destruction of the targeted part will have on the overall survival of that group which indicates whether there is intent to destroy a substantial part thereof.¹⁹⁷² In this respect, the Appeals Chamber notes that, in upholding the conclusion that the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica constituted a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim group, the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Krstić case considered, inter alia, that: (i) "[t]he capture and ethnic purification of Srebrenica would [. . .] severely undermine the military efforts of the Bosnian Muslim state to ensure its viability";¹⁹⁷³ (ii) "[c]ontrol over the Srebrenica region was consequently essential to [. . .] the continued survival of the Bosnian Muslim people";¹⁹⁷⁴ (iii) [b]ecause most of the Muslim inhabitants of the region had, by 1995, sought refuge within the Srebrenica enclave, the elimination of that enclave would have accomplished the goal of purifying the entire region of its Muslim population";¹⁹⁷⁵ and (iv) "[t]he elimination of the Muslim population of Srebrenica, despite the assurances given by the international community, would serve as a potent example to all Bosnian Muslims of their vulnerability and defenselessness in the face of Serb military forces".¹⁹⁷⁶ In reaching the same conclusion, the Trial Chamber in the present case similarly considered such factors as, inter alia: (i) Srebrenica having become a refuge to Bosnian Muslims in the region;¹⁹⁷⁷ (ii) the symbolic impact of the murder of Bosnian Muslims in a designated UN safe area;¹⁹⁷⁸ and (iii) Srebrenica being one of the few remaining predominantly Bosnian Muslim populated territories in the area claimed as Republika Srpska.¹⁹⁷⁹

581. With respect to the Count 1 Communities, however, neither the Trial Chamber's findings nor the evidence referred to by the Prosecution reflects a similar threat to the viability or survival of the Bosnian Muslim group. In addition, the Appeals Chamber notes that the events in the Count 1 Municipalities occurred in 1992, closer to the outset of the war.¹⁹⁸⁰ By contrast, the events in Srebrenica took place three years later in July 1995, by which time tens of thousands of Bosnian Muslims seeking refuge, many of whom were “injured [. . .] exhausted, lethargic, and frightened”,¹⁹⁸¹ and only “five percent of whom were able-bodied men”,¹⁹⁸² had gathered in Srebrenica in dire living conditions.¹⁹⁸³ Thus, although the destruction directed against each of the Count 1 Communities may have “represented powerful, early steps in the Bosnian Serb campaign towards an ethnically homogeneous state”,¹⁹⁸⁴ it was open to the Trial Chamber to infer that such destruction was not significant enough to have an impact on the overall survival of the Bosnian Muslim group at the relevant time.

582. In light of the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber finds that the Prosecution fails to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber erred in concluding that the Count 1 Communities did not each constitute a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim group in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

583. The Appeals Chamber, Judges N’gum and Panton dissenting, therefore dismisses Ground 1 of the Prosecution’s appeal.

B. ALLEGED ERRORS IN FINDING THAT MLADIĆ AND OTHER OVERARCHING JCE MEMBERS DID NOT POSSESS “DESTRUCTIVE INTENT” (GROUND 2)

584. In determining that the crime of genocide did not form part of the objective of the Overarching JCE,¹⁹⁸⁵ the Trial Chamber recalled its finding that the physical perpetrators in the Count 1 Municipalities did not have the intent to destroy a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim group.¹⁹⁸⁶ The Trial Chamber considered that, while the speeches and statements of Mladić and other Overarching JCE members were inflammatory, caused fear, and incited hatred, they “could have been directed to the military enemy and have been used as propaganda, rather than to demonstrate an expression of a genocidal intent.”¹⁹⁸⁷ The Trial Chamber also considered that “frequent references to ‘ethnic cleansing’ and other similar expressions [. . .] do not necessarily indicate intent to physically destroy the protected group”,¹⁹⁸⁸ and that “[t]he rhetorical speeches and statements assisted in the task of ethnic separation and division rather than the physical destruction of the protected groups.”¹⁹⁸⁹

585. In addition, the Trial Chamber recalled the majority’s finding that certain physical perpetrators had the intent to destroy a part of the Bosnian Muslim group, but considered that “[a]n inference that the Bosnian-Serb leadership sought to destroy the protected groups in the Count 1 [M]unicipalities through the use of a number of physical perpetrators as tools requires more.”¹⁹⁹⁰ The Trial Chamber concluded that, “[i]n the absence of other evidence which would unambiguously support a finding of genocidal intent, drawing an inference on the basis of prohibited acts of physical perpetrators alone is insufficient.”¹⁹⁹¹

586. The Prosecution submits that the Trial Chamber erred in concluding that genocide did not form part of the common purpose of the Overarching JCE by failing to infer the “destructive intent” of Mladić and other Overarching JCE members, and by applying a heightened evidentiary threshold in its assessment thereof.¹⁹⁹² It contends that no reasonable trier of fact could have found, on the one hand, that the local perpetrators in the Count 1 Municipalities intended to destroy a part of the Bosnian Muslim group, while, on the other hand, that Mladić and other Overarching JCE members, who orchestrated and controlled the overall criminal campaign, and exercised greater authority than any of the local perpetrators they used as tools, did not.¹⁹⁹³ The Prosecution further contends that Mladić and other Overarching JCE members made public statements reflecting an intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslim group, and that the Trial Chamber unreasonably concluded that such statements were aimed only at ethnic separation and division.¹⁹⁹⁴ The Prosecution argues that, in contrast to local perpetrators found to have “destructive intent” in their respective municipalities, Mladić and other Overarching JCE members intended to destroy all five Count 1 Communities, which cumulatively formed a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim group.¹⁹⁹⁵ It requests that the Appeals Chamber find that Mladić and other Overarching JCE members possessed and shared genocidal intent in relation to the Count 1 Communities, conclude that genocide formed part of the Overarching JCE’s common purpose, and convict Mladić of genocide under Count 1 of the Indictment pursuant to the first category of joint criminal enterprise.¹⁹⁹⁶

587. Mladić responds that the Trial Chamber applied the correct evidentiary standard to conclude that it could not be satisfied that the only reasonable conclusion that could be drawn from the evidence was that he and other Overarching JCE members possessed the requisite intent and that genocide formed part of the common plan.¹⁹⁹⁷ He submits that the Prosecution fails to demonstrate that the evidence of his and other Overarching JCE members’ intent is such that a reasonable trier of fact was obliged to infer that all reasonable doubt of their guilt had been eliminated, thereby failing to meet the appellate standard.¹⁹⁹⁸ Mladić accordingly requests that the Appeals Chamber dismiss the Prosecution’s appeal and requested remedies entirely.¹⁹⁹⁹

588. As recalled above, where a conviction for genocide relies on the intent to destroy a protected group “in part”, the targeted part must be a substantial part of that group.²⁰⁰⁰ As such, the Prosecution’s contention that the Trial Chamber was compelled to find that Mladić intended to destroy the Count 1 Communities has no potential to invalidate its decision to acquit him of genocide unless the Prosecution demonstrates that the Trial Chamber was also compelled to find that the Count 1 Communities formed a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim group. In this respect, the Prosecution submits that, when aggregating the Count 1 Communities, “the correspondingly larger numerical part of the Bosnian Muslim [g]roup unquestionably comprised a substantial part [thereof]”,²⁰⁰¹ and reiterates that the key consideration in assessing substantiality is whether the part is significant enough “to have an impact on the group as a whole”.²⁰⁰²

589. The Appeals Chamber recalls, however, that a substantiality assessment considers the impact that the destruction of the targeted part will have on the overall survival of that group.²⁰⁰³ Noting that the Count 1 Communities collectively comprised approximately 6.7 per cent of the Bosnian Muslim group,²⁰⁰⁴ the Appeals Chamber considers that a reasonable trier of fact could reasonably have concluded that the Count 1 Communities, individually as well as cumulatively, formed “a relatively small part” thereof.²⁰⁰⁵ The Appeals Chamber therefore concludes that a reasonable trier of fact could also have found that the destruction of the Count 1 Communities, individually as well as cumulatively, was not sufficiently substantial to have an impact on the group’s overall survival at the relevant time.²⁰⁰⁶

590. Recalling that the Appeals Chamber will only review alleged errors that have the potential to affect the outcome of an appeal,²⁰⁰⁷ the Appeals Chamber need not address the Prosecution’s remaining arguments and remedial requests in relation to the Trial Chamber’s alleged failure to infer Mladić’s “destructive intent” and convict him of genocide under Count 1 of the Indictment.

591. Based on the foregoing, the Appeals Chamber, Judges N’gum and Panton dissenting, dismisses Ground 2 of the Prosecution’s appeal.

V. DISPOSITION

592. For the foregoing reasons, THE APPEALS CHAMBER,

PURSUANT to Article 23 of the Statute and Rule 144 of the Rules;

NOTING the written submissions of the parties and their oral arguments presented at the appeal hearing on 25 and 26 August 2020;

SITTING in open session;

DISMISSES Mladić’s appeal in its entirety, Judge Nyambe dissenting as to Grounds 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, and 9 of Mladić’s appeal;

DISMISSES, Judges N’gum and Panton dissenting, the Prosecution’s appeal in its entirety;

AFFIRMS, Judges N’gum and Panton dissenting, the disposition of the Trial Chamber finding Mladić not guilty of genocide under Count 1 of the Indictment;

AFFIRMS the disposition of the Trial Chamber finding Mladić guilty of taking of hostages as a violation of the laws or customs of war under Count 11 of the Indictment, pursuant to Article 7(1) of the ICTY Statute, and FURTHER AFFIRMS, Judge Nyambe dissenting, the disposition of the Trial Chamber finding Mladić guilty of genocide under Count 2 of the Indictment, persecution as a crime against humanity under Count 3 of the Indictment, extermination as a crime against humanity under Count 4 of the Indictment, murder as a crime against humanity under Count 5 of the Indictment, murder as a violation of the laws or customs of war under Count 6 of the Indictment, deportation as a crime against humanity under Count 7 of the Indictment, inhumane acts (forcible transfer) as a crime against humanity under Count 8 of the Indictment, terror as a violation of the laws or customs of war under Count 9 of the Indictment, and unlawful attacks on civilians as a violation of the laws or customs of war under Count 10 of the Indictment, pursuant to Article 7(1) of the ICTY Statute;

AFFIRMS, Judge Nyambe dissenting, the sentence of life imprisonment imposed on Mladić by the Trial Chamber;

RULES that this Judgement shall be enforced immediately pursuant to Rule 145(A) of the Rules; and ORDERS that, in accordance with Rules 127(C) and 131 of the Rules, Mladić shall remain in the custody of the Mechanism pending the finalization of the arrangements for his transfer to the State where he will serve his sentence.

The Trial Chamber considered that, according to Witness RM-802’s evidence, of the 120,000 non-Serbs who walked past a VRS command post, “some were physically forced to leave”, “others

- registered to leave because conditions were unbearable for them to stay”, “some were forcibly removed from their houses”, and others “were pressured into leaving by hearing only Serb songs on the radio, having only Serb stamps on documents, and managers being dismissed and sent to do cleaning jobs”. The Appeals Chamber notes that paragraph 17 of Exhibit D770 concerns the role of the Serb Democratic Party during the war rather than assistance to refugees.

The Appeals Chamber considers that Mladić’s selective use of Exhibit P439 ignores aspects substantiating the Trial Chamber’s finding that non-Serb civilians in Kotor Varoš Municipality were expelled by Serb forces. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 200, n. 289, referring to Exhibit P439 (under seal), para. 64. As noted above, Exhibit P439, Witness RM-802’s statement, provided that non-Serbs were physically forced or felt pressured to leave due to the unbearable conditions. - 483 A review of the relevant portions of Exhibit D770 reveals, inter alia, that: (i) in May 1992, due to growing insecurity in Rogatica Municipality and shooting in the streets, both Serbs and Muslims left town and moved into suburbs and further away; and (ii) Serb municipal authorities organized the transport of Serb families to Serbia to keep them safe, received Serb refugees arriving from other areas, and accommodated the refugees in abandoned Muslim and Serb homes in a controlled and organized manner. - 487 The Trial Chamber ultimately found, based on the evidence of Witness RM-104, that one Bosnian Muslim family left Ilidža Municipality to Sarajevo after a member of the “White Eagles” threatened the family members’ lives if they were to refuse to comply with the ultimatum to leave the municipality or to take up arms and become loyal to the Serb authorities. The Trial Chamber found that this one incident in Ilidža Municipality constituted forcible transfer as charged in Count 8 of the Indictment. See Trial Judgement, paras. 747–749, 3122(d), 3144, 3183.

- 493 The Trial Chamber noted that, according to Witness Pašić: (i) six Bosnian Muslim families remained in Hrvaćani when his family fled in mid-1992; (ii) after leaving Hrvaćani, the witness and his family, along with 50 to 70 people, mainly civilians, returned to Hrvaćani en route to another location and encountered Serb soldiers who called them “balijas”, and who told the group that there was nothing left for them in Hrvaćani and that they should go to Turkey; and (iii) in their passage through Hrvaćani, “the village was destroyed, houses had been stripped, animals killed, and the elderly who had remained were either shot or burnt”. Observing that the relationship between paramilitary formations and the VRS or the MUP differed from group to group, the Trial Chamber found that some operated outside the command of the VRS while others cooperated and coordinated with the VRS while committing crimes in municipalities such as Prijedor, Sanski Most, and Trnovo. See Trial Judgement, para. 4419. The Trial Chamber nevertheless found that, since it did not receive evidence indicating that Mladić directed, monitored, or authorized the VRS’s cooperation and coordination with paramilitary formations, it did not consider this allegation further. See Trial Judgement, para. 4419.

With respect to Exhibit P356, a review of the excerpt to which Mladić refers shows no relevance to the alleged protection he intended to provide to non-Serbs. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 202, n. 294, referring to, inter alia, Exhibit P356, p. 218. The Appeals Chamber, in any event, observes that page 219 of Exhibit P356 contains language to the effect of “[p]rotection in the population/especially in the towns”. However, without further submissions from Mladić in relation to this statement, it is unclear how this could demonstrate an error in the Trial Judgement. Given the vague references and obvious deficiencies in Mladić’s submissions in this regard, the Appeals Chamber dismisses any contention of error on this basis without further consideration.

- 643 The Appeals Chamber observes that, in any event, Mladić refers to the testimonies of Witnesses Reynaud Theunens, Velimir Kevac, and Mitar Kovač, as well as Exhibit P5248, which he asserts prove that coordinated action of MUP forces with the VRS did not involve re-subordination and that command and control remained with the MUP. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 221, nn. 325, 327, referring to T. 10 December 2013 pp. 20615–20617, T. 23 January 2015 pp. 30537–30545, T. 25 November 2015 p. 41921 (private session), Exhibit P5248, p. 2. A review of Witness Theunens’s evidence reveals that it concerns the witness being questioned on re-subordination and coordinated action on a theoretical level, without drawing any connection to events on the ground. See T. 10 December 2013 pp. 20615–20617. As to Witness Kevac’s testimony, the Trial Chamber considered it at paragraph 3796 of the Trial Judgement and this evidence contains a statement from the witness that, in a coordinated action between the army and the police, an army unit does not necessarily have command authority over a police unit. See T. 23 January 2015 pp. 30544, 30545. See also Trial Judgement, paras. 3785, 3796. FREDACTED^g See T. 25 November 2015 p. 41921 (private session). The Appeals Chamber is of the view that these statements do not point to specific instances on the ground and do not contradict the Trial Chamber’s finding that, at times, the VRS and the MUP acted in coordination, while at other times, the MUP was subordinated to the VRS. See Trial Judgement, paras. 3819, 4227, 4239, 4610. The Appeals Chamber is also of the view that this evidence has no bearing on findings concerning Manjača camp or orders made on 3 August 1992 to the Prijedor CSB. Finally, Exhibit P5248 concerns a VRS Main Staff

- report containing no information relevant to the issues at hand. Mladić's contention that the Trial Chamber conflated coordination and subordination with respect to the MUP is discussed below in the section addressing Ground 5.B of his appeal. See infra Section III.D.2(b).

- 724 The Appeals Chamber recalls that arguments which do not have the potential to cause the impugned decision to be reversed or revised may be immediately dismissed and need not be considered on the merits. See supra para. 20. See also, e.g., Karadžić Appeal Judgement, para. 19; Šešelj Appeal Judgement, para. 17; Ngirabatware Appeal Judgement, para. 11. Mladić also refers to exhibits to support his claim that reports he received from Manjača camp did not provide any information about the commission of crimes by the VRS. Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 246, n. 364, referring to Exhibits P92, P215 (under seal), P218 (under seal), P219 (under seal), P220 (under seal), P221 (under seal), P222 (under seal), P225 (under seal), P226 (under seal), P227 (under seal), P228, P229 (under seal), P231 (under seal), P233 (under seal), P234 (under seal), P235 (under seal), P237 (under seal), P241 (under seal), D1536, D1827, D2030, D2071. A review of these exhibits reveals that, contrary to Mladić's contention, they explicitly indicate that crimes were committed at or during the prisoners' transportation to Manjača camp. See Exhibits P220 (under seal), p. 1 (during transportation from Sanski Most, prisoners of war were "not being treated in line with the Geneva [C]onventions: they [were] maltreated, beaten, and humiliated to the extreme", and 24 prisoners died due to thirst and lack of oxygen) (see also Exhibit P227, p. 1 (under seal)), P222 (under seal), pp. 1, 2 (prisoners were beaten, kicked, maltreated, and killed by military police; "Military Police in 'Manjača' camp [...] think they can do whatever they want with the prisoners"), P229 (under seal), pp. 1, 2 ("two prisoners who are in isolation today [...] have been beaten and [...] there is a fresh human blood on the walls of the cell"; "military policemen, together with the Security commander, Staff Sergeant MESAR, just don't understand that prisoners are humans and that they are protected by international regulations while in the camp"; the team leader of the ICRC stated that "they established infliction of multiple injuries to the prisoners created by beating (bruises)"; "it is a fact that the soldiers–policemen are sometimes taking [o]ut prisoners whom they 'don't like' or who they 'like less' by their own will and that they beat them as they please"), P233 (under seal), p. 1 ("eight prisoners died during transportation from 'Omarska' to 'Manjača', three of which have most probably been killed because they bore visible traces of violence"; "behaviour of people who participated in securing transportation of the prisoners Fwašg very incorrect, inhuman and bullying").

- 763 Mladić further submits that he ordered the improvement of conditions in Manjača camp. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 253, referring to, inter alia, Exhibit P2881, p. 1. The Appeals Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber expressly referred to Exhibit P2881, an order from Mladić dated 12 August 1992, and summarized Mladić's orders to improve conditions in the camp. See Trial Judgement, para. 395. In the Appeals Chamber's view, not only does Mladić fail to demonstrate that the Trial Chamber failed to give sufficient weight to this evidence, he also ignores findings in the Trial Judgement that the VRS First Krajina Corps, the VRS Main Staff, and the Bosnian Serb leadership made efforts to conceal the unlawful detention and cruel and inhumane treatment of detainees at Manjača camp. See, e.g., Trial Judgement, paras. 3989–4018. The Appeals Chamber further observes that Mladić's orders, issued on 12 August 1992, came after killings had occurred at the camp and after intense international scrutiny. See, e.g., Trial Judgement, paras. 3994, 3996–4000. In any event, Mladić's claim that he ordered the improvement of conditions at the camp does not relate to investigations or prosecutions and, as such, does not support his contention that the Trial Chamber gave insufficient weight to evidence that he or his subordinates ordered investigation and prosecution of crimes committed by the VRS.

- 817 Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 261, n. 392, referring to, inter alia, Mladić Final Trial Brief, paras. 732, 733. Mladić also refers to Exhibit P360. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 261, n. 392, referring to, inter alia, Exhibit P360, p. 296. The Appeals Chamber notes, however, that the page number indicated in the appellant's brief, page 296, does not exist in Exhibit P360. The Appeals Chamber further notes that Mladić relies on the Bemba Appeal Judgement as well as the Popović et al. Appeal Judgement to support his submission. See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 261, 263. With regard to his reliance on the Bemba Appeal Judgement, the Appeals Chamber recalls that it is not bound by jurisprudence from other courts. See, e.g., Karadžić Appeal Judgement, para. 434; Stanišić and Župljanin Appeal Judgement, para. 598; Popović et al. Appeal Judgement, para. 1674; Đorđević Appeal Judgement, para. 83. Furthermore, Mladić's references to the Bemba Appeal Judgement do not support his argument as that case concerned different factual circumstances – namely, the Appeals Chamber of the ICC found that the Trial Chamber of the ICC had failed to properly appreciate, inter alia, that the accused faced limitations in investigating and prosecuting crimes as a “remote commander sending troops to a foreign country”. See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 261–263, nn. 392, 399, 400, referring to, inter alia, Bemba Appeal Judgement, paras. 138, 144–146, 166–171, 173, 189. See also Bemba Appeal Judgement, paras. 171–173, 189. The Appeals Chamber also finds Mladić's references to the Popović et al. Appeal Judgement, relating to superior responsibility under Article 7(3) of the ICTY Statute, to be distinguishable from Mladić's case, which involves joint criminal enterprise liability under Article 7(1) of the ICTY Statute. See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 261, 263, nn. 392, 400, referring to, inter alia, Popović et al. Appeal Judgement, para. 1931.

- 822 See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 264. In this regard, Mladić ignores the Trial Chamber's findings that, while the military judicial system of Republika Srpska was formally autonomous and independent, “in many instances, decisions to release suspects were made after VRS officers [...] exerted pressure on the military courts to drop cases or release perpetrators of crimes”. Trial Judgement, para. 4196. The Appeals Chamber further notes the Trial Chamber's consideration of Witness RM-513's evidence that a military prosecutor “obstructed the work of the Bijeljina military court and put pressure on his subordinates to drop cases involving Bosnian-Serb perpetrators and Bosnian-Muslim victims”. See Trial Judgement, para. 4132, referring to Exhibit P1054 (under seal), paras. 58, 62. The Trial Chamber considered the evidence of Witness RM-016, who stated that the Banja Luka military court released perpetrators of a massacre at Velagići School

- under the pressure of the Ključ Brigade and with the approval of the VRS Main Staff. See Trial Judgement, paras. 828, 4139, 4141, referring to Exhibit P2375 (under seal). The Trial Chamber also considered evidence that the atmosphere in 1995 was such that, although it was possible for an individual to file a criminal complaint against high-ranking VRS officers, it was not realistic as those who did would have risked the safety and lives of family members, and that, while it was also possible for a prosecutor to initiate investigations against the security organ of the VRS Main Staff, no prosecutor would have done so for the same reason. See Trial Judgement, para. 4104, referring to Exhibit P3351, pp. 10856, 10861, 10862.

In finding that Mladić knew of crimes being committed against non-Serbs in the Municipalities, the Trial Chamber relied on the following considerations: (i) his position as Commander of the VRS Main Staff (see, e.g., Trial Judgement, paras. 4374–4394, 4544, 4611, 4612, 4623, 4685); (ii) the VRS Main Staff’s receipt of detailed reports (see, e.g., Trial Judgement, paras. 4297–4299, 4383–4385, 4387, 4631, 4638, 4685); (iii) Mladić’s personal receipt of regular updates (see, e.g., Trial Judgement, paras. 4296–4310, 4385, 4685); (iv) his involvement in VRS units’ activities (see, e.g., Trial Judgement, paras. 4293–4394, 4611, 4612, 4615, 4685); and (v) the fact that the commission of crimes was widely acknowledged (see, e.g., Trial Judgement, paras. 4632, 4633, 4685).

- 872 Mladić alleges that the Trial Chamber erred in paragraphs 4298, 4386, 4465, and 4546 of the Trial Judgement. See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 287, 289, 290, nn. 428, 432, 433. The Appeals Chamber observes that, in paragraph 4465 of the Trial Judgement, while assessing Mladić's participation in the development of Bosnian Serb governmental policies, the Trial Chamber cross-referenced evidence reviewed in Chapter 9.3.13 (mens rea) that Mladić demonstrated his opposition to the Vance-Owen plan. See Trial Judgement, paras. 4465, 4628. In paragraph 4298 of the Trial Judgement, when discussing Mladić's command and control of the VRS, the Trial Chamber cross-referenced the evidence of Witness RM-802, which it considered in Chapter 9.3.13 (mens rea), that daily reports were sent and that Mladić was a “hands-on” commander. See Trial Judgement, paras. 4298, 4631. In paragraph 4386 of the Trial Judgement, the Trial Chamber made findings relevant to Mladić's visits to and inspections of VRS units but did not refer to any evidence or assessment in the mens rea section of the Trial Judgement. See Trial Judgement, para. 4386. In paragraph 4546 of the Trial Judgement, the Trial Chamber found that Mladić did not take appropriate or further steps to investigate or punish perpetrators of crimes, referring to, inter alia, its findings in Chapter 9.3.13 (mens rea) that Mladić knew that crimes were committed. In response to Mladić's specific examples of where the Trial Chamber erred in relation to circumstantial evidence, the Prosecution submits, inter alia, that: (i) he misrepresents the Trial Chamber's findings regarding statements made in Croatia in 1991; and (ii) the evidence of his attendance at both meetings does not simply demonstrate his tacit agreement but rather reflects his explicit agreement with the common purpose of the Overarching JCE. See Prosecution Response Brief, paras. 107, 108.
- 884 Prosecution Response Brief, paras. 98, 110–115. In response to Mladić's specific examples where the Trial Chamber ignored direct evidence, the Prosecution submits, inter alia, that: (i) the Trial Chamber considered his orders regarding paramilitary groups and that Mladić “simply cherry-picks his preferred evidence and ignores the rest”; (ii) Mladić misrepresents findings in the Trial Judgement regarding his orders to follow the Geneva Conventions; and (iii) the Trial Chamber explicitly discussed his orders to observe ceasefire agreements and Mladić fails to explain how these orders constitute direct evidence. See Trial Judgement, paras. 4621, 4688. Nevertheless, given the Trial Chamber’s finding that Mladić held the intent to contribute to the Overarching JCE by 12 May 1992 “at the latest” and that this meeting took place immediately before the specified date, the Appeals Chamber will address Mladić’s submissions in this regard.

- 919 The Trial Chamber considered evidence that, on 28 July 1992, Mladić ordered the disarmament of all paramilitary formations, groups, and individuals in the territory of Republika Srpska by 15 August 1992 in order to put all armed formations and individuals under the unified command of the VRS. See Trial Judgement, paras. 3840, 4419, referring to Exhibit P5112, pp. 2–4. The Trial Chamber noted that, according to the order, those who carried out misdeeds or crimes as well as paramilitary formations that refused to be placed under the unified command of the VRS in cooperation with the MUP were to be disarmed, arrested, and charged with crimes. See Trial Judgement, para. 3840, referring to Exhibit P5112, p. 3. The Trial Chamber also summarized evidence of Mladić’s further orders, issued on 17 August 1992 and 22 May 1993, regarding the disarmament, elimination, or liquidation of paramilitary formations that refused to submit to VRS command. Other exhibits referenced by Mladić, including his notebooks, only discuss problems with paramilitary formations or actions taken by individuals other than Mladić personally. See Exhibits P352, pp. 48, 207, 331, 338; P353, pp. 59, 164, 308; P354, pp. 48, 133; P356, pp. 178, 180, 234; P7390, p. 2; P2873, p. 3; P4038, p. 1; P5133; P7208, p. 3; D891, para. 5; D921, paras. 26, 27; D1996, pp. 1, 2. As to Exhibit P360, the Appeals Chamber has reviewed the page referenced in the Mladić Appeal Brief (p. 150) and observes no discussion on paramilitary units.

 'There we cannot cleanse nor can we have a sieve to sift so that only Serbs would stay, or that the Serbs would fall through and the rest leave. Well that is, that will not, I do not know how Mr Krajišnik and Mr Karadžić would explain this to the world. People, that would be genocide. We have to call upon any man who has bowed his forehead to the ground to embrace these areas and the territory of the state we plan to make. He to [sic] has his place with us and next to us.'  'Fear, might, prays to no God, and God cares not for might. But that does not mean that Muslims have to be expelled or drowned [...] both Serbs and Muslims, all must take care of one another [...] [b]ut there are ways in which we can neutralise them.' The Appeals Chamber notes that Mladić does not raise the allegation that the Trial Chamber erred in exercising jurisdiction over the crime of terror in his notice of appeal, thus failing to meet the requirements of Rule 133 of the Rules. However, considering that the Prosecution does not object to Mladić’s failure and responds to his arguments, and in light of the importance of the issues raised, the Appeals Chamber chooses to exercise its discretion to consider Mladić’s arguments in order to ensure the fairness of the proceedings. The "grave consequences" requirement to which Mladić points in this respect is jurisdictional, meaning that the crime of terror victim group remains the same: "the civilian population or individual civilians not taking direct part in hostilities", but that the ICTY could only exercise its jurisdiction over the crime where the grave consequences requirement is met. Article 52 of Additional Protocol I, by contrast, prohibits attacks against civilian objects and provides that attacks shall be strictly limited to military objectives, which it defines as "those objects which by their nature, location, purpose or use make an effective contribution to military action and whose total or partial destruction, capture or neutralization, in the circumstances ruling at the time, offers a definite military advantage".

As part of this sub-ground of appeal, Mladić also asserts that the Trial Chamber erred by relying on evidence of crimes which were not proven beyond reasonable doubt and supports this assertion by referring to submissions made elsewhere in his appellant's brief. See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 422–428. See also Mladić Reply Brief, paras. 75, 76. In particular, he contends that, because Sarajevo was a "defended city", evidence that Sarajevo was bombarded does not, per se, prove the commission of a crime. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 425, referring to Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 373–397. The Appeals Chamber recalls that it has dismissed Mladić's alleged errors in relation to Sarajevo as a "defended city" (see supra Section III.C.1(b)), and accordingly, hereby dismisses his allegation of error in this respect. Mladić also contends that the Trial Chamber erroneously drew upon the evidence of Witness RM-511 pursuant to Scheduled Incident G.1 to infer the existence of the Sarajevo JCE and his intent. See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 422, 423, 426, referring to Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 464–496. The Appeals Chamber recalls that it has already dismissed Mladić's alleged errors in relation to Scheduled Incident G.1 (see infra Section III.C.2(a)).

See Prosecution Response Brief, para. 158. The

- Prosecution further argues that the Trial Chamber's conclusion on Mladić's shared intent was based on evidence of, inter alia, Mladić personally directing the SRK to shell Sarajevo and cut its utilities to force inhabitants outside as well as his contemporaneous statements. - 1098 In particular, in making this finding, the Trial Chamber considered that Mladić:
 (i) [...] personally direct[ed] the 28 May 1992 shelling of Sarajevo, select[ed] targets, and direct[ed] fire away from Serb-populated areas; (ii) [...] formulat[ed] and issu[ed] directives and command[ed] the SRK; (iii) [...] propos[ed] in the spring of 1995 that Sarajevo be bombarded with explicit disregard for the safety of civilians; and (iv) [...] ordered the SRK Command to cut utilities supplying Sarajevo on 6 September 1995, thereby forcing the inhabitants of Sarajevo to go outside and be exposed to sniping and shelling [...]. In support of his arguments, Mladić also recalls his submissions regarding Sarajevo as a “defended city” (see Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 467, 473, 487), which the Appeals Chamber has dismissed above. See supra Section III.C.1(b). In addition, Mladić contends that “targets of opportunity operated

- extensively in and around Sarajevo throughout the indictment period”, and argues that “[t]he Trial Chamber did not exclude the possibility that shells were fired at these targets of opportunity during the bombardment”. Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 489. The Appeals Chamber notes, however, that Mladić does not develop this argument any further, and a review of the evidence to which he points in support of his argument (see Mladić Appeal Brief, n. 610) shows that it does not relate to the scope of Scheduled Incident G.1 and/or does not refer to such “targets of opportunity”. The Appeals Chamber accordingly dismisses Mladić’s argument in this respect.

- 1194 Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 553, referring to Scheduled Incidents F.2, F.9, G.18, Unscheduled Sniping Incidents of 31 March 1993, 25 June 1993, 27 June 1993, 24 July 1993, 5 August 1993, 26 September 1993, 2 November 1993, 9 November 1993, 11 January 1994, and Unscheduled Shelling Incidents of 6 and 7 September 1994. With respect to Mladić's reference to "Scheduled Incident[] F.2", the Appeals Chamber notes that Schedule F.2 was stricken from the Indictment and therefore not evaluated by the Trial Chamber (see Indictment, Schedule F; Trial Judgement, pp. 985–989), and accordingly understands Mladić to be referring to the Trial Chamber's analysis of Schedule F.1. See Trial Judgement, para. 1922.
- 1195 See Prosecution Response Brief, paras. 212–216.
- 1196 See Prosecution Response Brief, paras. 214–216. The Prosecution also contends that Mladić did not challenge the finding that the fire came from SRK-held territory. Prosecution Response Brief, para. 215. Mladić replies that this does not relieve the Prosecution of its burden to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. See Mladić Reply Brief, para. 85.
- 1197 See, e.g., Šešelj Appeal Judgement, para. 63 and references cited therein.
- 1198 Mladić merely points to the evidence of Witness Edin Garaplija that the Sevé unit of the ABiH shot a French soldier in such a way as to make it appear that the Serbs were responsible for it, and to a newspaper article which significantly predates all of the incidents that Mladić contests. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 548, referring to T. 31 March 2015 p. 33909, Exhibit D1425.

Mladić further submits that the Trial Chamber did not abide by ICTY jurisprudence to the effect that the forced character of the displacement is determined by the absence of a genuine choice by the victim in his or her displacement. Mladić erroneously submits that the Trial Chamber found that he had given civilians a choice to leave or remain and that evidence of statements made by him supports the inference that he was acting to evacuate the civilians for humanitarian reasons. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 579, referring to Trial Judgement, para. 2472. The Trial Chamber did not accept that Mladić had given civilians such a choice and found that Mladić’s statements were “deliberately misleading”. See Trial Judgement, paras. 4965, 5082, 5083. Mladić fails to demonstrate any error in this assessment.

- 1250 Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 585, 587, 589; T. 25 August 2020 pp. 79–82. Mladić argues that the Trial Chamber erred by relying on Witness Momir Nikolić’s evidence because: (i) his evidence of a meeting occurring between 11 and 12 July 1995 did not establish a link with Mladić; and (ii) it failed to account for the evidence of Witness Bruce Bursik, a Prosecution investigator, and its own determination that Witness Momir Nikolić lacked credibility. See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 585, 587–589, 593, 594; T. 25 August 2020 pp. 79–82. He further argues that the Trial Chamber erred in relying on Exhibit D1228, an unsworn out of court statement of Witness Momir Nikolić as summarized by Witness Bursik, for the truth of its contents to establish the occurrence of this meeting: (i) without having admitted it pursuant to Rule 92 bis or quater of the ICTY Rules; (ii) because the statement had not been recorded as required under Rule 43 of the ICTY Rules; and (iii) because the Prosecution did not rely on it in its closing submissions to support the position that a meeting involving Mladić occurred between 11 and 12 July 1995 and concerned a common criminal plan for genocide or extermination. See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 590–592; T. 25 August 2020 pp. 79, 80.

The Prosecution submits that Mladić identifies no error in relying upon Witness Momir Nikolić’s evidence because the Trial Chamber assessed Witness Momir Nikolić’s evidence in light of Witness Bursik’s testimony, including that Witness Momir Nikolić “did not tell everything in its entirety”. See Prosecution Response Brief, para. 233, referring to Trial Judgement, para. 5304; T. 26 August 2020 pp. 19, 20. The Prosecution further argues that, in relation to Exhibit D1228, the Trial Chamber committed no error because: (i) Mladić tendered Exhibit D1228 pursuant to Rule 89(C) of the ICTY Rules and without limitation or conditions under Rules 92 bis or quater of the ICTY Rules, and; (ii) Mladić relied upon the exhibit for the truth of its contents at trial and on appeal and, therefore, cannot criticise the Trial Chamber for also doing so. See Prosecution Response Brief, paras. 231, 232; T. 26 August 2020 p. 20. The Trial Chamber found, inter alia, that Mladić ordered the mobilization of buses and the transportation of Bosnian Muslim civilians out of Potočari. See Trial Judgement, para. 5052. On 11 July 1995, he ordered Borovčanin to launch an attack in the early morning of 12 July 1995. See Trial Judgement, para. 5066. On 12 July 1995, he then ordered that part of Borovčanin’s unit provide security for the transport of the civilians, while the other part was to go to Zvornik. See Trial Judgement, para. 5067. - 1298 With respect to the four intercept communications, Mladić submits that: (i) Exhibit P1298 merely confirms his intention to leave the front line and that he did not issue any order to be implemented in his absence; (ii) Exhibit P1655 (under seal) demonstrates that he was informed that Karadžić was issuing orders and that Pandurević had made arrangements for Muslims to pass through Tuzla, but was not provided with any further information about what was occurring on the ground; (iii) Exhibit P1656 (under seal) demonstrates that, where the conversation extended to him informing a man that he would see him that night, no orders were given, and there is no evidence of who the man was, or his rank or role; and (iv) Exhibit P1657 (under seal) demonstrates that he spoke to Milovanović briefly, but did not give any orders or mention Srebrenica. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 614.

- 1301 Prosecution Response Brief, para. 236; T. 26 August 2020 pp. 18, 19. The Prosecution adds that Mladić’s responsibility

- for the crimes in Srebrenica was not premised on his presence at the crime site. See T. 26 August 2020 p. 19.
- 1302 Prosecution Response Brief, paras. 236–238, referring to, inter alia, Trial Judgement, para. 5053; T. 26 August 2020 p. 19. Specifically, the Prosecution argues that: (i) Witness Stevanović’s evidence, which comprises only one piece of the evidentiary record considered by the Trial Chamber, does not undercut the Trial Chamber’s finding that orders bearing Mladić’s name, with or without “s.r.”, are attributable to him; (ii) the Four Orders pertaining to the “day- to-day operation of the army” support rather than undermine the Trial Chamber’s conclusion that Mladić exercised command while in Belgrade; (iii) the Four Orders relate to the Srebrenica operation or are evidence of Mladić’s continued command on 14 and 15 July 1995; and (iv) Mladić fails to show any error in the Trial Chamber’s reliance on orders numerically designated “04/” or “06/”, especially since the Defence tendered documents it attributed to Mladić bearing the numerical designation “06/” and other numerical designations. See Prosecution Response Brief, paras. 237, 238.
- 1303 Prosecution Response Brief, para. 239, referring to, inter alia, Mladić Final Trial Brief, paras. 670, 3299, Trial Judgement, para. 5046. The Prosecution further argues that Mladić merely repeats his unsuccessful submissions at trial claiming communication problems. See Prosecution Response Brief, para. 239.
- 1304 Prosecution Response Brief, para. 240. The Prosecution argues that Mladić’s alternative interpretation of Exhibits P1655 (under seal) and P1657 (under seal) fails to show any error and that the totality of the evidence, which shows his familiarity with on-going operations and his issuance of related orders, supports the Trial Chamber’s finding that Mladić exercised command and control of the VRS while in Belgrade. See Prosecution Response Brief, para. 240. See also T. 26 August 2020 p. 19.
- 1305 See Trial Judgement, para. 5053.
- 1306 See Trial Judgement, para. 5053. See also Trial Judgement, paras. 5046–5052, referring to, inter alia, Trial Judgement, Chapters 3.1.4, 7.1.2, and 9.3.3. In Chapter 3.1.4, the Trial Chamber found that from his initial appointment as Commander on 12 May 1992 until at least 8 November 1996, Mladić remained in command of the VRS Main Staff. See Trial Judgement, para. 276. In Chapter 7.1.2, the Trial Chamber found that Mladić effectively issued orders to VRS forces to implement Directives no. 7 and no. 7/1, which were created in March 1995 in relation to the priorities of the VRS (“Directive 7” and “Directive 7/1”, respectively”). See Trial Judgement, paras. 2382–2386. See also Trial Judgement, paras. 2379–2381. In Chapter 9.3.3, the Trial Chamber found that Mladić issued several orders and directives to VRS units, was respected as a leader by his subordinates, and possessed a very high level of command and control over them in spite of the lack of a declared state of war and occasional indiscipline in the VRS. See Trial Judgement, paras. 4388–4391. Furthermore, the Trial Chamber found that the VRS had a well-functioning communication system, which allowed Mladić to effectively and quickly communicate with his subordinates. See Trial Judgement, para. 4387. The Trial Chamber also found that from May 1992 until 1995, Mladić was stationed at the VRS Main Staff command post from where he had daily telephone communication with corps commanders, usually in the mornings and in the evenings, and that Mladić was kept up to date on the main issues by Milovanović. See Trial Judgement, para. 4385.
- 1307 In Chapter 9.7.2 of the Trial Judgement, entitled “Commanding and Controlling the VRS”, the Trial Chamber considered: (i) communication and orders by Mladić on 14 July 1995 (see Trial Judgement, paras. 5022–5024); and (ii) communication and orders by Mladić on 15 and 16 July 1995 (see Trial Judgement, paras. 5025–5032, 5046–5050, referring to Trial Judgement, Chapter 9.3.3). In Chapter 9.7.3, entitled “Commanding and Controlling Elements of the Serb Forces Integrated into, or Subordinated to, the VRS”, the Trial Chamber recalled its finding in Chapter 9.7.2 about Mladić’s command and control of VRS forces in the Srebrenica operation (see Trial Judgement, para. 5066).

- 1311 See Trial Judgement, paras. 4310, 5022, 5024, 5025. The Trial Chamber noted that: (i) in one order given by Mladić on 14 July 1995, admitted as Exhibit P2122, Mladić informed, inter alios, the Supreme Commander, the VJ General Staff, the Serbian Army of Krajina Main Staff, and various VRS Corps that due to failure of the power supply during the Srebrenica operation, the VRS Main Staff communications centre would operate only during limited hours the next day (see Trial Judgement, para. 5024); (ii) two orders from the VRS Main Staff to the Command of the Drina Corps and the SRK signed by Mladić and given on 14 July 1995, admitted as Exhibits P2123 and P2124, respectively, concerned the transfer of Dutch soldiers from Bratunac (see Trial Judgement, para. 5022); and (iii) one order from the VRS Main Staff to the VRS East Bosnia Corps Command and the VRS Main Staff Forward Command Post dated 15 July 1995 and signed by Mladić, admitted as Exhibit P2125, instructed the VRS East Bosnia Corps to send an officer to the Forward Command Post to report to Milovanović (see Trial Judgement, para. 5025).
- 1312 See Exhibits P2122, P2123, P2124, and P2125. See also Trial Judgement, paras. 4310, 5022, 5024, 5025.
- 1313 In this respect, the Appeals Chamber notes that at trial the Defence tendered documents it attributed to Mladić bearing the same designation, namely “06/” (or “6/”), that Mladić now argues is not attributable to him. See, e.g., Exhibits D140, D1471, D1501, D1616, D1665, D1753, and D2167.
- 1314 See Trial Judgement, paras. 4992, 4997, 5049. In relation to the VRS Main Staff Order of 11 July 1995, the Trial Chamber explicitly considered Witness Stevanović’s evidence that “s.r./signed” on a document did not always mean that the individual whose signature appeared on the document was aware of it or had actually signed it. See Trial Judgement, para. 4997.

- to communicate with them). In this respect, the Appeals Chamber recalls that the Trial Chamber found that the VRS had a well-functioning communication system which allowed Mladić to effectively and quickly communicate with his subordinates. See Trial Judgement, paras. 4383, 4387. The Trial Chamber noted that Witness Milovanović testified that he always sought Mladić's approval before proceeding. See Trial Judgement, para. 4297.

Further, the Trial Chamber found that members of the Skorpions unit committed the killings set out in Scheduled Incident E.13.1 in coordination with VRS units. There is insufficient evidence to suggest that the Skorpions unit was subordinated to the VRS or that JCE members had other ways to use them as tools”). See also Trial Judgement, paras. 3794, 3796, 3826.

- 1345 The definition provided by Witness Theunens was that the Commander of an MUP unit re-subordinated to the VRS receives operational orders from the VRS Commander and not from his MUP Commander, which is consistent with the Trial Chamber's analysis. Similarly, neither Witness Velimir Kevac's nor Witness Kovac's definition of re-subordination and coordination undercuts the Trial Chamber's finding. In particular, Witness Kovac testified that re-subordination means taking over command and jurisdiction, whereas coordinated action is between two neighbors, and the chains of command are separate. See Trial Judgement, paras. 3794, 3796, 3824, 3826; T. 10 December 2013 pp. 20620, 20621; T. 22 January 2015 pp. 30497, 30498; T. 23 January 2015

- 1376 The Trial Chamber found that, in March 1995, Radivoje Miletić and the VRS Main Staff drafted Directive 7, which was signed by Karadžić, Supreme Commander of the VRS, on 8 March 1995. In Directive 7, Karadžić outlined the four main priorities of the VRS: (i) through resolute offensive and defensive military operations, impose a military situation which the international community would be compelled to accept; (ii) improve the operational and strategic position of the VRS; (iii) reduce the front-line and create conditions for the economic revival of Republika Srpska by sending a number of military conscripts home; and (iv) create the conditions for the state and political leadership to negotiate a peace agreement and accomplish the strategic objectives of the war. See Trial Judgement, paras. 2382, 2383.
- 1377 See Trial Judgement, paras. 2364–2386. The Trial Chamber found that, on 31 March 1995, the VRS Main Staff issued Directive 7/1, which was signed by Mladić, and wherein he repeated most of the tasks of the VRS outlined in Directive 7 and stated that he had decided to conduct, with the VRS main forces, a strategic operation under the code-name Sadejstvo 95. See Trial Judgement, para. 2384.
- 1378 See Trial Judgement, paras. 2385, 2386, referring to, inter alia, Exhibits P345, P803, P4317, P5048. The Trial Chamber considered Witness Obradović's testimony that Directive 7 remained in force with respect to the VRS Second Krajina Corps, the SRK, and the VRS Herzegovina Corps, as stated in Directive 7/1, but that the main body of the force consisting of the VRS First Krajina Corps, the VRS East Bosnia Corps, and the Drina Corps, were tasked with what was set out in Directive 7/1. The Trial Chamber further considered Witness Milovanović's evidence that there is nothing in Directive 7/1 explicitly rescinding the controversial parts of Directive 7 and that in order to fully implement Directive 7/1 one would have to look at Directive 7.

Indeed, the Trial Chamber found that, between 11 July and 22 August 1995, Mladić was deliberately misleading the international community by: (i) claiming that the civilians in Srebrenica were free to stay or go; (ii) ordering the selling of the videotape of the distribution of food and water to foreign agencies; and (iii) denying alleged atrocities committed after the fall of Srebrenica and that executions had taken place. See Trial Judgement, paras. 5082–5084.

- 1397 See Trial Judgement, para. 5046. The Trial Chamber considered Witness RM-316's evidence and was satisfied that Mladić would not have been identified unless the operators were certain that it was Mladić speaking in the intercept. See also Trial Judgement, para. 5028.

With respect to the limited training of Witness RM-316, Mladić repeats his argument in paragraph 2620 of the Mladić Final Trial Brief. In relation to Witness RM-275, Mladić repeats his argument in paragraph 2618 of the Mladić Final Trial Brief. Regarding the lack of continuity or chain of custody, Mladić repeats his arguments in paragraphs 2595 and 2596 of the Mladić Final Trial Brief. As to radio-relay routes and frequencies, Mladić repeats his arguments in paragraphs 2619 to 2622, 2649, 2650, 2652 to 2654, 2656, and 2657 of the Mladić Final Trial Brief. All of the above-mentioned paragraphs were explicitly referenced by the Trial Chamber. See Trial Judgement, nn. 18087, 18089, referring to, inter alia, Mladić Final Trial Brief, paras. 2595, 2596, 2618–2622, 2649, 2650, 2652–2654, 2656, 2657.

Mladić further submits that, outside of his knowledge and unrelated to him, individuals from local areas, the MUP as well as Nikolić, and other “rogue members of the VRS security professional line of command”, including Popović, took it upon themselves to conduct acts of revenge and killings in Srebrenica. See T. 25 August 2020 pp. 71, 80, 81, 84; T. 26 August 2020 pp. 44, 56.

Mladić argues that Witness Nikolić's report to the VRS Main Staff supports his statement that he concealed the crimes as it only contained information that wounded Muslim prisoners and Muslim UN staff were being evacuated. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 632, n. 773, referring to Exhibit P1515.
- 1411 Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 633, referring to Trial Judgement, paras. 3002–3005. To the extent that Mladić refers to paragraphs 611 and 612 of his appellant's brief, the Appeals Chamber recalls that it has rejected his arguments in this regard. See supra para. 380.

Mladić also takes issue with the Trial Chamber's reliance on Witness Predrag Drinić in finding that no investigations were conducted by Bosnian Serb military or civilian organs. To the extent that Mladić develops this argument in Ground 5.I of his appeal, it will be evaluated in connection with the submissions made in support of that sub-ground of appeal. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 634, referring to Trial Judgement, para. 4963.
- 1413 Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 637. Mladić alleges that, following this, his key subordinates were removed in October 1995 and subsequently replaced. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 637.

The Prosecution further submits that the Defence's alleged “hypothetical conspiracy”, involving a breakdown of command and rogue elements of the VRS and civilian police without Mladić's knowledge, cannot explain: (i) the extensive and coordinated involvement of many different military units and resources under Mladić's overall command, (ii) that Mladić did nothing to punish direct perpetrators and their superiors who, under his control, conducted the operation, and (iii) his praise for his soldiers in the conduct of the operation in Srebrenica. See T. 26 August 2020 pp. 21, 22.

The Prosecution argues that: (i) Mladić fails to explain how the Trial Chamber placed undue emphasis on Witness Bojanović's evidence that the crimes would have been reported up the chain of command in the Zvornik Brigade Report when the Trial Chamber expressly stated that it did not rely on this aspect of his evidence (see Prosecution Response Brief, para. 261, referring to, inter alia, Trial Judgement, n. 12063); (ii) Mladić fails to show how the absence of explicit mention of crimes in the Zvornik Brigade Report undercuts the Trial Chamber's finding that VRS officers, including Mladić, were aware of the killings (see Prosecution Response Brief, para. 262, referring to, inter alia, Trial Judgement, paras. 4961, 5093); and (iii) Witness Momir Nikolić's evidence confirms Mladić's active participation in and knowledge of the murder operation (see Prosecution Response Brief, para. 263; see also T. 26 August 2020 pp. 19, 20).

Contrary to Mladić's assertion, the Trial Chamber did not rely on Witness Bojanović's evidence to find that the crimes were reported, but instead considered this evidence in reaching its finding that the crimes were concealed. See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 631, 632.
- 1430 See Trial Judgement, para. 4939, referring to Exhibit D1228, p. 8. In addition, Exhibit D1228 shows that Witness Momir Nikolić only mentioned the killings in his verbal report and not in his written report, rather than that "he had never seen a written report about the killings". See Trial Judgement, para. 4939, referring to Exhibit D1228, p. 3. See also Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 632; Exhibit D1228, pp. 3, 8.
- 1431 See Trial Judgement, para. 3004 (wherein the Trial Chamber found that "[o]n 16 October 1995, Momir Nikolić met with Blagojević, the command staff, and battalion commanders or their deputies, and reported that members of the Brigade were engaged in a reburial operation conducted under the name 'asanacija[.]' or hygiene and sanitation measures, which had been ordered by the VRS Main Staff"). In reaching this finding, the Trial Chamber considered, inter alia, the evidence of Witnesses Momir Nikolić and RM-322. See also Trial Judgement, para. 5093, referring to Trial Judgement, paras. 152, 213, 4968. Having reviewed relevant portions of the Trial Judgement, the Appeals Chamber observes that the Trial Chamber did not make a specific finding about Mladić's knowledge of the reburial operation. See Trial Judgement, paras. 2989–3007, 4959–4969, 5086–5095.
- 1434 With respect to evidence of the institutional limitations of the military justice system, Mladić recalls his arguments in relation to Ground 3 of his appeal. To the extent that Mladić develops these arguments in Ground 3, they are evaluated in connection with the submissions made in support of that ground. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 638. Similarly, the Prosecution submits that the Trial Chamber found Mladić's statements to captured prisoners of war to be "misleading assurances", and that he also fails to show that his promises that the ICRC would be granted access to prisoners are different from his other misleading assurances. The Prosecution argues that Mladić points to no evidence that the ICRC was ever granted access to register the prisoners in Srebrenica, Bratunac, and Zvornik, which is consistent with Mladić's measures to conceal the ongoing murder and burial of thousands of Bosnian Muslim prisoners. See Prosecution Response Brief, para. 276, referring to, inter alia, Trial Judgement, paras. 5081, 5128, 5130, Exhibit D410, p. 2. See also T. 26 August 2020 p. 7 (where the Prosecution discussed Mladić's efforts to conceal the killings from the international community).

- 1498 In finding Mladić’s intent for genocide, the Trial Chamber considered, in part, Mladić’s presence at Nova Kasaba football field and Sandići Meadow on 13 July 1995, where several thousand Bosnian Muslim males were detained, and his misleading assurances that they would be taken to Bratunac to be exchanged. The Trial Chamber further considered Mladić’s command and control over VRS and MUP units operating in and around Srebrenica from at least 11 July to 11 October 1995, his orders to separate the Bosnian Muslim men from the women, children, and elderly in Potočari from 12 July 1995, his statements and speeches between 11 July and August 1995, in which he articulated that it was time to take revenge, and threatened that the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica could either “live or vanish”, “survive or disappear”, that only the people who could secure the surrender of weapons would save the Bosnian Muslims from “destruction” as well as his presence at a meeting on 13 July 1995 with MUP and VRS officers during which the VRS tasked the MUP with the killing of about 8,000 Bosnian Muslim males near Konjević Polje. - 1536 Prosecution Response Brief, paras. 285, 286. In the Prosecution’s view, Mladić’s claim that he is unable to determine the extent to which the Trial Chamber relied on Adjudicated Fact 1476 ignores the clear articulation in the Trial Judgement of the basis of his liability. See Prosecution Response Brief, para. 285. The Prosecution argues that the conclusions on Mladić’s intent, significant contribution to the Srebrenica JCE, and sentence are all based on factual and legal findings in Chapters 7 and 8 of the Trial Judgement, in which the Trial Chamber listed the numbers of victims per incident. See Prosecution Response Brief, para. 286. The Prosecution adds that the Trial Chamber did not rely on Adjudicated Fact 1476 to find Mladić’s criminal responsibility for killings in Srebrenica or in determining his sentence. See T. 26 August 2020 pp. 38, 39.
- 1537 Prosecution Response Brief, para. 284. The Prosecution argues that the Trial Chamber considered evidence that some victims who died in Srebrenica were not victims of executions, and that where the manner of death or the victims’ status was unclear, it did not count them in the total number of victims of killings. Additionally, the Prosecution contends that the Trial Chamber considered and rejected the alternative explanation that blindfolds on victims could have been bandannas worn by fighters. See Prosecution Response Brief, para. 283. The Prosecution reiterates that the Trial Chamber relied on Adjudicated Fact 1476 for a general finding and did not rely on this fact to determine the number and status of victims for whose killing Mladić was ultimately found responsible. See Prosecution Response Brief, para. 284.

- 1557 Trial Judgement, paras. 2662–2935, 3051, 3062. Of the incidents that supported Mladić’s liability in relation to the Srebrenica JCE, the Trial Chamber found that, between 12 and 23 July 1995, the following people, almost all of whom were Bosnian Muslim men, were killed: (a) 15 male detainees, including a 14-year-old boy and one man wearing civilian clothing (Scheduled Incident E.1.1) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2676, 3051); (b) approximately 150 non-Serb males, including minors, 147 of whom were wearing civilian clothes (Scheduled Incident E.2.1) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2682, 2684, 3051); (c) approximately 1,000 male

- detainees (Scheduled Incident E.3.1) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2707, 3051); (d) 10 to 15 unarmed men, who had surrendered, and one wounded man (Scheduled Incident E.4.1) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2723, 3051); (e) approximately 21 male detainees dressed in civilian clothes (Scheduled Incident E.5.1) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2732, 3051); (f) two male detainees (Scheduled Incident E.6.1) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2759, 3051); (g) at least 819 male detainees, many of whom were dressed in civilian clothing (Scheduled Incident E.6.2) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2766, 3051); (h) about 20 male detainees (Scheduled Incident E.7.1) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2776, 3051); (i) about 401 male detainees, including minors (Scheduled Incident E.7.2) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2791, 3051); (j) at least 12 male detainees (Scheduled Incident E.8.1) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2820, 3051); (k) at least 575 male detainees (Scheduled Incident E.8.2) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2825, 3051); (l) at least eight men who wore civilian clothing (Scheduled Incident E.9.1) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2859, 3051); (m) between 1,000 and 1,200 male detainees (Scheduled Incident E.9.2) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2861, 3051); (n) approximately 500 men and two women, some of whom were wearing civilian clothes (Scheduled Incident E.10.1) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2862, 3051); (o) 39 detained men and boys (Scheduled Incident E.12.1) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2864–2876, 3051); (q) nine men who were wearing civilian clothes (Scheduled Incident E.14.1) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2886, 3051); (r) an unarmed man wearing civilian clothing (Scheduled Incident E.14.2) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2894, 3051); (s) more than 50 male detainees (Scheduled Incident E.15.1) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2917, 3051); (t) an unarmed man (Scheduled Incident E.15.3) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2920, 2921, 3051); (u) 15 detainees (unscheduled) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2924, 3051); (v) four captured people, including a 15-year-old boy (unscheduled) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2926, 3051); and (w) ten injured detainees (unscheduled) (see Trial Judgement, paras. 2935, 3051). The Trial Chamber, in Chapters 7 and 8.3.2 of the Trial Judgement, also found that, between mid-July and mid-August 1995, members of the Skorpions Unit killed six Bosnian Muslim men and boys from Srebrenica near the town of Trnovo (Scheduled Incident E.13.1 listed under letter “(p)”). See Trial Judgement, paras. 2882, 3051. The Trial Chamber found, however, that this scheduled incident was not part of Mladić’s ultimate responsibility as the perpetrators were not considered members of the Srebrenica JCE, or subordinated to the VRS, or otherwise used as tools of members of this joint criminal enterprise. See Trial Judgement, para. 4989.

Mladić supports this statement with reference to paragraph 4963 of the Trial Judgement, which addresses evidence pertinent to the investigation and punishment of the perpetrators of the Srebrenica killings and that he makes this statement in the context of Srebrenica JCE. See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 634, 687, referring to Trial Judgement, para. 4963.

- 1618 Prosecution Response Brief, para. 266. The Prosecution contends that, contrary to Mladić's assertion, he sought to reintroduce Witness Drinić's evidence pursuant to Rule 92 ter of the ICTY Rules and proposed a statement that confirmed Witness Drinić's evidence that Mladić now challenges, namely that no investigation of war crimes committed by members of the VRS was conducted. See Prosecution Response Brief, para. 266, referring to T. 18 September 2014 p. 25771, *Prosecutor v. - 1620 See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 634, 681, 687, 690. Although evidence admitted pursuant to Rule 92 bis of the ICTY Rules must not relate to the acts and conduct of the accused as charged in the indictment, Mladić does not argue on appeal that Witness Drinić's Rule 92 bis evidence went to his acts or conduct as charged in the indictment. In view of the analysis and conclusion in this subsection, the Appeals Chamber will not examine this matter proprio motu as it could not impact the outcome.

Adjudicated Fact 1502 shows that members of the Bratunac Brigade Military Police participated in guarding hundreds of Bosnian Muslim men detained in the Vuk Karadžić School complex and the buses parked around Bratunac town on the night of 12 and 13 July 1995; Adjudicated Fact 1503 indicates that from 12 to 14 July 1995, several thousand Bosnian Muslim men were detained without adequate food and water in and around the Vuk Karadžić School and on board the between 80 to 120 buses lining the streets of Bratunac town; Adjudicated Fact 1505 shows that men detained in Bratunac between 12 and 14 July 1995 were executed at night opportunistically; Adjudicated Fact 1506 shows that the Vuk Karadžić School and the various buildings surrounding it were secured by several units of the Republika Srpska armed forces, including by members of the Bratunac Brigade Military Police Platoon, the special police, and the civilian police of the MUP, as well as by members of the Drina Wolves and paramilitary formations; Adjudicated Fact 1518 indicates that groups of men were taken from the buses to the school all through the night and did not return; and Adjudicated Fact 1519 shows that between 12 and 14 July 1995, more than 50 Bosnian Muslim men were summarily executed in and around the Vuk Karadžić School. See Adjudicated Facts 1502, 1503, 1505, 1506, 1518, 1519.

Mladić additionally recalls his previous submission that the Trial Chamber erred in: (i) taking judicial notice of adjudicated facts relating to the conduct of his proximate subordinates (see Mladić Notice of Appeal, para. 21; Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 62–95, 691); and (ii) applying a heightened standard of the burden to produce rebuttal evidence (see Mladić Notice of Appeal, para. 26; Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 96–113, 691), and consequently submits that the Trial Chamber's error of law resulted in a defective evidentiary approach to the adjudicated facts (see Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 693). The Appeals Chamber has already rejected Mladić's blanket submission that the Trial Chamber erred in taking judicial notice of adjudicated facts relating to the conduct of his proximate subordinates, and applying a heightened standard of the burden to produce rebuttal evidence (see supra Section III.A.2(a)(ii)). Considering the foregoing, Mladić's statement to this effect in this part of the appeal (see Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 691) is also rejected.

- 1679 Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 702, 703, referring to Article 147 of Geneva Convention IV. Mladić asserts that the prohibition against hostage-taking is not evinced in the 1899 and 1907 Hague Regulations or the “grave breaches provisions” of the three Geneva Conventions and Additional Protocol I. Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 704, referring to Geneva Convention I, Geneva Convention II, Geneva Convention III. He further claims that reference to hostage-taking in the first draft of Article 3 of the ICTY Statute was not carried through to the final version endorsed by the UN Secretary General to the Security Council in 1993. The Prosecution adds that the lack of express mention of hostage-taking in Article 3 of the ICTY Statute and the grave breaches system of the Geneva Conventions is of “no significance” and does not imply that it attracts no criminal responsibility. It further contends that Mladić’s reliance on the Hague Regulations and the norms applicable during the Nuremberg trials ignores subsequent developments in customary international law. See Prosecution Response Brief, para. 305.

The Appeals Chamber observes that in the decision concerning Mladić’s request for acquittal pursuant to Rule 98 bis of the ICTY Rules, the Trial Chamber noted that Mladić did not specifically challenge Count 11 of the Indictment or the general elements and jurisdictional requirements that must be proven under Article 3 of the ICTY Statute. See T. 15 April 2014 p. 20955.

- 1692 See Čelebići Appeal Judgement, paras. 129–136. The ICTY Appeals Chamber rejected the submissions that violations of Common Article 3 are not within the jurisdiction of the ICTY on the basis, inter alia, that: (i) the Security Council

- never intended to permit prosecutions under Article 3 of the ICTY Statute for violations of Common Article 3; (ii) Article 3 of the ICTY Statute is limited to the “Hague law”; and (iii) unlike the ICTR Statute, the ICTY Statute does not explicitly include Common Article 3. See Čelebići Appeal Judgement, paras. 130–133, 136, 178.
- 1693 See Čelebići Appeal Judgement, paras. 157–174. The ICTY Appeals Chamber rejected, inter alia, the submissions that: (i) the evidence presented in the Tadić Decision of 2 October 1995 did not establish that Common Article 3 is customary international law that creates individual criminal responsibility on the basis that there is no showing of state practice and opinio juris; (ii) the exclusion of Common Article 3 from the Geneva Conventions grave breaches system demonstrates that it entails no individual criminal responsibility; (iii) Common Article 3 imposes duties on states only and is meant to be enforced by domestic legal systems; and (iv) there is evidence demonstrating that Common Article 3 is not a rule of customary law which imposes liability on individuals. See Čelebići Appeal Judgement, paras. 157, 158, 163, 167–170, 174. Similarly, the Appeals Chamber finds that Mladić’s assertion that the lack of mention of the prohibition against hostage-taking in the ICTY Statute, the 1899 and 1907 Hague Regulations, and the “grave breaches provisions” of the three 1949 Geneva Conventions and Additional Protocol I does not undermine that hostage-taking entailed individual criminal responsibility in customary international law at the time of the events in question. As discussed by the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Čelebići case, the Geneva Conventions impose an obligation on State Parties to implement the conventions in their domestic legislation, including by taking measures necessary for the suppression of all breaches of the Geneva Conventions, including those outside the grave breaches provisions. See Article 49 of Geneva Convention I, Article 50 of Geneva Convention II, Article 129 of Geneva Convention III, Article 146 of Geneva Convention IV (“Each High Contracting Party shall take measures necessary for the suppression of all acts contrary to the provisions of the present Convention other than the grave breaches defined in the following Article.”). See also ICRC, Commentary of 1958 on Article 146(3) of Geneva Convention IV, p. 594 (“[.] This shows that all breaches of the Convention should be repressed by national legislation. [.] [T]he authorities of the Contracting Parties [.] should institute judicial or disciplinary punishment for breaches of the Convention.”). See Čelebići Appeal Judgement, paras. 164–166.

- 1711 The Appeals Chamber finds without merit Mladić’s argument that the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Čelebići and Kunarac et al. cases “implicitly” affirmed the need for a trial chamber to conduct a detailed analysis of its jurisdiction where jurisdiction may be in issue. See Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 699, referring to Kunarac et al. Appeal Judgement, paras. 67, 68, Čelebići Appeal Judgement, paras. 167, 168. - 1744 Prosecution Response Brief, para. 311. The Prosecution adds that the argument that the orders to block, detain, and disarm the UN Personnel were lawful does not undermine the finding that Mladić significantly contributed to the Hostage-Taking JCE. See Prosecution Response Brief, para. 314.

The Appeals Chamber observes that the remaining paragraphs of the Trial Judgement to which Mladić refers do not contain any order or evidence relevant to the alleged humane treatment of the detainees as prisoners of war. See Trial Judgement, paras. 2228, 2235, 2262, 2279. To the contrary, some of these paragraphs reveal that the UN Personnel were mistreated. See, e.g., Trial Judgement paras. 2262 ("Several of the UNPROFOR soldiers were kicked and punched by Serb soldiers to speed up their surrender."), 2279 ("A man [...] struck the head of [a French soldier] on the temple with his dagger, and kicked the other French soldier who was in the room in the face."). The Appeals Chamber will therefore not examine further Mladić's allegation of error pertaining to these paragraphs of the Trial Judgement.
- 1758 See Trial Judgement, para. 2227 ("[...] [a VRS soldier] ordered the witness to contact UNMO headquarters and tell them that the team would be shot one by one unless the NATO air strikes stopped. - 1779 See Trial Judgement, para. 2296, n. 9797, referring to Exhibits P2480, P2481. The Trial Chamber also stated that Mladić further ordered the VRS to not divulge any information on the remaining captured UN Personnel. See Trial Judgement, para. 2296.
- 1780 See Trial Judgement, paras. 5157, 5163.
- 1781 Similarly, to the extent that Mladić is alleging that the Trial Chamber erred in assessing the evidence concerning his continuing diplomatic efforts to negotiate the release of VRS prisoners after the release of some of the detained UN Personnel, Mladić does not demonstrate how such evidence could undermine the conclusion that he shared the intent to achieve the common objective of the Hostage-Taking JCE.

- 1783 Mladić Appeal Brief, para. 755, referring to Exhibit D1224, paras. 5–16, T. 8 September 2015 pp. 38790–38801. Witness Vojvodić testified that the detainees were not abused, were fed, and were allowed to contact relatives, to go out, as well as be visited by a medical team and the ICRC. He also claimed that one detainee was released for medical reasons. See Exhibit D1224, paras. 9, 10, 12; T. 8 September 2015 pp. 38799–38801.
- 1784 See, e.g., Trial Judgement, paras. 2236 (“[O]ne VRS soldier was making gestures of shooting the plane and cutting throats towards the UNMOs while others were shouting. One commander, [...] Captain Vojvodić, sent back these soldiers.”), 2247 (“[T]he detainees were held in a room for 24 hours a day, under constant guard. They had no radio and food was brought to them. Vojvodić visited them daily and Evans and his team would request medical attention due to the unsatisfactory hygiene conditions. Their demands were not met until later. The UNMOs requested to know their status and Vojvodić answered that they were detained as [prisoners of war]. The UNMOs then requested to have the same rights as Fprisoners of warĝ. Vojvodić responded that he would contact Major Batinić but the UNMOs never heard anything from him.”), 2309 (“Later on, Captain Vojvodić drove the detainees to their respective accommodations and offices so that they could retrieve some of their belongings and call their relatives. [...] [A]t the Koran Military Barracks, the detained UNMOs were provided food and water, but not permitted to meet with a doctor until 5 June 1995; on 8 June 1995 the UNMOs were finally visited by delegates of the ICRC, following which they received clothing and toiletry, and on 10 June they could call home. [...] [T]hey were also allowed to write messages, which were checked by Vojvodić’s superiors, to their next of kin.”).

- 1833 Prosecution Response Brief, para. 376; T. 26 August 2020 pp. 40–42. The Prosecution contends that the crimes committed in this case are some of the gravest and the crime base is one of the largest attributed to an accused at the ICTY, comparable with the Karadžić case where the Appeals Chamber of the Mechanism found that a 40-year sentence was so unreasonable and plainly unjust that it constituted an abuse of the Trial Chamber's discretion and increased Karadžić's sentence to life imprisonment. See T. 26 August 2020 pp. 41, 42, referring to Karadžić Appeal Judgement, paras. 773, 776. The Prosecution adds that other cases involving Mladić's subordinates, such as Popović, Beara, Tolimir, and Galić, whose conduct was attributable to Mladić and which dealt with only parts of the crime base for which Mladić is responsible, have also resulted in life sentences. - 1841 Where liability under both Articles 7(1) and 7(3) of the ICTY Statute is alleged, and where the legal requirements for both are met, a trial chamber should enter a conviction on the basis of Article 7(1) of the ICTY Statute alone and consider the superior position in sentencing. Mladić further submits that the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Čelebići case erred by reasoning that an accused must have been aware that the most serious violations of humanitarian law were punishable by the most severe penalties, including life imprisonment. See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 947–949; Mladić Reply Brief, para. 135. In this regard, Mladić contends that the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Čelebići case, relying on case law from the European Court of Human Rights (“ECtHR”), conflated “the accessibility and foreseeability of a conviction with the accessibility and foreseeability of a sentence”. See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 947–949, referring to Čelebići Appeal Judgement, para. 817, nn. 1399, 1400, In the Case of S.W. v. The United Kingdom, Application No. 20166/92, Judgment, 22 November 1995.
- 1896 According to Mladić, given that Article 24 of the ICTY Statute imported the domestic sentencing law of the former Yugoslavia, life imprisonment was not “accessible and foreseeable” to an accused, and the only foreseeable and accessible penalty was a maximum of 20 years of imprisonment. See Mladić Appeal Brief, paras. 951, 953, 956.

Bosnia and Herzegovina*, Application Nos. 2312/08 and 34179/08, Judgment, 18 July 2013 (“Maktouf and Damjanović Judgment”). Regarding the principle of lex mitior, Mladić also relies on the *D. The Prosecution contends that the evaluation of substantiality is only about intention rather than about how many people were harmed by the genocidal acts in each place. It states that the smallest numeric size of

- the targeted group in Kotor Varoš consisted of 11,000 group members and the largest, in Prijedor, consisted of 50,000 group members. Furthermore, it adds that Mladić's subordinates and other "tools of the joint criminal enterprise" targeted over 128,000 men, women, and children on the basis of their ethnic characteristics and group identity across all five municipalities. This included Colonel Basara, one of Mladić's VRS subordinates, who targeted close to 80,000 group members across two municipalities. See T. 26 August 2020 pp. 84, 85, 99, 100.

The Prosecution adds that, while the purpose of the substantiality requirement was to ensure that the label of genocide not be "imposed lightly" or applied to crimes that are too small, genocide is not limited to crimes on the horrific scale of the Holocaust or the Rwandan genocide. According to the Prosecution, as with respect of many cases concerning Srebrenica, genocide could be committed in a single municipality. It contends that, in this case, the targeting of tens of thousands of Bosnian Muslims across five municipalities, involving a pattern of crimes aiming at the very existence of the Bosnian Muslim group as such "falls squarely within the definition of genocide on the numbers alone". The Prosecution submits that recognizing this would not be applying the term genocide "lightly". See T. 26 August 2020 pp. 83–85, referring to, inter alia, Krstić Appeal Judgement, para. 37.

In this respect, Mladić submits that, unlike in respect of the Count 1 Municipalities, the Trial Chamber found that the physical perpetrators possessed exclusive and total geographical control and authority to carry out activities in Srebrenica. See Mladić Response Brief, para. 57.
- 1950 Mladić Response Brief, paras. 60, 73–81. In this respect, Mladić submits that, unlike in respect of the Count 1 Municipalities, the Trial Chamber found that Srebrenica: (i) was one of the few remaining predominantly Bosnian Muslim populated territories in the area claimed as Republika Srpska; (ii) had become a refuge for Bosnian Muslims from across Bosnia and Herzegovina; (iii) was a designated UN safe area; (iv) suffered other simultaneous crimes in the area; and (v) had symbolic impact given the extent of Bosnian Serb control over the area. See Mladić Response Brief, para. 75.

- 1954 See Krstić Appeal Judgement, paras. 12–14. See also Karadžić Appeal Judgement, para. 727 and references cited therein; Revised and Updated Report on the Question of the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide Prepared by Mr. B. Whitaker U.N. Doc. E/CN.4/Sub.2/1985/6, 2 July 1985, para. 29 ("'In part' would seem to imply a reasonably significant number, relative to the total of the group as a whole, or else a significant section of a group, such as its leadership.").
- 1955 See Krstić Appeal Judgement, para. 14. The ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Popović et al. case noted that "it is the objective, contextual characteristics of the targeted part of the group, [...] that form the basis for determining whether the targeted part of the group is substantial". Popović et al. Appeal Judgement, para. 422.
- 1956 Trial Judgement, para. 3529. The overall size of the Bosnian Muslim group in Bosnia and Herzegovina in 1991 was therefore approximately 1.9 million people, noting that 43.7 per cent of 4.4 million is 1,922,800.

- 1958 Prosecution Appeal Brief, paras. 2, 6–10.
- 1959 See Trial Judgement, paras. 3530–3534. The Prosecution points out that the Trial Chamber incorrectly found that the Bosnian Muslims of Prijedor comprised 2.2 per cent, rather than approximately 2.6 per cent, of the overall Bosnian Muslim group. See Prosecution Appeal Brief, n. 14, referring to Trial Judgement, paras. 3529, 3534. The Appeals Chamber does not consider that the Trial Chamber's mathematical error in this respect impacted its decision.

- 1964 See Krstić Appeal Judgement, para. 13. In this respect, the Appeals Chamber notes that a relevant factor in the determination of the ICTY Appeals Chamber in the Krstić case that the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica formed a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim group was that the authority of the Bosnian Serb forces charged with the take-over of Srebrenica did not extend beyond the Central Podrinje region, and that the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica were the only part of the Bosnian Muslim group within the perpetrators' area of control. See Krstić Appeal Judgement, para. 17.

- 1966 Trial Judgement, para. 3535.
- 1967 See Trial Judgement, paras. 3530–3534. In particular, the Trial Chamber noted, inter alia, that: (i) Karadžić and Krajišnik stressed the strategic significance of Sanski Most and the need to retain it (see Trial Judgement, para. 3530); (ii) Mladić was informed that "Foča 'was supposed to be the Second Islamic Centre for Muslims in Europe' but was now 99 per cent Serb", and Karadžić explained that "Foča 'is extremely important to' the Muslims, 'but it will never be theirs again'" (see Trial Judgement, para. 3531); (iii) Kotor Varoš was strategically important as it was located "almost on the border of the Federation and Republika Srpska" (see Trial Judgement, para. 3532); (iv) Mladić noted that "whoever controls Vlasenica, controls eastern Bosnia" (see Trial Judgement, para. 3533); and (v) Prijedor was "significant

- to the Bosnian Serbs because of its location as part of the land corridor that linked the Serb-dominated area in the Croatian Krajina in the west with Serbia and Montenegro in the east and south, F...đ Fandđ a symbol throughout the region of Yugoslavia of 'brotherhood and unity', to the extent that Bosnian Muslims thought it was 'the last town where ethnic conflict was possible'" (see Trial Judgement, para. 3534).
- 1968 See, e.g., Popović et al. Appeal Judgement, para. 422 (affirming that the strategic importance of Srebrenica is a relevant factor in determining whether the substantiality requirement is met); Krstić Appeal Judgement, paras. 15 ("Srebrenica (and the surrounding Central Podrinje region) were of immense strategic importance to the Bosnian Serb leadership. Without Srebrenica, the ethnically Serb state of Republika Srpska they sought to create would remain divided into two disconnected parts, and its access to Serbia proper would be disrupted."), 16 ("In addition, Srebrenica was important due to its prominence in the eyes of both the Bosnian Muslims and the international community. [...] In its resolution declaring Srebrenica a safe area, the Security Council announced that it 'should be free from armed attack or any other hostile act.'). See also, inter alia, Karadžić Trial Judgement, para. 5672; Popović et al. Trial Judgement, para. 865.
- 1969 See Trial Judgement, para. 3554 ("[T]he Trial Chamber finds that the enclave of Srebrenica was of significant strategic importance to the Bosnian-Serb leadership during the conflict because the majority Bosnian-Muslim population of this region made it difficult for them to claim the land as inherently Serb. The Bosnian-Serb leadership, in particular, accorded Srebrenica importance as it was in close geographical proximity to Serbia and, therefore, was required for maintaining a Serb-populated border area contiguous with Serbia. During the war, Srebrenica also became a refuge to Bosnian Muslims from the region especially when it was designated a UN safe area. The Trial Chamber is, therefore, satisfied that the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica constituted a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim population of Bosnia-Herzegovina.").

The Prosecution argues that the Trial Chamber "appeared to justify its differential treatment of intent in relation to local perpetrators versus [joint criminal enterprise] members on the basis that the former group physically participated in genocidal and other culpable acts, while the latter did not", and reiterates that "[t]his is not only flawed in principle, it is also misconceived in that some of these so-called physical perpetrators were mid- and low- level commanders who did not physically commit any crimes". The Prosecution argues cumulative substantiality in the alternative to its contention, as elaborated under Ground 1 of its appeal, that each of the Count 1 Communities individually formed a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim group. See Prosecution Notice of Appeal, para. 9(c); Prosecution Appeal Brief, paras. 44, 45. See also T. 26 August 2020 pp. 84, 85. The Prosecution alternatively requests the Appeals Chamber to convict Mladić of genocide pursuant to the third category of joint criminal enterprise or as a superior pursuant to Article 7(3) of the ICTY Statute as a consequence of correcting the errors alleged under Ground 1 of its appeal. See Prosecution Appeal Brief, paras. 48–50. See also Mladić Response Brief, paras. 202–342; Prosecution Reply Brief, paras. 40–57; T. 26 August 2020 pp. 94–99.
